U. S. Obliged by Law To Protect Its Ships, Roosevelt Declares

President Dismisses Reports Merchant Vessels May Be Armed As Talk of Orators

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt said yesterday that the United States is required by law to protect its merchant ships wherever they go, so long as they do not enter combat zones.

He said it was not a question of policy, but one of law. He did not specify what law or laws he had in mind.

His statement to the press, implying armed protection whenever American vessels move supplies through the newly opened Red Sea, left unanswered the question of convoys.

Isolationists earlier raised the question again in the Senate with demands for action on the Tobey anticonvoy legislation.

Vandenberg Plans Move

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, said he would call up the measure at the next meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. A meeting is slated for this morning.

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, declined a challenge by Majority Leader Barkley to bring his measure directly before the Senate by moving to discharge the committee. "What chance has a snowball in hell?" Tobey retorted.

The President at his press conference said he knew more about the question of armed protection of ships than orators and writers but he was not talking about it at this time.

Asked if there was now an increasing urgency for use of the United States Navy, the President said more printers' ink was being wasted on this than on any other one thing.

Dismisses Talk of Orators

A lot of nonsense has been printed on the subject, the President said, by people who don't know anything about it. He said that although he himself knows something about the subject, he would hesitate to comment on the question of convoys.

Reports that American merchant ships might be armed, he dismissed as merely talk of orators.

A reporter asked if the President's remark that the law required protection of American ships not moving through combat zones covered ships sent over the Red Sea route to the Suez.

The Chief Executive replied that that there were no American ships in the Red Sea. Asked whether any would be sent there, he said he didn't know.

While the President did not elaborate on the legal basis for protection of American ships in open sea areas, he apparently referred to international law rights of freedom of the seas.

Transshipment Suggested

In the train of speculation that followed, it was pointed out that such protection not only could extend to the American merchantmen taking the Gulf of Aden and Red Sea route but to American flag ships proceeding to projected bases in Greenland within 3 miles of the German blockade zone.

It has been suggested that war supplies could be shipped on American vessels to Greenland and then

Youngsters Take to Water

Heat of 89 Melts D. C. Records, But Respite Is Promised Today

IN THE OL' SWIMMIN' HOLE—The thermometer suggested a dip in the "ol' swimmin' hole" yesterday to these youngsters. They splashed about in White Log "hole" off the intersection of Queens Chapel and Chillum Roads, Prince Georges County, Md.

For the second consecutive day Washington suffered through an April heat record, but last night the weatherman assured that a cold air mass would reach the Capital by this evening, bringing showers and lower temperatures today and tomorrow.

The mercury soared to 89 yesterday, warmest for any April 15 on record. A similar high mark was registered the day before, with 88.

Normal spring weather is due back for Friday and Saturday, according to the five-day forecast issued yesterday.

Youngsters on an Easter school vacation here, and intent on enjoying it, took to the water, with a goodly crowd showing up at the White Log swimming hole, off Queens Chapel Road, at Chillum Road, Prince Georges County.

Police here were given official permission to wear their lightweight summer blouses from 8 a. m. to midnight.

War May Hit U.S. Anywhere, Stimson Warns

(Highlights of Stimson Testimony, Page 15.)

By John G. Norris

Secretary Stimson strongly intimated yesterday that the United States Army might have to fight outside the Americas in defense of the Nation.

"Our forces must be prepared for the possibilities of war in many and varied terrains," he told a special Senate committee investigating the defense program, "it being quite uncertain in what part of North or South or Central America, or even possibly other regions it ultimately may be necessary to use them in the defense of this country and its possessions."

Strong evidence exists, Stimson stated, that the "dangerous emergency" facing the United States "may be very prolonged." To meet the situation an Army training program is planned covering "many successive military units and many successive instalments of men, and which in the aggregate may last

D. A. R. Hailed As Pioneer in Americanism

Mrs. Robert Points To Society's Efforts In Farewell Report

(Other D. A. R. Stories and Pictures On Page 4 and 16.)

Pioneer efforts of the Daughters of the American Revolution in combating un-American activities and in promoting "a constructive program of education for citizenship for foreign born" were cited by Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president general, in her farewell report to the fiftieth Continental Congress yesterday in Constitution Hall.

The belief that fingerprinting "may in time extend to all citizens to show that law-abiding citizens have nothing to fear" was expressed by Mrs. Robert. She pointed out that she and other national officers were fingerprinted for news reels, and the example was followed by State regents and members in many parts of the country.

Mrs. Robert said that several years ago she advocated 'a primer of Americanism," an idea which she had not seen elsewhere. "With threats to democratic institutions becoming increasingly menacing, in but little more than two years, dozens of such efforts began to ap-

Selective Service Age Limits May Be Reduced to 18-30

A revised selective service law under whcih age limits would be reduced from 21 to 18 and from 35 to probably 30 is being studied, President Roosevelt and selection officials disclosed simultaneously yesterday.

The President said a Congressional committee would start hearings late in May or early in June on proposals to change the training-age limits in force since last summer.

Under plans being studied at Selective Service headquarters, a spokesman said, only men 30 or under and 18 or over would be called after June 30, end of the present fiscal year.

Selection headquarters also announced extension from five to at least ten days of the period between notification and induction into the Army. In addition, local boards were authorized to increase the period to 60 days if they deemed it justified.

These changes resulted from numerous complaints by selectees that five days is too short a time to wind up family and business affairs.

Representative James W. Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, said last night that while he favored maintenance of the present draft age limits for the duration of the emergency he felt this country would "revert to an army of kids" in the future.

Washington selection officials favored lowering the age limits on two grounds: Drafting youths 18 to 21 would prevent interruption of college or professional careers and men 35 to 45 would be of less

Knox Favors Period for Cooling-off

Secretary Asserts Nation in Grave Peril, Testifying on Vinson Labor Bill

Defense Need Stressed

By John B. Oakes

With the gloomy warning that the Nation at this moment is in "grave peril," Secretary Knox yesterday indorsed the "spirit" of the Vinson bill requiring a compulsory cooling-off period in defense labor disputes and freezing the present status of open and closed shops.

In his testimony before the House Naval Affairs Committee, Secretary Knox solemnly declared that "from the information I have, we are now in the midst of the decisive period of this present World War."

"I see my country being gradually encircled and isolated," he said, adding, "Look where you will, you see abundant reason for the gravest concern."

Although he gave qualified approval to the Vinson bill, Secretary Knox said that he would "rely more on public opinion than upon compulsory methods." He explained, however, that he wanted to see "sufficient compulsion" to insure an opportunity for full discussion of labor disputes.

At the same time the witness evidenced strong opposition to any actual prohibition of the right to strike.

Asserting "the labor situation has improved," Secretary Knox nonetheless cautioned the committee that "we haven't yet arrived at the real testing."

"If this situation thickens up, and if Germany should put into operation her fifth column—which she hasn't done yet—then I would not hesitate to use compulsion against the enemies of my country," he declared.

The Secretary noted that even now there exists "a considerable element in America trying to sabotage

Second Official Of Zoo Is Stricken With Parrot Fever

Malcolm Davis, blond and husky keeper of the zoo's birdhouse, whose sturdy frame has successfully weathered the cold of Antarctica and the intense heat of the Red Sea, has had to give in to a germ at last.

He was a patient in Sibley Hospital yesterday, suffering from parrot fever, contracted as a result of his birdhouse duties.

At that, it took nearly three months for the infection to seize Davis, whose father is Allen Davis, retired principal of Roosevelt High School. The birdhouse was closed to the public January 24 upon the discovery of several sick parrots. It is still closed.

He is the second victim of the outbreak. The first to catch the fever from the infected birds was Gerald Miller, a keeper, who has recovered and is back at work.

Except for a siege of scarlet fever in childhood and an appendectomy ten years ago, Davis has never been ill before. Last year he was a zoologist member of the Byrd expedition to Antarctica. Not long before that he had the arduous task of escorting a rhinoceros from India to Washington on a freighter.

Physicians said last night his condition is favorable.

Nazis Hurl Back Allied Left In 40-Mile Thrust; British Shoot Down 22 Axis Planes at Tobruk

200 Exhausted Nazis Captured; Battle Raging For Salum, Egypt

By the Associated Press

Cairo, April 15.—A wide-open battle rocketed back and forth through the Egyptian border village of Salum tonight while, 80 miles to the west in the beleaguered Libyan port of Tobruk, the British announced they had staved off ferocious attacks by destroying 22 Axis planes and 15 tanks, killing at least 100 of their enemy and capturing 200 Germans.

[Suffering from lack of water and food and exhausted by their swift campaign in the Libyan desert inferno, an International News Service dispatch said, German mechanized troops were halted by British defenses east of Salum, according to the British.

[German prisoners, not accustomed to fighting under harsh desert conditions, were found to be in "the last stages of exhaustion" when they were taken outside Tobruk.

[The Germans reported to their British captors that they had been without food and water for days, and lacked the strength to obey orders for another swift advance.]

Nineteen of the planes downed at Tobruk were Germany's vaunted JU-87 dive bombers, the British said, while they themselves lost only one bomber and three fighters in far-ranging bombardments of airdromes and troop concentrations in Libyan Cirenaica and Tripolitania.

Hang On Grimly

Military buildings were destroyed, dispersed aircraft were hit and heavy explosions caused particularly at the Axis centers of Derna, El Adem and Gambut, the British said, while in Tripoli one ship was set afire and others damaged. Many casualties were inflicted.

Constant fighter patrols were maintained over Tobruk to fend off German-Italian onslaughts.

In smashing 15 Axis tanks there yesterday, the British said their own losses were 8.

At Salum, which was said to have changed hands repeatedly in the course of the maneuvers of armored patrols, the British announced they inflicted losses on the Axis units by both patrol and artillery action.

The British hung grimly on the lower half of the seashore escapement and the bottom of the cliffs, and apparently it was there that they planted their artillery while the tanks roamed over the plain and through the dismal village.

The British fliers, cheered up mightily by their score against the Luftwaffe, said they believed they had the Germans' number just as they did the Italians' in the winter

President Yields In Face of New German 'Menace'

President Roosevelt yesterday came face to face with a "German" menace against which the lend-lease law was useless. He beat a quick retreat.

Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that, due to an outbreak of German measles at the Warm Springs Foundation, he had been obliged to cancel plans to visit the Georgia resort this week. He had intended to leave late today.

How would it look in these times, he asked, if the President of the United States came down with German measles?

The President said laughingly that his change of plans was made mainly to benefit the newspapermen and reporters who accompany him, because he has already had German measles.

Roosevelt Extends Export Control

President Roosevelt yesterday further extended the list of articles under export control with the issuing of two proclamations, covering machinery and six additional products.

The first proclamation, to be effective today, provides license control for the exploits of construction and conveying machinery, and certain mine, well and pumping machinery. The second proclamation, to be placed in effect on May 6, includes some vegetable fibers, caffein and casein.

Gains in Center Place Germans 18 Miles Northwest Of Mount Olympus

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Wednesday), April 16. German reports early today pictured British forces in Greece as in full retreat with some commentators declaring it was a "rout" under terrific bombardment of the Nazi air force.

The Greek coast was bombed relentlessly, the Germans said, as British transports moved into and out of harbors, and German pressure was increased on the Greek-British defense line running from the Albanian corner to the Aegean Sea.

While authorized sources would give no details on developments of the North African campaign, they described the situation as "not unfavorable to us."

The commentary Dienst aus Deutschland, which has close foreign office connections, dropped a hint that Balkan hostilities may be terminated within a short time.

Commenting on what it termed the British withdrawal from the Greek front, Dienst observed that "the effects of this step may soon become noticeable."

Serbs Encircled, Paper Claims

The fate of the Greek army also will be greatly influenced by the dissolution of Yugoslav forces, the commentary added.

The remnants of the Serbian army are surrounded by German and Italian forces, Dienst continued, "leaving no alternative but surrender, which only is a matter of time."

"Whenever this happens, it certainly will not be without most important reactions on Greek decisions."

The confident tone of the German reports followed yesterday's high command claim that German advance forces had thrust British infantry and armored units back across the Aliakmon River to a point nearly 65 miles south of the Yugoslav border.

(The river crossing, placed by the Germans as near the Greek town of Servia, still is about 18 miles northwest of Mount Olympus, previously designated as the eastern anchor of the British-Greek defense line.)

Deny Request for Truce

Farther to the west, about 40 miles south of the Yugoslav frontier, the towns of Kozane and Ptolemais have fallen to the spearheads of German army and SS troops, the communique stated. The British were said to be covering a retreat by rear-guard action and "extensive destruction."

In Yugoslavia, the German and Italian troops were credited with "pursuit and encirclement of remnants of the Serbian army, which is showing localized opposition in the

Larissa Captured, Ankara Hears

New York, April 15 (AP).—Columbia Broadcasting System's correspondent in Turkey reported tonight in a broadcast from Ankara that German tank squadrons had broken through the Greek-British defense lines to reach Larissa and that Greek sources admitted their southward withdrawal would continue.

The correspondent, Winston Burdett, also said "it appears that British calculations have already been upset and it is reported that eight empty transport ships left for Greece yesterday from Alexandria, Egypt."

Nazis Deny Knowledge Of Request; London Calls It Propaganda

Budapest, April 15.—A report that Yugoslavia has requested an armistice of Germany came from official quarters here today, but nothing was published to that effect.

[Shortly before this dispatch was received, authorized military and diplomatic sources in Berlin denied knowledge of such a request, although first reports of it were attributed to German sources.

[In London, informed Britons termed the report "a typical bit of Goebbels propaganda" and added that "the latest information received here gives no reason for despondency about the Yugoslav situation."

[These sources said the report was "probably put out to create alarm and despondency" among the Allies.]

The Hungarian government circles said they had confidential information that Yugoslavia made the peace bid today.

Later, the Budapest radio said the Hungarian army command had forbidden anyone to enter or leave newly occupied Yugoslav territory during the next 14 days.

Berlin (Wednesday), April 16 (AP). German news agency dispatches from Sofia said tonight that Bulgaria had broken off relations with Yugoslavia on the grounds that Yugoslav diplomats in Sofia had tried to foment a revolt.

It also was charged that Yugoslav planes had killed Bulgarian women

British-Greek Armies Set For Nazi Blow

New Defensive Line Established to Take Full Force of Attack

By C. L. Sulzberger

Athens, April 15.—After a series of secret withdrawals from their original positions because of tactical necessities consequent upon the German invasion of southern Yugoslavia, the British and Greek armies have now established a new defensive line running from the Salonika Gulf to the Adriatic Sea and are there awaiting the full impact of the anticipated Nazi offensive.

This line, which is based on the enormous mountain chains from Acroceraunia to the vicinity of Olympus, will be extremely difficult for mechanized units to attack and reinforcements including new British troops are being constantly rushed to the front.

Concentration of Power

The withdrawal was efficiently carried out under conditions of intense cold and snow flurries, and was protected by the covering forces of both armies, which inflicted considerable damage to the enemy patrols. The Germans are now concentrating heavy forces on the Pelargonian plain region of Bitolj, and it would appear a great battle is imminent.

Today's British army communique states merely that "on the right of the British and imperial line several thrusts by enemy mechanized troops were repulsed. Elsewhere there was no contact with the enemy, and it can now be revealed that the Allied

Bethesda Volunteer Accused Of Setting High School Afire

Montgomery County police yesterday arrested Wilson E. Everhart, 19, Bethesda volunteer fireman, on charges of setting fire to the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, where he is a senior. John Adair, 26, a Chevy Chase fireman, was killed in a traffic accident at the fire.

Everhart, police said, has admitted having set fire to the high school February 26. He told police that his only reason was "for the thrill and excitement."

In addition to the $15,000 school fire, Everhart is charged with having set fire to a vacant house on Montgomery Avenue in Bethesda, March 15, and with an attempt to set fire, March 31, at the Bethesda Paint and Hardware Store, 7004 Wisconsin Avenue, where he was employed after school hours.

Everhart is the second volunteer fireman to be arrested in connection with a wave of incendiary fires in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area in the last several months.

Paul J. Voight, 22-year-old volunteer fireman, is awaiting grand jury action on charges that he set fire to the grass on the Bergdoll estate, Wisconsin Avenue near Dorset Avenue, Somerset, on the night he joined the volunteers, so he could ride on the fire engine.

Everhart was released on $1,000 cash bond for his appearance May 13 before Trial Magistrate Christopher.

Mrs. S. E. Everhart, the boy's mother, said last night: "It was only a case of a kid with a mania for fires."

Chief of Police Andrew M. Newman said last night that the investi-

Cruiser Lost On Convoy, British Admit

By the Associated Press

London, April 15.—Britain acknowledged the loss of one of her newest cruisers tonight, but claimed destruction of a 10,000-ton tanker bound for a Nazi-occupied port and new bomb hits on or near Germanys' two 26,000-ton battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst berthed at Brest.

The 5,450-ton cruiser Bonaventure, completed in the 1939-40 program, was sunk on convoy duty by a torpedo, the admiralty announced. The date, location and the number of casualties were not disclosed.

Master's Fate Unknown

The Bonaventure was the fifth cruiser acknowledged by the admiralty as lost since the war began. The others were the Effingham, Curlew, Calypso and Southampton.

Other officially acknowledged losses to date in major warship classes are one battleship, two aircraft carries, 39 destroyers, including two Canadian, and 25 submarines.

Commander of the Bonaventure was Capt. H. J. Egerton, a navigation specialist and grandson of the first Lord Brassey. He married a sister of Mrs. Anthony Eden. During the World War Capt. Egerton served with the grand fleet and was on board the Agincourt at Jutland. His fate was not made known.

The two German battleships lying in much-bombed Brest were targets of the British bombers last night in their offensive sweep over the continent. The port was attacked four hours, during which hundreds of bombs were dropped on docks, the air ministry's communique said, but poor visibility precluded claims of direct hits on the warships.

Power stations at Haarlem and Leiden, in the Netherlands, and German supply ships also were said to have been bombed.

Tanker Sunk by Submarine

The British submarine Tigris was credited with sinking a heavily laden 10,000-ton tanker which the admiralty said was plying to a port in occupied France.

Three German planes were reported destroyed and one British plane lost in air battles both over the British south coast and over northern France, where British fighters flew on offensive patrol. The R. A. F. was reported to have turned back several sizable German formations which attempted daylight forays on England. No reports of bombings were received during the daylight hours from any British area.

German bombs crashed in one London district tonight, trapping several persons in wreckage and causing some casualties.

One German raider crashed in flames in a south coast area. The bombing here was the second reported in a night during which German raiders were heard over most of England. The other bombing was at a south coast town, where damage was reported not serious.

The usual weekly announcement of British, allied and merchant shipping losses was abandoned by the admiralty in favor of monthly reports.

The admiralty said monthly totals would "make it more difficult for the enemy to deduce the proportion of these losses due to submarines, airplanes, raiders and mines," and would obviate revisions caused by late reports from far flung areas.

thrust into Libya.

In East Africa, also, the air force was active, machine-gunning airdromes at Giamma and Kombolcha in Ethiopia and destroying two Italian planes.

Gen. Santini Captured

Land forces announced the capture of the Italian Gen. Santini, commander of Fascists in southern Jubaland, along with a brigadier and other officers.

(Although not further identified, the general was thought to be Gen. Ruggiero Santini, 70-year-old veteran of the World War and in 1935 commander of an army corps in Eritrea.)

Pressing the Ethiopian cleanup, the British said they were advancing toward Dessie and were pursuing Italian detachments in the south. One body of British troops reached the river Omo, 106 miles southwest of Addis Ababa, and another bridged the river Awash and occupied Assele.

In Addis Ababa, which already has fallen to the British large quantities of seized materials included $40,000 worth of surveying equipment.

Here in Cairo, the Egyptian government announced that an agreement had been reached with British authorities, but did not disclose its nature. The Egyptian Parliament adopted resolutions declaring there "is absolutely no cause for alarm" for Egypt.

forces in Greece have established a new defensive line enabling the greatest concentration of fire power and the benefits of the natural advantages of the mountainous terrain in order to throw back the expected full Nazi offensive, when it comes."

In order to accomplish this the brave Greek army was forced to withdraw from its northern Albanian sector and to abandon the City of Koritza which was captured five months ago after an extremely successful operation against the Italian army of aggression. The Greeks managed to effect this withdrawal in great secrecy three days ago and it was only 24 hours later that the Italian command became aware of the maneuver and sought desperately to halt it.

A Bersaglieri motorcycle unit was immediately ordered forward in an effort to break up the orderly strategic retreat but the Greeks easily thwarted such efforts and succeeded in capturing several dozen cyclists.

Following initial German successes in Yugoslav-Macedonia, it was clear something must be done to avert possibilities which would have resulted should the Nazis penetrate behind the large Greek forces in Albania. A withdrawal was decided on and was placed in operation.

After terrific battles in precipitous gorges between Stara Kachanik and Skoplje, the tough Yugoslav army was advancing steadily southward in the direction of Skoplje, it was reliably reported last night, and some sources said the south Serbian capital had been reoccupied, although this was not confirmed.

Having readjusted their lateral communications system, Yugoslav troops in a daring move thrust back toward the Nis gap, retaking the town of Prokuplje, about 13 miles southwest of Nis, the most important city in the eastern part of the country.

At the same time the Yugoslav counterattack in the north was certainly meeting success, and Kragujevac, one of the country's chief military arsenals, was understood to have been reoccupied by the battling Serbs, although again it must be emphasized that this has not been confirmed.

It appears that the battle for Skoplje has been extremely bitterly fought, but the Germans apparently have been finding difficulties in supplying their streamlined mechanical army while drawn on by Yugoslav artillery accompanied by grenade-throwing riflemen slowly forcing a passage back along the narrow curving gorge along which the Nazi hoped to penetrate to Prizren and the key to the Albania roads.

It was stated here that the Yugoslavs, after having reassembled their initially disrupted forces and counterattacked south of Belgrade in the region between Stara Karachinika and Soplandje, were meeting success and that other Yugoslav forces were harrying the Italians in Albania. It was pointed out that the Germans had not gained nearly so much as was at first hoped for in Berlin and that fewer than 10,000 Yugoslav prisoners had been taken by the Nazis.

Allies Flout Rumors Of German Successes

Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, April 15.—On the heels of a barrage of Axis rumors that have kept the Balkan situation obscure, reports from Allied sources late tonight were to the effect that:

1. Yugoslavia will not capitulate.
2. There will be no "Dunkerque" for the moment at least. All British activity in the different Grecian ports as reported by Axis reconnaissance planes would appear to be reinforcements arriving rather than British contingents leaving, according to a British statement here.
3. Anglo-Greek resistance in the south appears to have forced the German high command to change its plans in the face of a situation before which it finds two definitely aggressive enemies—the Yugoslavs in the north and the Greeks and British to the south—and no longer contemplates its original intention of applying the "divide and rule" principle in the military field. Latest Greek and Yugoslav reports confirmed by the British show that the Germans have been forced to send for reinforcements, which will almost double their effectives which attacked in the original putsch.

Twin Italian Offensive Takes Shape

By the Associated Press

Rome, April 15.—A double Italian offensive to reconquer Albania and subdue Greece took shape tonight, with Fascist pressure toward Argirocastro, on the southern front, matching the drive in the northern sector which has wrested Koritza from well-fortified Greek troops.

(The Greeks took Argirocastro last December 8, thus wiping out the last advanced base from which the Italians, in their original invasion last autumn, intended to overrun Greece).

Dispatches from the war correspondent of the newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia indicated that the new Fascist offensive in the direction of Argirocastro was based on Berati, above Tepeleni, which an Italian garrison also was managed to hold.

Following the capture of Koritza, the Italian air force was said to be harassing the Greek troops retreating southward.

Drive Aimed at Kastoria

The northern Italian drive is aimed at Kastoria, across the Greek frontier, for a junction with the German troops who are smashing down from Yugoslavia through a gap in the western flank of the main British-Greek line.

Occupation of both Knin and Sibenik, above and below Italian Zara on the Dalmatian coast of Yugosalvia, was announced by the high command.

Fascist warplanes were reported to have sunk one steamer and damaged others at Piraeus, the port of Athens, while British planes raided Italian Brindisi and Albanian Valona.

The occupation of Koritza pushed the Italian lines forward about 25 miles. Now, dispatches said, Italian motorized columns in the Lake Prespa zone are advancing toward Bilishti, an Albanian town about 6 miles from the Greek frontier, where the highway forks out toward Phlorina and Kastoria.

Greeks Fight Bravely

The correspondent of Il Lavoro Fascista said the Greeks fought with the same courage and coolness in the Koritza zone as they had during the last six months, retreating only when Italian pressure became too strong for them.

To delay the Italian advance the Greeks dynamited bridges and stretches of road, which Italian engineers rapidly repaired. It was said the Greeks burned gasoline supplies and motor vehicles and killed horses and mules to get rid of anything that might impede their retreat. The road between Pogradetz and Koritza was reported littered with abandoned equipment, including cases of munitions.

Italian sailors took part in operations in the Albanian lake regions, reported Stefani, Italian news agency. They took possession of arsenals on the shores of Lake Ohrid, and, in armed boats, supported the action of a motorized column which broke the right wing of the Greek line before Koritza.

Sailors in a motorboat were said to have attacked a Yugoslav town on the shore of Lake Scutari, where enemy activity had been observed. Other armed boats captured "all the enemy's defense material on the lake," the dispatch said.

Belgrade Ruins Like Coventry, Reporter Says

By the Associated Press

New York, April 15.—In the first account from an eye witness of the bombing of Belgrade, a Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent tonight said the damage in the Yugoslav capital could be compared only to that in Rotterdam and Coventry.

The story was received by C. B. S. from Leigh White, who with several other correspondents, had to flee the Serbskikralj Hotel in Belgrade when waves of German bombers attacked the city last Sunday and Monday.

White estimated 3,000 persons were killed by Tuesday, when he was last there.

White said he had been informed that at the end of the first week of the war, the Yugoslavs had recaptured Skoplje and isolated a German panzer division with 400 tanks in a counterattack along the Lepanic River Valley.

"Nis also was reported retaken," the account continued.

White said Gen. Milan Nedic, war minister, ousted three months ago for proposing to attack Bulgaria before the Germans could concentrate there, was raised to a field marshal for the "successful" counterattack on Skoplje.

"The same towns which previously were spared are now being bombed regularly by the Italians as well as the Germans. Beautiful Dubrovnik is daily subject to attacks.

"But none has suffered like Belgrade, which can only be compared with Rotterdam, Coventry, Barcelona and Madrid.

"All Americans are safe, although the legation building was destroyed. I toured the war zone with the American military attache, Col. Louis James Fortier, of New Orleans."

Among the other Americans White said were safe were Walter Page, of the United States Reclamation Service, and his brother, John.

and children.

In denying knowledge of a Yugoslav armistice request, as reported in Budapest, sources here indicated the aim was to force capitulation of the Serb army as was done with the Polish army.

Reports 'a Defamation,' Minister Here Says

By the United Press

Constantin Fotich, Yugoslav Minister to Washington, said last night that reports that his government has sued for an armistice are "a defamation on the character" of the Yugoslav nation and "an example of German ruthlessness in the persecution of the small nations which are bravely defending their national honor."

Noting that the reports came from "Nazi-dominated Hungary and from Germany," Fotitch said in a formal statement that "the credibility of such stories is not worthy of discussion."

Australians Warned

Sydney, April 15 (AP).—Acting Prime Minister Arthur W. Fadden, in a statement tonight after a meeting of federal and state ministers, said that if Britain suffers serious reverses in the Balkans Australia must expect trouble in the Pacific.

Many Mexicans Dead in Quake; Volcano Erupts

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, April 15.—President Avila Camacho's office was informed tonight that probably half the 15,000 residents of the city of Colima were left homeless, injured or dead in an earthquake this afternoon, and that the volcano nearby erupted and set fire to the forests.

Radio advices to the president from Gov. Pedro Torres Ortiz of Colima State reported the stricken provincial capital was menaced seriously by the forest fires.

The volcano was set in eruption when the quake rocked the southern half of Mexico, shaking Mexico City as well as the provinces, and starting fires here.

Fire and other damage here was estimated at $1,000,000.

Colima military authorities reported numerous smaller towns around the city had been leveled, and that surrounding forests were a "roaring mass of flames."

A radio message picked up here from an operator who described himself as an amateur sending from Colima, said at least 30 persons were dead.

The station kept repeating: "Colima in ruins. We need aid."

The reports to the President's office said the earthquake lasted five minutes at Colima, nearly as long as the disastrous quake which wrecked the city in 1932.

President Avila Camacho immediately ordered military and civilian planes to hasten tonight and tomorrow morning to Colima with medical supplies and doctors.

Colima was in darkness, the radio dispatches said.

Troops have been rushed from zone headquarters in the Pacific port of Manzanillo to reinforce Colima police.

The quake knocked out telephone and telegraphic communications.

Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city, 275 miles west of the capital, reported a heavy earth shock lasting about a minute. No damage or casualties were reported.

Two hundred soldiers and 120 policemen joined firemen fighting the flames, which enveloped a lumber yard and quickly spread through stores, factory buildings and residences here.

Several hours after the temblor, which rattled the city for 30 seconds and badly frightened most of its 1,754,000 people, 12 fire engines still were pumping water on the blaze and flooding other buildings to prevent the flames from spreading.

The only casualties reported here from the quake and five resultant fires were two persons burned and one fireman overcome by smoke. The other four fires were under control.

Worst damaged of Mexico City's large structures was the $500,000 Pontiac Building, where a large section of brick front eight stories high tumbled into the street and huge steel girders were twisted like paper.

People rushed into the streets as the quake rumbled like the sound of a hundred approaching freight trains, men and women kneeling on heaving sidewalks to pray while windows cracked and bricks fell around them.

Huge cracks split the sides of buildings in the business district, pieces of masonry crashing to sidewalks and streets like bombs.

Mostar-Sarajevo region."

Numerous prisoners included the commander of the south Siberian army, it was announced, but authorized military and diplomatic sources denied any knowledge of a Yugoslav request for an armistice, as reported in Rome and Budapest.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that the German minister of munitions, Fritz Todt, the man who built the Siegfried Line fronting France, has gone to Poland for extensive inspection of eastern fortifications.

With three of his closest collaborators, he will travel along the German-Russian frontier from Ostroleka to Przemysl, where thousands of workers have been employed since the new border was fixed.

Rumors Fly

German reports distributed to every part of Europe now dominated by Germany said that the British admiralty had demanded the Greek fleet aid in protecting British embarkation, that the Greeks insisted on knowing whether they were to be left alone to face the German attack, and that Piraeus had refused to supply pilots to take British transports out of port.

Informed Germans meanwhile said the Nazi military power against Greece was being increased hourly as additional troops were being released by a virtual collapse of Yugoslav resistance.

Informed sources estimated that a Yugoslav army estimated to number 1,200,000 men had ben "beaten, dispersed, crushed and brought to final collapse" in a week.

D. N. B., official German news agency, quoted Croat officers as saying Croats and Serbs were fighting each other in the Mostar area.

Another German dispatch said that in the Sarajevo region the Germans occupied the railway station and captured a trainload of Serb soldiers without firing a shot.

The high command said the air force inflicted heavy losses on the Serbs, wiping out marching columns in the lower Bosna Valley and in the area between the Sava and Drina Rivers.

Gauleiter Takes Over

The Sarajevo and Mostar areas were bombed, and other air units dispersed Greek concentrations at Deskati, the high command said. It said four merchant ships had been sunk and eight damaged in raids on Piraeus.

Hungarian troops were credited with completing occupation of the Drava-Danube triangle and pressing on southward to Donyu and Novi.

The German civil administration's swift follow-up of the army was indicated by a D. N. B. report that a Gauleiter and numerous party officials already had gone to Maribor, south of the old Austrian border, to take over the government.

Stimson Says War May Hit Anywhere

for five years," he added.

The Army chief admitted that some mistakes had been made in planning and administering the defense program, but declared that they "will appear quite insignificant when set against the value of the time saved and the size of the task performed."

In a lengthy defense of the progress of the program, Stimson compared what is being done now with what happened in the World War. He pointed out that the Army then was largely armed by its allies and that American industry then would not have turned out full munitions for the Army until the fall of 1919.

Today, he declared, we will do the job in from eight months to a year faster than then. Even greater speed is possible, Stimson suggested, if the civilian needs of the country are "subordinated" to the military program.

Patterson Tells of Checks

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson followed his chief to the stand to defend his department's handling of the arms program. He said that negotiated contracts have been used in lieu of advertising for the lowest bidder only where speed or lack of qualified manufacturers made it necessary.

When negotiated contracts are used, he said, a system of checks is applied to assure that several high ranking Government officials approve each order. Patterson's prepared statement, which he will finish reading this morning, also refuted charges that the Northeastern and Pacific Coast regions have been favored in placing of arms orders.

"We had to take industrial American as we found it," he stated. "For steel we went to the established steel mills. For automobiles, we went to Detroit. So does the general public."

Calls Tanks Superior

The Undersecretary's statement declared that the Army's light and medium tanks are "superior in speed, armor and weapons to those of any other army" and that the high command believes our warplanes are superior to those used in the war today. Troops in the field are now equipped with 150,000 of the new Garand rifles, he stated.

Lescot, Minister Here, Made Haiti's President

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, April 15 (AP). Elie Lescot, now minister to Washington, was elected president of Haiti today by a vote of 56 of a total of 58 national assemblymen.

In a short speech, he pledged himself to follow the policies of Stenio Vincent, whose term expires May 15.

Law Makes U.S. Protect Ships, Roosevelt Says

transshipped by British vessels to England.

The President did not say how the ships would be protected, but naval escorts of American merchant ships or a system of naval and plane patrols over noncombat routes have been suggested frequently.

The convoy debate in Congress involves the broader question of escorting British merchantmen either all or part way, and this question the President did not discuss.

Senate debate was touched off by Senator Tobey who took the floor again to voice belief that "behind the scenes this use of convoys is being approved."

Senator Barkley took vigorous exception.

"I read a good deal about convoys in the papers and I hear a good deal on the Senate floor, but outside of that it has not been discussed so far as I know," said the majority leader.

As Tobey persisted in demands for Senate anticonvoy action, he asked if his resolution was being "smothered" at the request of "persons in high authority, such as the White House." Barkley replied that the President had never broached the subject, and angrily chided Tobey for "day-by-day" demands that the Senate take "negative" action on a question that was not before it.

Earlier Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, challenged Tobey, contending that convoys cannot be ordered unless Congress amends the Neutrality Act.

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, echoed Tobey's convoy charges, asserting "there is tremendous pressure being brought to bear on the President to take this step."

Meantime, Chairman George, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Chairman Bland, of the House Merchant Marine Committee, introduced bills recommended by the President authorizing him to take over and pay for foreign merchant vessels lying idle in United States ports.

Draft Age Limits May Be Reduced value in combat than men 18 to 30.

Objective of a revised selective service law, President Roosevelt told his press conference, is to achieve a regularized system with lower age limits and a certain span of years during which young men can serve their year of training.

This kind of Selective Service system could be attained after the present law has filled emergency manpower needs.

After getting an adequate number in the first instance, Mr. Rooseveit said, the Selective Service system carries along pretty well, and there might not have to be any radical changes in the age limits.

The question of extension of service beyond one year has not been discussed, the President said, in reply to questions.

Noting talk about all citizens giving the country a year of service, the President said such a proposal was not a bad idea. He recalled that he had previously said all persons would be a lot better off for such an experience.

Legislation which would restrict the ages of recruits to 18 to 21, inclusive, is pending in Congress. It is known as the American Legion bill.

The names of 45 Washington residents to be inducted into the Army today were announced yesterday at local selection headquarters as:

Athens, April 15 (AP).—German troops smashing deep into the Allied left and center on the northern Grecian battle front reached the western outlet of Siatista Pass today, the Greek spokesman announced tonight, and thus surmounted a formidable obstacle in their thrust to the south.

The pass, which is at the town of that name south of the Yugoslav border and some 50 miles within Greece, provides an opening in a 6,000-foot mountain range beyond which lies a stretch of considerably easier country.

(The spokesman's language indicated what was not expressly stated: That the Germans had traversed the pass and were free beyond it.)

In earlier operations, it was added, the Nazis had occupied the Vlacho-Klisura Pass, which lies some 20 miles to the north of Siatista.

The Greek command said "ordered movements of our troops toward new positions" were carried out in western Macedonia, that local Italian offensives in Albania were thrown back with serious losses and that ten enemy planes were shot down during the day.

The Greek spokesman said four officers and 100 men were captured by the Greeks following the German-Italian operations in northern Greece and in Albania.

He said the Italians were repulsed in attacks north of the Aoos River and at two points south of the river.

Nazi forces, which had broken the apex of the Allied line in the region of Phlorina, already had been reported striking at the towns of Kozane and Siatista, although earlier Greek advices had said that they were being heavily assaulted by machine-gun and artillery fire from Greeks entrenched in the mountains and that the advance had been all but halted.

British imperials holding a reformed line on the Allied right were declared to have thrown back repeated lunges by Nazi mechanized forces.

Thirty persons were killed and 50 injured when German planes bombed Trikkala in central Greece, the Greek ministry of public security reported.

Larissa, northern mountain town recently devastated by an earthquake, also was attacked by waves of bombers, the communique said.

Three German planes were shot down there and an Italian plane destroyed during an attack on the island of Crete, the ministry added.

Reports from the front indicated that the Germans—struggling heavily with their steel machines in the harsh and rugged terrain and fighting, by coincidence, almost due east of the battlefield of the Pindus Mountains where the Greeks had cut Italian units to pieces last November—were suffering heavy casualtfes.

The Greeks, however, appeared threatened, too, by a southward Italian advance which already had forced a Greek withdrawal from Koritza, Albania, one of the great prizes taken in their older war with the Fascists.

Abandonment of the town was made necessary, the Greek command announced, by the fact that the German occupation of southern Yugoslavia had opened passes to the Greek flanks and rear.

Greek sources declared that the withdrawal was discovered by the Axis only after it had been for 24 hours in motion.

In the air, the British reported heavy continuing assaults on the German columns and announced also that Sofia, the capital of German-occupied Bulgaria, had been heavily raided Sunday night and Monday morning. Many fires were set off, it was stated, and in one freight yard two rows of trucks exploded with such blasts that it appeared they had been loaded with explosives.

The destruction of "many" Nazi transport vehicles headed down the Grecian peninsula was claimed, and it was declared that great damage had been wrought to German convoys in the Kozane fighting area.

The British-Greek line, which originally ran northwest from Mount Olympus on the east to Phlorina, and westward to the Albanian coast, had to be reformed further within Greece owing to the Allied withdrawal at the center. The line was heavily reinforced during the day by fresh Greek and British forces.

ONE cloudless night in June, 1940, just a few days before the invasion of France, the French S. S. Ringulv quietly slipped out of the harbor of Havre. Hugging the coast line, the freighter warily made for Casablanca, Africa. After being in port there for three months, our odyssey follows with a perilous journey from Africa to the Island of Martinique and then to the friendly harbor of New York. Through mined waters, the brave ship Ringulv ran the triple threat of blockade, submarine and high seas and finally succeeded in discharging her crates on the docks of New York after a dangerous voyage of nearly a year. To our amazement and delight, we have just received a major portion of this cargo, representing an order which we placed in the fall of 1939. We can hardly expect such good fortune again for a long time, but for the present we now have a goodly supply of the world's finest Still and Sparkling Burgundies from the vineyards of France. D.A.R. History Is Unrolled In Pageant

The pageant of D. A. R. history for the past 51 years since its founding unfolded before more than 5,000 persons last night in Constitution Hall.

Garbed in colorful period costumes, members of the organization paraded through the hall to the music of the United States Army Band Orchestra and mounted the platform.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., national president, played the role of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the President who was instrumental in the organization's founding.

The founding of the organization, the Spanish-American War period, the World War era and a look into the future made up the scenes of the pageant. With a few additions, it was the same pageant as was presented last year. Selections were rendered by the George Washington University Glee Club.

The roles and the women playing them were:

Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr.; Mrs. Mary Virginia E. Cabell, Mrs. John Logan Marshall; Mrs. Ellen Mardin Wailworth, Miss Page Schwarzwaelder; Miss Eugenia Washington, Mrs. Frank Leon Mason; Miss Clara Barton, Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser; Mrs. John W. Foster, Mrs. George D. Schermerhorn; Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex; Mrs. Daniel Manning, Mrs. Joseph Taylor Young.

Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, Mrs. Frederick Palmer Latimer; Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Willard Steele; Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, Miss Marion D. Mullins; Mrs. William Cumming Story, Mrs. John S. Heaume; Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig; Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, Miss Marion D. Mullins.

Mrs. Robert J. Johnston, taken by herself; Mrs. Mary Smith Lockwood, Mrs. Leland Stanford Duxbury; Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig; Mrs. George Maynard Minor, by herself; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, Miss Emeline A. Street; Mrs. Grace L. H. Brosseau, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, Mrs. Russell William Magna and Mrs. William A. Becker, taken by themselves.

William Barnett Declared Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday after he had investigated the death of William H. Barnett, 71, of 1926 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

The man was found unconscious in the Hay Loft, a small club room, behind his home. Three burners on a small gas stove were open but unlighted, police said. Burham W. Johnston, attendant at a parking lot adjoining the loft, discovered Barnett when he investigated what he thought was a gas leak.

Police were told Barnett was released Monday from Doctor's Hospital, where he had undergone treatment. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Barnett, said her husband had been depressed because of ill health.

D. A. R. Junior Section Elects Mrs. Richards

Mrs. Willard F. Richards, of West Newton, Mass., was elected chairman of the 1942 Junior Assembly of the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday afternoon in Continental Hall, to succeed Mrs. Charles W. Dickenson, of Denver, Colo.

Junior membership has increased by 1,200 in the past year, Mrs. George D. Schermerhorn, national chairman of Juniors, reported. A total of 354 junior members is attending at the current Continental Congress.

The Rev. William T. Francis, executive secretary of Carr Creek Community Center in Kentucky, spoke to the assembly yesterday on its work in preserving American principles among high school students there. The assembly presented a scholarship to the center yesterday.

Other officers elected were Lois Lentz, Texas; Rose Richardson, Oregon; Janice Fargo, Nebraska; Marion Brookee, Michigan; Mrs. Arthur James, Missouri; Mrs. Sidney Stewart, Utah, vice chairmen; Sally Abernathy, Florida, recording secretary; Elizabeth Dunn, Illinois, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charlotte Sayre, West Virginia, treasurer; Edna Millward, Washington, editor of Echoes magazine; Mrs. H. H. Robbins, North Carolina, junior page editor, National Historical magazine; Mrs. H. R. Frankenburg, Ohio, Helen Pouch Memorial Scholarship Fund chairman; Mrs. Thomas Hoffman, Pennsylvania, registration chairman; Mrs. Lee McCahren, South Dakota, exhibits chairman.

District 'Suffrage' Hearing by Senate Unit Opens Today

Hearings on the Capper-Sumners District "suffrage" resolution will open at 10 a. m. today in the Senate District Committee room at the Capitol.

The first witness before a subcommittee headed by Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, will be Lawrence F. Schmeckebier, a member of the staff of the Brookings Institution, who has made studies of the history of the various forms of District government in the past and has recommended the commission-city manager type for the Capital.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, coauthor of the resolution to amend the Constitution to authorize Congress to give the District National representation and a measure of self-government, will be another witness. Several former District Commissioners as well as the present Commissioners also have been called.

pear. Others come from the press each month," she said, expressing regret that the National Society of the D. A. R. itself could not have prepared such a primer.

Although Mrs. Robert did not read the report in full, these and other points on education for citizenship were incorporated in the version that was filed.

"The rapid building up" of the D. A. R. endowment fund to provide for expanded activities was urged in her report, as she recounted achievements of her three-year administration, climaxed by the Golden Jubilee Year.

"A truly magnificent start," totaling $20,244.48 for the fund, has been made in connection with the fiftieth anniversary, she said, declaring a greater fund was needed because "the period of making large individual gifts to the National Society is rapidly passing" and because "national dues cannot be increased."

Mrs. Geagley to Report

Among members' gifts made through the Society to war relief, she pointed out $6,500 "for specific purposes, including American Ambulance, Great Britain, Ltd. . . . a mobile canteen unit completely equipped, cots for shelters."

She hinted also at "an interesting new gift" for war relief, to be announced later this week. A fuller report on the society's aid will be made at this morning's session by Mrs. B. H. Geagley, representing a subcommittee cooperating with the American Red Cross.

Collection of books for service men in training camps was advocated as a new project for D. A. R. chapters, in the report of Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson, of Chicago, librarian general, yesterday.

After reports from national officers at yesterday's business session at Constitution Hall, memorial pilgrimages followed in the afternoon to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery and to the tomb of George and Martha Washington at Mount Vernon.

Officers Act in Pageant

A pageant tracing the 50 years of the D. A. R. was presented last night in Constitution Hall, with national officers playing the roles of pioneer members. Mrs. Robert represented Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, President Harrison's wife, who was first head of the D. A. R.

The national defense theme of the congress will be sounded repeatedly at today's sessions. E. W. Loveridge, assistant chief, U. S. Forest Service, will speak on "Conservation in National Defense" at the morning session, at which Miss Mabel T. Boardman, secretary, American Red Cross, will discuss "The Red Cross in War Relief." At the afternoon session Miss Martha Berry, of Georgia, noted educator, will speak on "Education for Defense," along with the appearance of boys and girls from several D. A. R. schools.

Nominations for national officers of the D. A. R. will be made at tonight's session, when candidates will take a bow from the stage as their names are called. No dark horse has yet appeared to contest the candidacy of Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York City, for president general and her slate of 13 candidates for other offices. Six candidates so far are competing for the four positions as vice president general at large.

First report of the resolutions committee by its chairman, Miss Emeline A. Street, is eagerly awaited at this morning's session.

Golden Jubilee Gifts

Among the Golden Jubilee gifts of the D. A. R. in various sections of the country Mrs. Robert named "health houses," model farm, open-air theater, avenues of trees, hospital and dispensary furnishings, library shelves of American history, historic restorations, rotating museum exhibits, forests of pines, memorial driveways, units of rooms in the new high school at Tamassee, gifts to endowment fund, increase in scholarships and student loan funds, marking of historic spots, aid to crippled children's clinic, census records preserved.

A total of 3,043 officers, delegates and alternates had registered at the latest report, Mrs. Keyser Fry, chairman of the credentials committee, told the business session yesterday.

Mrs. George D. Schermerhorn, organizing secretary general, reported that there are now a total of 2,854 chapters. In the past three years covering this administration, 75 new chapters were organized and 31 disbanded, a net gain of 44.

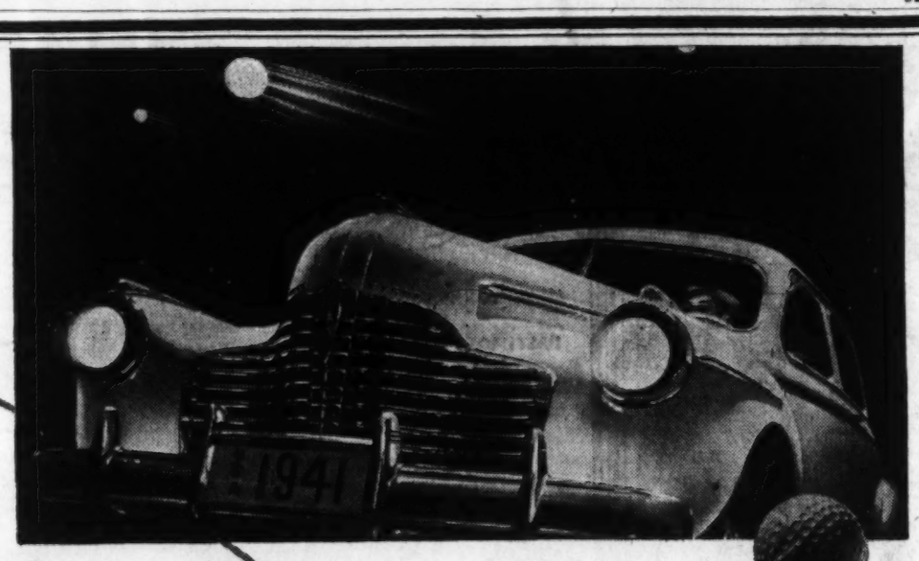
WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM



Why does a Golf Ball bounce?

EVER notice that a golf ball, when you drop it, bounces higher than something hollow, like a tennis ball?

Know why?

It's partly because of internal pressures, which also have so much to do with Buick's extra FIREBALL power.

Rubber threads inside a golf ball are packed tight, highly compressed.

When flattened against a hard object they come back harder, with more push, and so the ball bounces higher.

A similar thing happens inside a Buick FIREBALL straight-eight cylinder.

Fuel compression pressures – which are even more important than compression ratios – are higher here than in any other standard-production automobile engine.

So when the spark jumps in the tightly-packed, fuel-fat ball of gas-mixture at the top of the stroke – the Buick piston goes rushing down with more push, more shove, more power than the same amount of fuel gives up elsewhere.

What that means is pretty important if you go for life and action and real competence in your cars.

It's important if you're interested in thrift – for every Buick engine travels farther per gallon this year than the same-size engines did last year, while Compound Carburetion† with Buick FIREBALL design gives as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon.

In fact, if you're buying any car this year, it's pretty important to see and drive a Buick before you're through; it's Number One in smart engineering as well as Number One in solid, rock-bottom, all-round VALUE!

The Gallup Poll

Majority in Favor of Letting College Men Finish Courses Before Being Drafted

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., April 15.—Should young men in college be excused from the draft in order to finish their college course? This question is being widely discussed in universities from coast to coast, as educational institutions face the problem of a tremendous drop in enrollment next year if these young bachelors are called into service.

At present the Selective Service ruling is that students will not be taken from colleges during the current academic year, so that any student with a low draft number would not have to be called until June. A lively controversy has sprung up over whether they should be drafted at all until they have completed theri college education.

Arguments on Two Sides

On the one side is the argument that the country needs college trained men for future leadership and that nothing should be allowed to interfere with this training. But on the other side is the argument that college men should not be granted any special privileges, that they should be required to make just as much sacrifice as other young men do when they give up good jobs to answer the muster roll.

The Institute has placed the controversy before the American public in a Nation-wide survey. On any question pertaining to the draft, the attitude of the public is of paramount importance because the draft army is, in every sense, a people's army.

The survey posed the question: "Should college students be permitted to finish their present college course before being drafted into the army?"

The results show an overwhelming vote in the affirmative.

YES	69%
NO	31

Only one person in 17, on the average, was without an opinion on this issue.

A second question was asked in the survey pertaining to students who are now enrolled in engineering and medicine—specialized work which is useful both in war and in peace.

"Should students studying to be doctors and engineers be permitted to finish their present training course before being drafted into the army?"

YES	87%
NO	13

Approximately one voter in every ten had no opinion on this issue.

Brains Needed

The argument of the majority of voters is that the completion of a college course would make a man more useful to the country than would a year in the Army or Navy.

Those who oppose exemptions for college students insist that it is unfair discrimination to excuse a man just because he's lucky enough to be in college.

In many institutions the students are automatically receiving military drill in either army or navy units at the present time.

One group of educators advocates the establishment of a special Army-Navy training corps, with students attending a certain number of academic courses and receiving credit along with military training.

This plan is frowned upon by the army, which feels that all military training must be done in regular army camps, without privileges for college men.

Post Window Art Shows Contrasts

An interesting comparison of different art treatments of the same subject in the same medium is available in The Washington Post's art window this week.

Artists Karl Bauman and Tom E. Lewis both live in San Francisco, both work in water color, and both submitted paintings of flowers in a vase. But the results, as shown in The Post window, are entirely different.

The third painting this week, also from the Section of Fine Arts water color competition, is Theodore Schewe's "Verplanck-on-Hudson."

Defense Labor Board Gets Chance to Prevent Walkout

The National Defense Mediation Board yesterday was given the first test of its powers to prevent a dispute from materializing into a strike when the Labor Department certified, along with two full-fledged stoppages, a walkout scheduled for last night in two plants of the Minneapolis Moline Power Implement Co.

Acting emmediately to avert the strike, Board Chairman Clarence A. Dykstra wired representatives of the company and of the C. I. O. United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers to continue production on the promise of "an early hearing" of the case before the board.

Reaction of the disputants to the requests was not immediately ascertained.

The plants, which employ 2,100 workers, are located in Minneapolis and Hopkins, Minn., and manufacture structural iron and steel and machine shells on defense contracts. Issues of the dispute are higher wages and a preferential shop.

The union filed notice of intent to strike on March 6, in accordance with the Minnesota State law calling for a 30-day cooling off period. A three-man investigating board was appointed by the Governor, but its report, filed April 4, failed to effect a settlement.

In identical telegrams to both sides, Dykstra said:

"This case will be set for an early hearing by this board. In the interests of national defense, this board requests that there be no stoppages of operations pending the board's effort to adjust points in dispute and settle this controversy."

The other strikes certified involved:

The American Potash & Chemical Co., of Trona, Calif., where 1,000 workers have been idle since March 14 on a strike over wages called by the C. I. O. Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. The company manufactures chemicals for explosives and glass for medical purposes.

Fifty machine shops in the San Francisco area, struck by the A. F. of L. International Association of Machinists since April 7, and making about 3,600 workers idle. The shops, members of the California Metal Trades Association, hold defense subcontracts. The dispute is over wage increases.

The board, however, suffered a rejection of one of its strike-ending proposals last night. More than 1,400 members of the C. I. O.'s United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers voted down a proposal worked out by a board panel that they return to work at once at the Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corporation plant in New Jersey while the board continued negotiations over knotty points at issue. Both union and management representatives in the negotiations had agreed to the plan. The union membership last night voted for resumption of negotiations under board auspices, looking to signing of a contract.

Earlier in the day the board announced the appointment of Ralph T. Seward, of New York, as executive secretary. Seward, a great-grandnephew of Lincoln's Secretary of State William H. Seward, has served since November, 1939, as chairman of the Board of Immigration Appeals of the Justice Department.

Previously, Seward was general counsel and executive secretary of the New York State Labor Relations Board and formerly was employed as review attorney and later regional attorney in the Los Angeles office of the National Labor Relations Board.

The board also revealed yesteday that meetings in the case of the Cowles Tool Co., on strike since Febuary 27, were being carried on in Cleveland, under the direction of David Roadley, Federal conciliator, who is acting as special board representative. Roadley was instrumental in working out a tentative agreement for a settlement at the neighboring Cleveland plant of the Standard Tool Co.

The board said attempts are being made to settle the Cowles dispute under the same procedure and on the same principles that applied to the Standard strike. If no agreement has been reached by tonight, the board indicated, the conference will be brought back from Cleveland before a board panel here.

5-Cent Increase Recommended In Textile Pay

An industry committee voted unanimously yesterday to recommend a 37½-cent-an-hour minimum wage for 440,000 workers in the cotton textile industry.

In addition to the cotton textile industry about 200,000 workers in silk and rayon, linen and jute manufacturing establishments would be covered by the minimum which must be approved by the wage-hour administrator, Brig. Gen. Philip B. Bleming, before it would become effective.

The recommended minimum wage is 5 cents above the present minimum. Labor Department officials estimated a total of 290,000 workers would receive a wage increase, if the recommendations were carried out.

Officials of the wage-hour division said the proposed order would affect by far the largest number of workers of any order to date.

Previously, spokesmen for manufacturers and employes in the cotton garment industry recommended establishment of a 40-cent-an-hour minimum wage for workers in that industry.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union (C. I. O.) in a brief contended that a 40-cent minimum would not curtail employment opportunities or affect consumer demand, and wage-hour officials said most of the garment manufacturers' spokesmen testified at a hearing in favor of a 40-cent rate.

The hearing was conducted by a special committee for the single pants, shirts and allied garments industry. A formal wage order will be issued on the basis of whatever the committee recommends as economically feasible for the industry.

The National Association of Shirt and Pajama Manufacturers, New York, was the chief opponent of the 40-cent rate, wage-hour officials said, and was reported to have argued that the base rate should not be fixed any higher than 35 cents an hour.

Hitler Is Merely Symptom of Times, Evangelist Says

The Rev. E. Stanley Jones, evangelist in India, last night declared that "Hitler is only a symptom" of an era of international lawlessless.

Only by ridding the world of the "half-gods" of rule by force, might, and selfishness can the world do away with the threat of Hitlerism, the evangelist declared.

He said the world in its present state of turmoil because of present tendencies to compromise between right and wrong, holding "double allegiances." Mr. Jones spoke at First Congregational Church.

Former U. S. Warship In Raid on Norway

London, April 15 (AP).—The former United States destroyer Mansfield, one of four turned over to the Norwegian government-in-exile by the British, was used by the Norwegian navy Friday night in a raid on fish oil factories at Oeksfjord, Norway, it was disclosed today.

The destroyer was still operating under its American name.

Southern Coal Operators Decline Bid of Miss Perkins

By the Associated Press

A Labor Department spokesman said yesterday that representatives of the Southern coal operators had turned down the appeal from Secretary Perkins to rejoin the Appalachian soft coal wage conference in New York. They had withdrawn fromthe conference Friday in a disagreement over North-South wage differentials.

The Secretary's request was to a committee of five Southern operators headed by Ebersole Gaines shortly after her return from a conference in New York with the Northern operators and the United Mine Workers Union.

The Southern group is satnding pat against any removal of wage differentials between North and South coal areas. The Southern group organized a wage conference of its own here yesterday and proposed that the union accept an 11 per cent wage increase and reopen the mines at once.

President Roosevelt expressed renewed hope that soft coal mining would be resumed on a normal basis. He told a press conference he did not know whether the controversy would wind up before the Defense Mediation Board.

Army Survey Ordered

Growing War Department concern lest the strike disrupt the defense program was manifest yesterday when the department ordered a survey of the steel industry's remaining coal supplies.

It was learned the department instructed its district offices at Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago and Birmingham to contact steel companies in those areas, about 80 per cent of the industry, to determine how much coal they have on hand and whether steel production is in danger of delay.

Representative Satterfield (Democrat), Virginia, demanded in a telegram to Secretary Perkins that the coal strike be certified to the National Mediation Board immediately.

District Shortage

"It must be evident to the Secretary of Labor," he said, "as a result of the conference which I am advised you attended last night in New York City between the Northern Coal Operators and John L. Lewis, representing the United Mine Workers, that strikes in both the North and South have not only developed a distinct coal shortage in many plants and industries, but further that this situation is of such serious import that the whole matter should forthwith be certified to the Mediation Board appointed by President Roosevelt.

"It is becoming increasingly evident," he added, "to the citizens of this country that Mr. Lewis is far more interested in carrying on his feud with the President than he is in cooperating in matters of defense."

Similar views were voiced on the floor by Representatives Robertson (Democrat), of Virginia, and Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia.

Robertson said it was Hitler's boast that he "would not have to make a military attack on us, because before that was necessary we would fall from internal wars."

The strike in the coal fields, he said, is "vitally affecting the defense program."

Woodrum interrupted to remark that the situation had reached the point of deadlock and certification to the Mediation Board was essential.

Peace Efforts Proceed

New York, April 15 (AP).—Efforts to untangle the intricate soft coal tie-up and reopen at least a major portion of the country's bituminous mines moved laboriously forward today as labor, management and the Government considered a possible contract for the Northern Appalachian industry.

Negotiators for union miners and the Northern operators met again with Dr. John R. Steelman, chief Federal conciliator, who announced some progress had been made on "details" of a contract, and recessed until a later night session.

Henderson and Aides Weigh Action on Prices of Steel

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, and top officials of the new agency were closeted in a day-long discussion yesterday on steel prices, provoking speculation that price orders on the key industry might soon be forthcoming.

Officials were tightlipped following the conference, and it was learned only that no final decision has been reached, with Henderson as yet undecided whether to freeze steel prices at present levels, to allow some increases due to higher pay roll costs, to call for some other regulatory measures or to take no action whatsoever at this time.

The picture on steel mill wages, which precipitated the question of price increases, emerged in clear-cut detail yesterday as six more large mills and four smaller shops followed the lead begun by National Steel Corporation, joined by Bethlehem Steel Co., and capped by U. S. Steel Corporation Monday to grant 10 cents an hour wage increases.

500,000 Get More Pay

The increases, retroactive to April 1, were granted by the Wheeling Steel Corporation, with 26,000 employes; Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corporation, 8,000 employes; Pittsburgh Steel Corporation, 6,000 employes; Copperweld Steel Co., 2,400; the American Rolling Mill Co. and the Lukens Steel Co., 4,000 employes.

In addition, the Simonds Saw & Steel Co., with 400 employes, and the Lebanon Steel Foundry, with 750 employes, granted similar agreements, and "oral agreements" of like nature were said to have been negotiated by the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee for the Pittsburgh Tube Co., with 500 workers, and the A. M. Byers Co., with 1,000 employes.

As in "Big Steel," the increases boost the pay from $5 to $5.80 for an 8-hour day. Increases have been extended to an estimated 500,000 workers.

C. I. O. Plans Clean-up Drive

Carrying on the drive, Philip Murray, C. I. O. president and chairman of the S. W. O. C., arranged to begin negotiations today with Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation for a wage increase covering an additional 24,000 workers. Plans were also announced for a "clean-up" drive by the C. I. O. to gain the 10 cents an hour boost in all the other, smaller companies with which the S. W. O. C. has contracts.

Steel officials freely predicted that the wage increases would be followed by higher steel prices, perhaps before the start of the third quarter July 1.

Quotations for the second quarter have been withheld so far, and the industry is operating on a day-to-day basis.

Not only because of the enormous importance of the steel industry to the Nation's economic life, but also because steel has long been an industrial bell-weather and barometer, Henderson's determination will be of ke yimportance not only insofar as it relates to steel but also as a "test case" setting the course of prices for other defense business.

$1 Jump Expected

Furthermore, as the first and most important specific problem of the new agency, whatever action, or lack of it, OPACS takes on steel is expected to indicate the Administration's technique and philosophy on the whole problem of defense-bred inflationary threats.

If all the pay roll increase in steel is passed on to the price of the product, a rise of about $2 a ton of steel ignots would ensue. Observers of the industry, however, have been anticipating a jump of only about $1.

Two Coal Company Officials, Two Miners Are Slain in Bloody Harlan Gun Battle

By the Associated Press

Middlesboro, Ky., April 15.—A hail of bullets on a dark mountainside road killed four men—including the president and vice president of a coal mine—and wounded possibly 20 others today in this month's third life-taking outburst of violence in southern Appalachian coal fields.

Eight wounded men were taken to hospitals from the scene of the shooting near the Kentucky-Tennessee line, on a road leading from Middlesboro to the Fork Ridge Coal Co. mine in Tennessee, about 1 mile from the border. Another 15 or 20 men received first aid.

The dead:

C. W. Rhodes, 48, of Middlesboro, president of the mine company and of the American Association, a bituminous mining group which founded Middlesboro.

No Arrests Made

E. W. Silvers, 45, Middlesboro, vice president and treasurer of the Fork Ridge Coal Co.

Bob Robinson, 38, Tazewell, Tenn., a deputy sheriff of Claiborne County, Tenn., and a former Tennessee highway patrolman.

Sam Evans, 48, a miner employed at a mine nearby in Kentucky.

No arrests had been made late today.

Nine deaths have occurred in the region during the current work stoppage of Appalachian area mines following the failure of negotiations of the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.) with operators for a work contract to succeed one which expired April 1. On the day of the expiration a mine guard was shot fatally in Harlan County and the next day gunfire cost four lives at the Crummies Creek Mine, also in Harlan County.

100 Carloads of Men in Fight

Patrolman Guy Harrell, of Middlesboro, said today's shooting occurred after approximately 100 automobile and truckloads of miners—many of them in cars bearing Harlan County license plates—drove out of here toward the Fork Ridge workings "shortly after midnight and tried to get the mine to shut down."

Safety Experts Urged to Teach Defense Workers

Coordination of the work of safety experts and training officers in national defense industries was urged last night to minimize time lost through industrial accidents, which last year amounted to more than 200,000,000 man-hours.

The plan to intensify safety work in industry was developed by Government safety experts at a joint meeting of the Society for Personnel Administration and the Washington Safety Society in the Commerce Department library.

Methods of including safety education in job training were discussed by Walter Dietz, OPM assistant director of training within industry; Lawrence B. Tipton, director of public safety at Rutgers University; Edward R. Granniss, of the National Conservation Bureau; Winston B. Stephens, coordinator of training, C. S. C., and William T. Cameron, chief safety adviser of the Labor Department.

During 1940, more than 17,000 workers lost their lives, 93,000 were permanently crippled and 1,225,000 lost an average of 20 days each through industrial accidents, it was pointed out.

Rickenbacker May Quit Hospital by May 31

Atlanta, Ga., April 15 (INS).—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, World War ace who was critically injured six weeks ago in an airliner crash, probably will be discharged from the hospital before the end of next month, attending physicians said today.

The statement was made after the cast, which had encased Rickenbacker's leg and hip since the crash, was removed.

is rolling!

THE new defense program means everyone will have to work harder and longer and faster. Factories producing the small things — the things you never see, but without which the big things would never get built—must keep ahead of schedule to prevent bottle necks, to prevent slowing down the entire program. Timken, producing roller bearings—the heart of American war machines and of almost every machine tool — will not lag.

Last year Timken invested many million dollars in expansion and improvements. New machines. New steel-making equipment. New buildings.

And the expansion is going forward in 1941 to meet America's cry for speed—and more speed—in armament building.

War these days is war on the run. Fast moving, smooth going, no stopping for repairs; for there is no time to spare. Industry in peace time discovered that the best protection against "time out" in fast-moving machines is the tapered roller bearing. The heart of mechanized equipment for defense is the same roller bearing.

Making this defense equipment are machine tools and steel rolling mills that work faster and more dependably because heavy duty, tapered roller bearings are there to absorb the punishment of twenty-four hour duty.

Our job is supplying those bearings, as we have supplied them to industry for 43 years.

And Timken is rolling along with the wheels of industry everywhere in America.

United Gas Told By SEC to Cut Off Ten Subsidiaries

The Securities Commission yesterday formally ordered the United Gas Improvement Co. to sever its relationship with 10 subsidiary utility companies within one year.

This action constituted another step in the integration proceedings against the $837,000,000 system under the so-called "death sentence" of the utility act, and narrowed the remaining issues to nonutility subsidiaries and utility subsidiaries in the Pennsylvania-Delaware-Maryland area in which the "primary" system is located.

The U. G. I. last week sold its controlling interest in one of the companies named in yesterday's order—the Connecticut Light & Power Co.

The other companies named were the Arizona Power Corporation, Concord Gas Co. (N. H.), Manchester Gas Co. (N. H.), the Wyandotte County (Kans.) Gas Co., Nashville (Tenn.); Gas & Heating Co., New Haven (Conn.) Gas Light Co., the Hartford (Conn.) Gas Co., Connecticut Railway & Lighting Co. and the Bridgeport (Conn.) Gaslight Co.

Time to Face Tax 'Realities,' Senate Told

Urging pay-as-you-go taxation to finance the Nation's defense costs, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan told the Senate yesterday that Congress "cannot evade or avoid the unpleasant task of soon reaching into every American pocketbook for new and heavy contributions."

As House Ways and Means Committee representatives prepared to open talks with the Treasury on increased taxes to finance defense spending, Vandenberg cited comparative figures for Great Britain, Canada and Australia.

Vandenberg placed in the record a letter from Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan showing that Great Britain was raising about 40 per cent of its present expenditures by taxation, Australia about 100 per cent and Canada about 50 per cent.

He said the United States is "probably not better than on a 20 per cent pay-as-you-go basis." Declaring it is time the American people began to face "grim realities" of the problem, Vandenberg said heavy increases are in order if the United States is to "partially meet our defense expenditures." He called the Sullivan letter "a preview of what we ourselves confront."

Vandenberg said that a married person with two children and an annual income of $5,000 paid $75 income tax in the United States, $1,196 in Great Britain, $1,052 in Australia and $391 in Canada.

"These taxes," he said, "are only a part of the burden which is borne by those other English-speaking democracies now engaged in battle."

Early Morning Drill Put On By Signal Unit

By the Associated Press

Fort George G. Meade, Md., April 15.—The Twenty-ninth Signal Company, a unit of the Twenty-ninth Division's special troops from Norfolk, Va., added some early morning outside training to its routine today.

Members of the company, under Lieut. E. E. Moodispaw, acting commander, arose at 3:30 o'clock and went on a motorized maneuver which took them nearly to Annapolis and back to Fort Meade by 6 a. m.

At the Annapolis end of the trip a field radio was quickly set up and contact established with another station operating from the company's headquarters. After an exchange of messages, the 15-vehicle column of trucks and reconnaissance cars returned to camp.

It was the first maneuver of its type held here by the company.

Another division unit, a battalion of the 121st Engineers Regiment from Washington, began bayonet training and grenade practice today.

During the past few days a number of new men have been assigned to special troops units. Seventeen selectees have joined the 104th Ordnance Company and the Twenty-ninth Military Police Company will be up to full strength by the week-end, with the arrival of 80 men from other divisional units.

The Military Police Company, under the command of Capt. Donald Falk, is a Washington group, but the new forces are coming from nearly every regiment in the division.

Meanwhile, Montgomery County police last night were investigating a fire which destroyed a two-story frame house at Martinsburg, near Poolesville, Md., yesterday. The house was used for storing valuable furniture by C. F. Stone, but was not occupied.

Fire Spread From Woods

Police said that Gaithersburg (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department members had notified them that the fire spread from the adjoining woods of Fred Grimm. Police were investigating to ascertain whether there was any carelessness. Chief Newman recently announced that all fires spreading from one property to another would be investigated and prosecution ordered where carelessness was found.

Silver Spring, Sandy Spring and Kensington volunteer firemen battled four hours to control a 35-acre fire on the properties of Joseph Childs and George McCeney at Burnt Mills.

Aid for China Is U. S. Reply To Tokyo Pact

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

A promise of prompt lend-lease aid to China—America's answer to the Soviet-Japanese pact—was delivered yesterday by President Roosevelt.

With Harry L. Hopkins officially recognized as Mr. Roosevelt's supervising agent for the $7,000,000,000 aid program, the President disclosed at a press conference that a list of Chinese military needs was being analyzed and that some of the requests were already being processed through the lend-lease administrative machinery.

Nothing has happened lately, the President said, which would change the United States policy of aiding nations that resist aggression. That includes China, he said. Newsmen received the statement as reffirmation of the American Government's view that United States policy will be firmly maintained in the face of the new agreement between Moscow and Tokyo.

The Presidential declaration on aid to China was the sequel to a conference he held earlier in the day with Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese Ambassador, and Dr. T. V. Soong, president of the Bank of China.

Exchange of Letters

At the same time, the President revealed that he will confer this week with Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada. Conferences he held with the Canadian premier last year led to the American pledge to defend the Dominion, which has now been reinforced by active United States-Canadian defense cooperation. King will visit here on vacation this month, the President said. Press dispatches said Mackenzie King left Ottawa yesterday for Washington.

Formal designation of Hopkins as lend-lease supervisor, a task he has been performing since the law was signed last month came in an exchange of letters between the President and Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau.

Morgenthau wrote to advise the President that, due to passage of the lend-lease law which provides a single-order system of ordering supplies for home defense and aid to friendly nations, he was ending his work as chairman of a liaison committee to coordinate foreign war purchases with American defense. The committee, established December 6, 1939, included the Secretaries of War, Navy and the Treasury.

Committee Dissolved

The President's reply to Morgenthau dissolved the liaison committee and redistributed its duties in these words:

"Purchasing operations by all countries in the lend-lease area will be supervised by Harry Hopkins and such operations by all other countries which must necessarily involve considerations of foreign policy will be processed by the Department of State."

Morgenthau said that from July, 1940, to March, 1941, the liaison committee handled more than 2,000 requests for war supplies, of which over 1,000 were British, some 700 Dutch, with the balance representing the American republics and a few other countries, such as Russia, Portugal and Iran.

Some officials indicated that aid to China would be wider than military supplies. Large scale economic assistance was predicted. One official said that plans are being discussed for American sponsorship of a railroad paralleling the Burma Road.

Knox Sees Peril, Backs Vinson Bill

Secretary Knox suggested President Roosevelt might, if he called them to the White House, obtain an agreement from A. F. of L. and C. I. O. leaders not to call jurisdictional strikes during the emergency. Knox also proposed that labor unions be required to account annually "for every penny collected."

Representative Magnuson (Democrat), of Washington, in whose district lies the great Bremerton Navy Yard, queried Knox particularly about that part of the Vinson bill which would freeze open or closed shop conditions in defense industries. (The pending bill actually applies only to naval construction, but its sponsor, Chairman Vinson, of the Naval Affairs Committee, said he intends to amend it to embrace all defense work.)

"Do you believe it is advisable to freeze labor as it is?" asked the Washingtonian.

"In my judgment, it is," responded Knox, explaining that in an emergency period "we must not get into this very complex question of the closed shop."

Chairman Vinson interposed that the language of his bill dealing with preservation of the status quo is taken directly from President Wilson's World War proclamation, "which was agreed to by the A. F. L., the public and the employers."

"If it worked satisfactorily then, there's no reason why it shouldn't work now," he said; but Magnuson suggested that "there is a difference in the extent of unionization" between 1918 and 1941.

In a preliminary statement to the committee, Vinson explained his bill is designed to create machinery for the adjustment of defense labor disputes without strikes; to give statutory recognition to the Presidentially established National Mediation Board; to provide a "national policy" for labor disputes and to treat "the strike-breeding question of the closed shop" in the same manner as it had been handled by President Wilson.

"The American people are going to insist that during the present emergency, union membership shall not be made a condition of any individual's employment in the service and J. B. Matthews, research di-

An incomplete and informal poll of the Naval Affairs Committee indicate, meanwhile, that the bill stands a good chance of being favorably reported to the House this week.

The House Military Affairs Committee, which began an inquiry into labor aspects of the defense program last week, yesterday heard testimony from Donald M. Nelson, director of the purchasing division of the OPM, and J. B. Matthews, research director of the Dies Committee.

Nelson opposed legislation restricting labor's right to strike, and declared existing mediation machinery should be given a "thorough trial." The Mediation Board, he said, was doing a "perfectly amazing" job.

The burly OPM official observed that "there are three sides to every question: labor's side, management's side, and the truth."

Matthews told the Military Committee that Communist influence was prominent in the Ford, Allis-Chalmers, International Harvester, Harvill aircraft and Vultee strikes.

The witness asserted that, according to evidence presented to the Dies Committee, "about 40 per cent of the National leadership of the C. I. O. consists of Communist Party members or fellow travelers." He warned of the possibility of a Communist-inspired strike in the aluminum industry next week.

In a speech on the House floor yesterday, Representative Woodruff (Republican), of Michigan, said he was preparing legislation to prevent aliens from balloting in strike votes. There is "not the slightest reason," he said, "why aliens such as Harry Bridges should be permitted to assume positions of power in our Government, military establishment or our labor unions."

Representative Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania, also denounced, in a radio address last night, "a small group of self-seeking, alien-minded agitators" who, he said, were responsible for the loss of 14,000,000 man-days by strikes since June.

B. L. Lunsford Will Advise Folk Festival

Bascom Lamar Lunsford, accepted generally as the foremost authority on the folk songs and dances of the Appalachians, was a lawyer in North Carolina for many years. He still is, but hand in hand with the law there stepped an avocation, which about 15 years ago began to dominate his career. The story was told yesterday in the National Folk Festival offices.

This avocation was concerned with reviving and preserving the ballads and square dances that stemmed from pioneer days, both for the grace and pleasure inherent in performing them and as an element of folk history. Lunsford has made 315 recorded transcriptions of the old ballads from memory for the Columbia University Library, and for eight years has been a principal consultant with the National Folk Festival Association. Since 1927 he has directed the annual Mountain Folk Festivals in Asheville.

About 25 exponents of the mountain dances, directed by Mr. Lunsford, will come to Washington for the eighth annual National Folk Festival to be held in Constitution Hall May, 1, 2 and 3. These will include the Pigeon Valley Square Dance Team, which centers about Hayward County, N. C., and is famous all the way from the Blue Ridge to the Great Smokies. They will appear on the two programs of Thursday.

With them will be the Farmers' Federation String Band, to illustrate the old dance music, much of which is indigenous to the Appalachians and has been played there for more than a century.

Lunsford, who will remain in Washington until after the Festival, has been retained for lectures and demonstrations of the mountain music by various academic and social groups.

Papal Delegate Condemns Totalitarianism

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, yesterday denounced totalitarian leaders as "the prophets of false philosophies who have so perverted the idea of liberty as to lead multitudes to the breaking of every bond of honor and justice."

Speaking at a session of the National Federation of Catholic College Students Congress at Georgetown University, he declared, "In this way they have destroyed family ties, they have disregarded economic laws, they have rejected religious obligations and social duties."

"They pretend to justify these tenets by saying that the observance of such laws and duties is in reality a limitation of liberty," he accused.

The two-day congress was concluded last night with a banquet at which the Right Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Ready, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, read a speech that was to have been delivered by the Most Rev. Emmett M. Walsh, Bishop of Charleston. Bishop Walsh was unable to be present.

The congress resolved that all Catholic colleges of the country shall "unite spiritually by means of a novena for peace" beginning Ascension Thursday, May 22, and ending Pentecost Sunday, June 1.

Frank Horka, of Loyola College, Boston, was elected president of the federation, to succeed Gertrude Kirk. Named first, second and third vice presidents, respectively, were Ellen Duggan, of Mahattanville College, New York City; Raymond Cauley, of St. Vincent's College, Latrobe, Pa., and Mary Agnes Bier, of St. Mary's of the Woods College, Indiana. Gertrude Stevenson, of Immaculata College, Pa., was elected treasurer.

Motorist Slain in Va. Had Tire Changed Here

Less than eight hours before he met death at the hands of an assassin, Fred W. Boyce, 55, of Lansdowne, Pa., stopped in Washington to have a tire changed.

"He acted like he didn't have a care in the world," reported George L. Reno, of Capitol Heights, Md., who did the job in a service station at Rhode Island and Eastern Avenues about 3 p. m. Monday.

At 10:15 that night Boyce, a retired automobile dealer and World War veteran, was found dying beside Route 29, 23 miles north of Lynchburg, Va. He had been shot twice with a pistol, evidently by a hitchhiker who drove away in his car.

Boyce was en route from his home to Charleston, W. Va., and apparently had been forced off his course at gunpoint. Virginia State police and the F. B. I. are investigating.

Sea Power Will Win War, Says Halifax, Facing Ugly Facts

Copyright by New York Times

New York, April 15.—In a speech in which he hinted that additional American help to solve Britain's shipping problem would be welcomed, Viscount Halifax, the British Ambassador, survey tonight what he called the "ugly facts" of his nation's present situation.

"There is nothing to be gained by not looking them squarely in the face," he said.

Chief among these "ugly facts" were Axis advances in the Balkans and in North Africa. But the Ambassador held that "ebb and flow must always mark the tide of war," and he expressed confidence that Britain would not in the end go down "before so vile a thing as the Nazi system has shown itself to be."

Lord Halifax addressed a dinner of the English-Speaking Union, attended by 1,500 persons. He emphasized anew the British relief that eventually sea power will determine the outcome of the war.

Warns Against Propaganda

He sounded a warning against German propaganda that American aid will arrive too late.

"The battle is engaged," he said, "and, as has happened more than once before, Hitler is straining every nerve in an endeavor to undermine British morale and to discourage our friends by making them think their help will arrive too late."

The Ambassador referred to the fact that Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in his recent war survey, "gave good ground for thinking that the Battle of the Atlantic is a battle we can certainly win, provided that our joint resources are, to the full limits of our respective possibilities, brought to bear." And he added that President Roosevelt had made three moves of great practical value in determining the outcome of that battle.

The three moves, he explained, were the release of United States Coast Guard cutters to the British, the action to make available foreign shipping that had been lying idle in American ports, and the Presidential declaration that the Red Sea no longer was a combat zone.

"Whether at any time it may be within your power," the Ambassador continued, "to take further action to meet the situation as it develops, it is not for me to say."

Concerning the Balkans, Lord Halifax admitted that, although the situation was "still far from clear," the Germans had had a "large measure of initial success." In Africa the British, "well aware of the risks involved," weakened their forces to support Greece and Yugoslavia, and so had been driven back, although "a stream of reinforcements in men and material is steadily flowing into that theater," he declared.

Hand in hand with these reverses has come intensified efforts "to destroy our shipping and to break the morale of our people by night bombing," the Ambassador said.

As a result of the Balkan developments and of Italy's failure in Africa, the Ambassador said, Hitler has been forced "to send his legions into fields in which whatever success he may win, he cannot achieve that success against Great Britain which alone can win the war."

He declared that "Hitler is now faced by the spectacle, which is for him a specter, of the growing productive strength of the United States and the British Commonwealth, reflected in the increasing military resources that are being steadily marshaled against him on land and sea and in the air."

Thanking the United States for the aid it is giving, notably in the lease-lend law, the Ambassador said he wished he could convey "the feeling with which my countrymen have seen this new evidence that your people are firmly ranged with us to see that freedom shall not perish from the earth."

Roosevelt Commends CCC

The Civilian Conservation Corps "is a builder of the kind of men this Nation needs," President Roosevelt said last night in a message commending the corps' work in national defense, read at the organization's eighth anniversary dinner in the Mayflower.

More than 2,000 Government executives heard the President's message commend the CCC program as "benefiting and improving the health and usefulness of a sizable portion of this country's youth population."

Senator Elbert D. Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, principal speaker at the dinner, said that "the CCC's promise for the future in building man-power for defense is even greater than its history of the past."

"The corps has found a permanent place in the national scene" through its "highly successful" work in training youth and in conservation, he added.

Representative Jed Johnson (Democrat), of Oklahoma, contrasted the work of the C. C. C. in "serving the youth and the Nation with youth camps he visited in Germany in 1937, which bore over their gates the inscription "Born to die for Germany."

James J. McEntee, director of the C. C. C., told of the transition in the purpose of the organization from that of furnishing jobs to unemployed youth to training youth for other jobs in defense industries.

"Since its organization in 1933, the C. C. C. has trained more than 2,500,000 in useful occupations," he said.

Charles H. Taylor, assistant director of the corps, presided at the anniversary dinner. Benediction was pronounced by Col. Alva J. Brasted, retired Army chaplain.

Mrs. Ruth Decker, 32, of Minneapolis, Minn., hanged herself late yesterday with a Venetian blind cord in the apartment of her sister at 2121 Virginia Avenue Northwest.

Her sister, Miss Marjorie Davis, found the body when she returned to the apartment at 5:45 p. m.

Mrs. Decker, visiting here with her 9-year-old son and mother, had been in a nervous and despondent condition lately, her family reported, but seemed in fairly good spirits when her mother and son left the apartment about 3 p. m.

She was expecting her husband, a salesman in Minneapolis, to join her and their son soon, it was said.

The coroner, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, issued a certificate of suicide.

Police, Firemen May Get Rise

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, long an advocate of higher pay for Government employes, yesterday asked Congress to boost salaries of District firemen and members of the District, Park and White House police forces.

A bill introduced by the Senator would provide pay increases for 2,435 men.

The pay of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Metropolitan Police superintendent, and that of Stephen T. Porter, chief engineer of the fire department, would be boosted $500 a year to $8,500.

At the same time, the basic pay of all police and fire privates would be increased from $1,900 to $2,000 with provision for $200 yearly increases for five years or until a maximum of $3,000 has been reached.

Comparative tables of present and proposed pay rates follow:

Police Department

Boy, 10, Drowns In Rescue Effort

Orange, Va., April 15 (AP).—James Walke, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Walke, of Orange, was drowned in an abandoned quarry here this afternoon in attempting to rescue a younger brother, William, who had slipped into deep water.

The smaller boy was pulled to safety by a 10-year-old girl, Nancy Camper, who gave the alarm. It was understood that the three children were wading at the quarry edge when the accident occurred.

47 Indictments Handed Up By Grand Jury

Forty-seven indirtments were presented by the spring grand jury in its first report to the Distrirt Court yesterday.

Justice Oscar R. Luhring, who was in his chambers to handle emergency matters, presided over the brief court session in which the indictments were handed up. The court is in recess until next week.

Among those accused was John William Bailes, 42, Charlottesville, Va., mechanic, who was charged under an ancient statute making it an offense for a man to fail to support a destitute wife. When there are no children nonsupport cases usually are referred to the civil courts for disposition in maintenance suits. However, Mrs. Bailes is a patient in a hospital.

The charges against those indicted were:

Assault with dangerous weapon—James W. Palmer, 25, colored; Richard Johnson, 36, colored; Roosevelt Graves, 21, colored; Essie Lee Cobb, 23, colored; Ernest Pope, 30, colored; Lee R. Hendricks, 30; Ernest Johnson, 33, colored.

Mayhem—Essie Lee Cobb, 23, colored; Ernest Pope, 30, colored.

Nonsupport of wife—John William Bailes, 42.

Unauthorized use of automobile—Marshall W. Moore, 22, colored; Samuel R. Moore, 19, colored; Thomas Soon, 35, colored; Pleason Montague, 27, colored; Robert M. Johnson, 25, colored; James E. Brown, 32, colored; William C. Killebrew, 36; Louis A. Kirkland, 32; Lewis F. Taylor, 21, colored; Clarence Turner, 22, colored; Fred L. Satterwhite, 19.

Grand larceny—Fred L. Satterwhite, 19.

Housebreaking and larceny—James W. Thatcher, 19 (five indictments); Sam Lewis, 40, colored; Irving R. Haskins, 18, colored (four indictments); Alvin L. Frazier, 19, colored; John F. Curtis, jr., 19, colored.

Housebreaking—Courtney Whitney, 28.

Receiving stolen property—Robert L. Briggs, 29, colored.

Larceny from the District Government—Frank Fields, 61, colored.

Embezzlement—James J. Wright, 50.

Forging Government check—Earl S. Owens, 33, colored; James E. Craig, 22, colored; Evelyn Carter, 22, colored; Joe William Wood; Dorsia Burns, 39, colored.

Forgery and passing a forgery—Samuel A. Ellis, 41; Glenroy H. Toombs, 41; Florence C. Baker, 27.

Running a lottery and having numbers slips—Theodore Peter Nichols, 36; Clarence L. Ware, 36; Everett Jewell, 39.

Robbery—Stanley M. Hibdon, 21; Ethel Pulliam, 32, colored; Albert Fletcher, 27, colored.

Forging Government check—Frank T. Hunt.

Seduction—Jack D. Driskill, 22.

Robbery—Benjamin Simmons, 28, colored; Maggie Smith, 31, colored; Rufus Reed, 39, colored; John W. Copp, 28; Edward J. Warren, 25, colored.

Grand larceny—James D. Milton, 21, colored.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Frank Brown, 29, colored.

Hit-Run Car Injures Boy Riding Bicycle

A 9-year-old boy riding a bicycle was injured seriously by a hit-run driver yesterday and a child and two other persons were hurt in traffic accidents in the District area.

George Schanke, 9, of 1610 H Street Southeast, was pedaling north on Fourteenth Street Southeast when he was knocked to the street by a coupe, eastbound on S Street.

The automobile failed to stop, witnesses told police. The boy was taken to a private clinic near the scene and later was transferred to Providence Hospital. Doctors said his skull was fractured and that his condition was serious.

Mrs. Paul McGowan, 1408 S Street Southeast, gave police the license number of the car and Lieut. William J. Liverman and Pvt. A. D. Clarke, of the Accident Prevention Unit, learned the driver had gone to the races at Havre de Grace.

Maryland State police were contacted and a suspect was taken into custody. Liverman went to Havre de Grace to investigate last night.

Miss Sarah H. Pritchard, 53, of 4105 Harrison Street Northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital yesterday for a fractured right rib after her atuomobile was in collision with another machine at Thirty-ninth and Veazey Streets Northwest.

Struck by a streetcar at Thirteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avanue Northwest, Leon Sahm, 25, of 603 Longfellow Street Northwest, suffered injuries to his right shoulder, arms and knees. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital. Police said the streetcar was operated by Howard G. White, of 817 E Street Southeast.

William Albert Minder, 4, of Seat Pleasant, is in Casualty Hospital suffering from a broken leg and severe cuts on the head after being struck by an automobile on Main Street in Seat Pleasant yesterday afternoon.

He was taken to the hospital by the driver of the automobile which struck him, Henry C. Morton, jr., of Forest Glen, who has been charged with reckless driving by Prince Georges County police.

Gored by Bull, Hospital Farm Worker Dies

Gored by a bull when he climbed into its pen at St. Elizabeths Hospital farm, James E. Douglas, 58, an inmate of the hospital, was dead of injuries last night.

Olaf Thompson, a friend of the dead man, heard Douglas' cries and pulled him out of the pen. Douglas died several hours later. He had been employed as a part-time worker on the institution's farm.

Wife Got FAT— No Longer Attractive LOST HUSBAND'S LOVE

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper in connection with a divorce trial that had attracted wide attention: "She was a beautiful woman" one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do. If you are fat, how would you like to lose some of it and at the same time gain in physical charm and attractiveness—more energy—greater activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take ½ teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts (a famous English formula) in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for thirty days. Cut out pastries and fatty meats and go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts will last you for 4 weeks and costs but little. Ask any druggist for a bottle of Kruschen, plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant—and start today to lose fat. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

Fuehrer Lies Abed Till Noon

Hitler, Slightly Grayer, His Face Lined, Shows Few Traces of War Strain at 52

In the following dispatch, the Berlin manager of the United Press describes Adolf Hitler as he prepares to observe his fifty-second birthday Sunday. It contains many facts about the personal life of the bachelor Reichsfuehrer hitherto not generally known.

By Joseph W. Grigg, Jr.,
United Press Staff Writer

Berlin, April 15.—Famous mustache shot through with gray, face a little more lined, hair slightly silvery on the sides, Adolf Hitler will be 52 years old next Sunday.

Twenty months of war have wrought little change in the looks of this ruler of the greatest European empire since the days of Napoleon.

The forelock is less in evidence. Only occasionally is it seen slipped out of place from the well-trimmed and neatly brushed hair. The normally somewhat pale face is no more or less so.

For private reading Hitler wears horn rimmed glasses. But never has he been seen in public with them. When he speaks his texts or notes are typed in large print so he can read them without strain.

In the Balkans and North Africa Hitler's armies are engaged in blitzkriegs whose main outlines were planned and directed by the Fuehrer himself.

In Europe, countries with populations of about 120,000,000 are either conquered or occupied by his military machine. From the Arctic Circle to the Mediterranean and to the Black Sea German troops are stationed everywhere save alone in Portugal, Spain, Switzerland and Turkey.

That is Adolf Hitler's domain on his fifty-second birthday anniversary.

Those who know say the man who planned the lightning military campaigns, who evolved completely new and unorthodox ideas of strategy, who put the final stamp of approval on the newest types of bombers and tanks and guns with which the Germans overran most of Europe—is Adolf Hitler.

Further, he is credited with planning the bold outlines of the so-called "new order for Europe and Africa" which the Nazis hope to establish if they win the war.

Endlessly in Conferences

At all times—in blitzkrieg or relative lull—the greater part of Hitler's wartime workday is taken up with an endless series of conferences.

No military decisions of importance ever are taken without the Fuehrer's approval.

Hitler has not yet joined his armies in the Balkan drive, as he did on the Polish and Western fronts. His exact whereabouts is a military secret, and one of the ironclad rules for foreign reporting from Berlin is that one must never mention where Hitler is at any specific time.

The Fuehrer seldom goes to bed before 2 or 3 a. m. He normally rises late, sometimes as late as noon.

The first man he sees each day is his valet, a tall, typical Nordic blond, former member of the Fuehrer's elite bodyguard. The valet's job consists mostly of handing Hitler his clothes, since he prefers to dress himself.

Gets Barber's Opinions

When he is in Berlin a barber from a hotel near the chancellery goes each morning to shave him as soon as he is dressed. The Fuehrer is said to set great store in asking the barber questions about the German public's opinion of world events.

Hitler's breakfast generally consists of a couple of zweiback or pieces of toast with butter, jam and a glass of milk or fruit juice. In Berlin he breakfasts in a small living room adjoining his bedroom in the private apartment in the old Reichschancellery.

The Germans say he has the same ration card as they. He doesn't miss coffee, because he never was much of a coffee drinker.

In the same living room he generally receives most of his aides. The big study in the new Reichschancellery with its heavy leather chairs, with Bismarck's portrait hanging on the wall, and with a great globe on which Hitler can trace his conquests, is used only for official receptions.

After breakfast Hitler receives his adjutants to hear reports and give daily orders. Then he plunges into a round of conferences with military and political advisers. When a big campaign is brewing or going on, the conferences sometimes go on until midnight.

Wears Simple Uniform

Since the war began Hitler has worn the simple, double-breasted field gray tunic with golden eagle and swastika badge on the left sleeve, with gold buttons and black trousers.

Actually that is his private uniform, since it is cut differently from the army tunic though they are about the same color. The only decoration is the Iron Cross which Hitler won in the World War.

A steel helmet and a pistol hang in Hitler's wardrobe, but they are never worn—not even when he reached the front lines or when he watched artillery duels from a short distance behind the front in the Western and Polish campaigns.

Blueprints of all important new airplane, gun, tank and warship types are shown the Fuehrer and approved by him before they can go into production. Full-scale models often are erected in the large chancellery gardens behind the high walls of the Wilhelmstrasse and Hermanngoeringstrasse.

Locked in a simple black polished desk in his private study are drawings of new weapons that have revolutionized modern warfare. In the same desk are plans, drawn up by him with political and economic advisers, for administration of the ever-increasing conquered territories and construction of Europe's "new order."

Perhaps the most vital of all, however, are Hitler's own notes on the great plans of strategy that won the campaigns in Poland, in Norway, on the Western Front.

Sen. Reynolds May Not Get Sheppard's Job

Delayed choice of a new chairman of the important Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday started speculation on possible waiver of the traditional seniority rule in order to seat an Administration Senator in the post.

Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, is in seniority line to succeed the late Senator Sheppard as chairman, but Administration lieutenants said no decision has been made. The seniority rule is not binding.

Reynolds is far out of line with Administration foreign policy, but on all other questions is a loyal New Dealer. The aid program has so completely interlocked national defense with foreign policy that Administration concern is being privately manifest over Reynolds' succeeding to the post.

Possibility that the Senate Democratic Steering Committee might pass over Reynolds and recommend the next Senator in line—Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah—is being openly discussed in some Senate quarters.

Thomas, a thoroughgoing New Dealer and in full sympathy with the Administration's foreign course, is now chairman of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor. The Military Affairs Committee has always outranked the Labor Committee assignment, and Thomas, versed in military legislation since advisory contact with the framing of the National Defense Act of 1920, might be expected to accept.

Should the Senate do the unexpected and smash the almost unbroken seniority rule in this case, either Senator Murray, of Montana, or Senator Pepper, of Florida, New Dealers, might succeed to the Labor Committee chairmanship.

Only once has the Senate departed from the rule so far as could be learned—when Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, in a dealock between Republicans, Democrats and Progressives in 1924 became chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee in a Senate nominally controlled by Republicans.

The House at least twice has broken seniority committee precedent, once to make Carter Glass, of Virginia, then a Representative, chairman of its Banking Committee and again to make Martin Madden the appropriations chairman.

Theater Guild to Bring Capital Another Premiere

"Last Round" Opens at National April 28; The Open Air Concedes a Bit to Soldiery; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THE THEATER GUILD, as if in compensation for its early-season transgressions—if any—continues to contribute generously to the wealth of Washington's 1941 drama.

BELL

Owing to the importance of its next production, it has been decided by Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner—who, to all intents and purposes, are the Theater Guild—to open the play in the National Theater in this city on Monday night, April 28. The play in question bears the title of "The Last Round." Its authors are Carl Zuckmayer and Fritz Kortner.

Since "Hope for a Harvest," costarring Fredric March and Florence Eldridge and opening in the National for a week's engagement next Monday night, is the sixth and final play of the Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription season in the Capital, it will come as good news that "The Last Round" will be offered the subscription lists at regular subscription prices as a "special added attraction."

In his lengthy telegram to this desk, Joe Heidt, of the Theater Guild, explains that the sudden decision to give "The Last Round" its premiere in Washington was reached after a New York conference on Tuesday morning at which it was decided by Miss Helburn and Mr. Langner that a play of such importance should be seen by the National Capital before any other city. It will open in New York on May 5.

The authorship of "The Last Round" is distinguished. Both Zuckmayer and Kortner were outstanding men in the theater of middle Europe in pre-Nazi days, the former being one of the continent's more important authors and the latter one of Germany's greatest actors. Fritz Kortner probably will be most readily identified by the faithful as the Herod, opposite Katharine Cornell, in "Herod and Mariamne," in Clemence Dane's inept translation of a blank verse classic into inadequate prose. He later did a play in collaboration with Dorothy Thompson.

If you must have an inkle of what "The Last Round" is all about, it concerns a group of provincials living near Rheims during the period from May, 1939, to May, 1940. Mr. Heidt's contention that a splendid cast has been chosen for the new work seems to be pretty well borne out by the names he names. Dudley Digges, Walter Slezak, Alexander Knox, Karen Morley, Wesley Addy, Arlene Francis, Flora Campbell and Art Smith are among those concerning whom Mr. Heidt's enthusiasm runs highest. There are some 30 others in the company.

Another Break for Soldiery

In consonance with the current theatrical trend, E. M. Loew, operator of the Open Air Theater, down on the Richmond Highway three miles or so below Alexandria, Va., announces a new price policy for men in uniform. The admission price for any member of the armed forces of the United States has been cut from the usual 39 cents to a flat 20 cents, tax exempt. To accommodate the service men, who probably are not universally supplied with private automobiles—and, after all, the Open Air is a drive-in theater—500 seats have been installed, so that they may sit down and view the programs in comfort, even if not in their own motor cars.

And so we come around again to John Golden's production of "Theatre," starring Cornelia Otis Skinner, at the National, which already has become mildly controversial. The play, to be sure, needs a considerable amount of revision. That is being attended to by Coauthors W. Somerset Maugham and Guy Bolton and Producer John Golden. They were in a huddle at the Shoreham all yesterday morning. Something will come out of that. Just what might surprise you. In the meantime, it is this department's view—not that it amounts to a tinker's so-and-so—that the play is less in celebration of a great actress' loss of "glamour" than it is a tribute to the staunchness of those who populate the world of make-believe. I am not in accord with all of Mr. Golden's casting—and have already told him so—and feel the necessity of deleting a few lines from "Theatre" that seem to have been filched from Jane Cowl in "Old Acquaintance," but in the main, the new Maugham-Bolton collaboration still seems to these failing senses to possess the genesis of a hit that will perpetuate the 10 curtain calls the piece was accorded Monday night. Time, that debilitating scoundrel, will tell.

The Pat Calls the Kettle

On Friday, at 10 a. m., in the Willard, Brooks Atkinson, the erudite drama critic of the New York Times, will address the American Society of Newspaper Editors on the topic of "A Quick Look at Alleged Drama and Film Columns." Nothing personal, I hope.

Anxious-Inquiry Note

Are those cherry blossoms really out? They didn't seem to be at 2 A. M., Sunday and appeared a little self-conscious about it, what with 200,000 visitors in town and all.

They Have Real Winters Up There in Minnesota

WILLIAM GARGAN AND MARTHA SCOTT
as they will be seen in the two principal roles in Richard Rowland's production for United Artists of "Cheers for Miss Bishop," opening tomorrow on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. The story covers a wide span of years and affords Miss Scott opportunity to bring her most notable characterization to the view of motion picture audiences

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Mexico City, April 15 (INS). The wildly enthusiastic reception our Hollywood stars have received from the Mexico City fans has been heartwarming. The Mexicans are so polite, so eager to show their appreciation and so interested in each and every one of the visitors.

PARSONS

The first thing on the program was a welcome at city hall followed by a reception at the American Embassy. Over 150,000 applauding Mexicans greeted Norma Shearer, Kay Frances, Patricia Morison, Esther Fernandez, Brenda Marshall, Brenda Joyce, Sylvia Fairbanks, Mary Gordon, Joe E. Brown, Laurel and Hardy, Johnny Weissmuller, Sabu, Wallace Beery, Mischa Auer, Frank Morgan and last, but not least, Mickey Rooney.

The motion picture festival won't see the end of Hollywood visitors in Mexico. Had to come all this way to learn that Mexico will play host to Bette Davis and her husband, Arthur Farnsworth, this summer. A special plane will fly Bette here and during her stay she will have a plane at her disposal.

I'll remember Brownsville, Tex., as long as I live—and pleasantly, too, for we spent the night there, when the plane was forced down because of weather. Yes, they have rains in Texas as well as in California—but Susan Hayward, Bill Holden, my favorite doctor and myself had a good time.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

The Fredric Marches Top List of New Week's Performers

"HOPE FOR A HARVEST." Fredric March and Florence Eldridge, his wife, are the stars of the new Sophie Treadwell comedy opening Monday evening at the National Theater as the sixth and final play of the Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription season. In her new play, the author of "Machinal" has written of her native San Joaquin Valley in California, of an expert on growing peaches who doesn't grow them, an expatriate returned after 18 years abroad and a generous Italian wine fancier. Lester Vail is directing. The supporting cast includes Alan Reed, Edith King, Judy Parish, Arthur Franz, Helen Carew, Doro Merande and Shelly Hull. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Palace

"THE LADY EVE." Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda are the stars of the latest comedy to come from the brilliant Preston Sturges. Their vehicle is the tale of a hard-working, though rich, young scientist and a hard-working, though crooked, gambler's assistant. How the girl bewitches him first as a beautiful card sharp and then as a titled lady from the old country is the background for this widely praised satire. Charles Coburn, Eric Blore, Eugene Pallette and Janet Beecher are among the featured players. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"PENNY SERENADE." The stars of "The Awful Truth" and "His Favorite Wife," Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, are reunited for this romance based on Martha Cheaven's magazine story of an irresponsible reporter and a music store salesgirl who wed a half-hour before his departure to cover a story in the Orient. Joe Cook's tomfoolery tops the stage portion of the bill, bringing with him some of the funsters who appeared with him in "It Happens on Ice" earlier this season—Sir Geoffrey Hale, Will Ritchie, Charles Senna, Gene Winchester, the Juggling Deweys and Andy McBann. Follows "The Great Lie."

Capitol

"CHEERS FOR MISS BISHOP." The novel by Bess Street Aldrich, which has been called "an American 'Goodbye, Md. Chips,'" comes to the screen with Martha Scott in the role of the school teacher who sticks to her profession through the changing years. William Gargan, Edmund Gwenn, Sidney Blackmer, Dorothy Peterson, Mary Anderson and Sterling Holloway are in the company. On the stage, Gene Ford's revue is titled "Festival" and stars George Church, new dancing favorite, Gower and Jeanne, the youthful dancers; Sara Ann McCabe, songstress, and the Rhythm Rockets, returning from a vacation, are the other performers. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"THE DEVIL AND MISS JONES." Jean Arthur, Charles Coburn and Robert Cummings continue for a second week in this new comedy of the department store owner who joins a union to find out why his employes are dissatisfied. Miss Arthur is his ingenuous guide on such unfamiliar paths. Edmund Gwenn, Spring Byington, S. Z. Sakall and William Demarest are featured. "Australia at War" is the "March of Time."

Metropolitan

"THE SEA WOLF." Edward C. Robinson, Ida Lupino and John Garfield return in the Jack London story after a previous week at the Earle. The story concerns Capt. Wolf Larsen and the men he shanghaies onto his ship, the Ghost. Barry Fitzgerald, Gene Lockhart and David Bruce are the other leading players. Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"TOBACCO ROAD." With Charles Grapewin as Jeeter Lester, the film version of the record-breaking play returns to F Street after a week at the Palace. Marjorie Rambeau, Elizabeth Patterson and William Tracey also are in the cast.

Little

"THE EMPEROR JONES." With Paul Robeson in the title role, the Eugene O'Neill play was first brought to the screen in 1933 and is currently being revived on the Little screen. The great Negro barytone sings 'Travelin'," "Water Boy" and "Now Let Me Fly" during the course of this story of the Pullman porter who became a powerful native ruler. Dudley Digges, Freddie Washington and Frank Wilson are the other leading players. Opens this morning.

Trans-Lux

"AMERICANS ALL." This "March of Time" release, detailing how the immigrants to the United States of the last century have contributed toward making it a great democracy, is the chief short subject at the newsreel theater. "Our Gang" goes fishing in another short and the cartoon, "The Blue Danube," is a fantasy on how the river developed its tint. Thirty-five minutes of newsreels complete the bill. Opens Friday morning.

Glen Echo

THE AMUSEMENT PARK has opened its 1941 season in a blaze of incomparable spring weather, drawing record-breaking crowds to the 50-odd attractions which have been refurbished and added to for the summer. Paul Kain and his orchestra, with Adele Van singing the vocals, appears for dancing in the Spanish Garden ballroom each weekday evening at 9 o'clock.

Gayety

"SAUCY SERENADES." Georgia Sothern is the star of the burlesque theater's coming attraction. Others in the revue opening Sunday afternoon include the comical Maxie Furman, Billy Ainsley, Jimmy Cavanaugh, Lanee Lane, Mitzi Montay, Nadine Marsh and Al Maiben. Vickie Welles, this week's star, continues through Saturday's midnight show.

Open-Air

"HIRED WIFE." With Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne in the leading roles, this comedy will be revived for a three-night run beginning tomorrow on the screen of the drive-in theater on the Richmond highway. "Diamond Frontier" is the other half of the new double feature. Tonight's attractions at the auto theater are "Argentine Nights" and "The Mummy's Hand."

James Strates Shows

Target

Arthur Kennedy had over 2,500 blank cartridges fired at him during a chase sequence in "Highway West."

In Hollywood

Hollywood, April 15.

Kay Kyser might be only runner-up for the tin cup in a beauty contest, but "handsome is as handsome does," and Kay's doin' all right! While waiting for his next picture to start, he took his band up to the northwest for seven days of personal appearances and broke so many records it looked like a track meet, with only the "Ole Professor" in there running.

HOPPER

Cary Grant, lounging out-of-camera on "Before the Fact" set, was listening while Nigel Bruce complained that his lines were dull, long, and uninterrupted. "What do you think, Cary?" Bruce asked. "I think," said Cary "you're the oddest actor in Hollywood. Everyone else complains because they don't get enough lines; you kick because you get too many!"

May second will be a memorable day at Fort Ord, Monterey, Calif. That's the date of the premiere of Bob Hope's "Caught in the Draft." Incidentally, it's Bob's first big picture opening with lights, music, stars, and this time, the Army. Already Hollywood personalities are asking to go, which is unusual in this town.

Loraine Gettman, whose perfect nude chassis in Coronet magazine attracted so much attention, just signed a contract at Warners, and Director Jean Negulesco is very much interested in her and her career. Don King, the gasoline jerker who's been signed by David Selznick, is dying to meet and date Jane Russell. These three were all Tom Kelly's discoveries. Tom has another girl, June Francis, who is all ready to be grabbed by an enterprising studio.

John Garfield has that Broadway bee in his bonnet again. He's been in San Francisco huddling with William Saroyan about a play on a theme suggested by John, about his early days on New York's seamy side . . . Someone libelled Gracie Allen when they said she had got fat. The gal who is a little plumper is Simone Simon—but it's becoming.

Broderick Crawford refuses to say "I love you" on the screen. "I'm not the romantic type, and a play in which I once cooed folded pronto." They wanted him to say "I love you" to Binnie Barnes in "Tight Shoes." Instead, Brod says, "I'm off my noggin about you!"—then bats Binnie in the eye.

With both actors and enlisted men wearing identical uniforms for that picture down at Coronado, the regulars say the only way they can tell when to salute is that all the actors need haircuts!

Jimmy Anderson, who's been growing a beard for six months for "Sergeant York," was told to report to work the other day. Casting office got their wires crossed, with the result that Jimmy, flowing beard and all, showed up on the dressy "Dive Bomber" set. When Director Mike Curtis saw him, he spluttered, "Hey, you bums! I said camouflage the planes—PLANES—not PANS!"

LORD HALIFAX: The most expensive "Raffle' in the history of such events will be held in Hollywood shortly. The prize will be a 425-carat sapphire, contributed by Sir Victor Sassoon, for the benefit of Britain's war relief. Each ticket in the raffle will cost $1,000, and the sale will be limited to the motion picture colony who can afford it . . . Jesse Jones: The current favorite to head New York State's new commerce department is Maurice F. Newfeld, acting director of the State Planning Commission . . . Nelson Rockefeller: Gallup is making an extensive survey in South America, ascertaining their cultural and amusement needs and preferences. This survey is a long-range one, intended for use in a 20-year program.

HERBERT HOOVER: When Eleanor Roosevelt met Paderewski in Florida, they discussed the question of feeding the Poles in the Nazi-occupied section. Paderewski spoke of Germany's dispersement of Poland's intellectual leaders throughout the world, to prevent the rebirth of that nation . . . "Do you think we should send food to Poland?" Mrs. Roosevelt asked him . . . "It is difficult to make a decision concerning my countrymen," Paderewski replied, and then, after meditation, he added: "But nothing should be done to disturb the British blockade."

SEC: The Stock Exchange's first encouraging sign will be found in the new list of nominations for governors, soon to be announced. The nominees will include Starkweather, of Starkweather & Co.; Gordon, of Kidder, Peabody; and Ward, of Clark, Dodge. The last two are not members of the exchange, but only allied members . . . Russel Crouse: Your co-angel of Broadway, Frank Sullivan, will become an actor, on the 24th. At Ithaca—where Frank once was a student—he'll make his debut in the Woollcott company of "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

CORDELL HULL: Alzira Vargas, daughter of the President of Brazil, intends to disappear into America shortly and see the country while traveling incognito.

EMILY POST: Pat "Honeychile" Wilder, who is being escorted by the fabulously wealthy Prince of Nepal, has changed his vocabulary to jive talk. He now speaks of his favorites as "solid characters" . . . The prince is near-sighted; and after his first glance at Honeychile, he purchased 300 pairs of eye glasses . . . Yesterday, Miss Wilder explained that the prince can divorce any of his wives merely by summoning her to his room and reciting the separation order three times . . . "That isn't true," he corrected. "In my country we don't need divorces. We just get a new wife" . . . "Then how do the other wives know that they no longer rate?" the prince was asked . . . "Very simply," his aid explained. "A husband merely cuts down on the gifts of diamonds."

HENRY LUCE: Marguerite Sharpe, the Navy Department employe whose photo appeared on the front cover of Life, is quitting that job now. As a result of the publicity, she's becoming a John Powers model . . . Leopold Stokowski: Your first wife, Olga Samaroff Stokowski, will make a concert tour of South America, as you did last year. Other good-will tourists there will include Yehudi Menuhin, Lawrence Tibbett, Toscanini—who will conduct at the Colon Opera House in Buenos Aires—Kitty Carlisle and Paul Draper . . . Nicholas Murray Butler: Robert E. Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night" is eligible for this year's Pulitzer Prize. It opened late, last season—too late, according to William Allen White, for prize consideration in 1940.

DARRYL ZANUCK: What did you do with the $42.39 which the people of Chugking sent, after they saw "Grapes of Wrath," and raised that sum "because they're more miserable than we in China are. We at least have homes"? . . . George Burns: Artie Shaw, who just completed his radio series with you and Gracie, will make his debut as a symphony conductor in Tennessee. Shaw also will conduct at the Lewisohn Stadium this summer . . . Jackie Coogan: Another child star of the movies is being readied for the draft—Leon Janney, who just received his questionnaire . . . New York department stores: You'll get no warnings from Leon Henderson, the new price stabilizer for the Government. When Henderson had some shopping done for him here, he was amazed at the low prices.

Storm Looms as Rep. Hunter Offers New D. C. Recreation Control Bill

A fresh controversy over control of Washington's recreation facilities threatened last night after Representative John F. Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, introduced a bill to give the Capital a recreation administration at complete variance with a plan approved last week by the President's recreation committee.

The committee's plan was evolved from 11 years of study and bickering. It has been put in bill form for presentation to Congress in a few days with the backing of the District Commissioners, the Board of Education and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Now before the Budget Bureau, the plan would coordinate all recreational facilities in the city under a nine-member board and a superintendent of recreation.

Hunter's bill, which he yesterday emphasized was introduced "by request," would give powers of recreation administration to a three-member executive board. The board would be composed of a superintendent of recreation to be named by the District Commissioner, a director of community center activities and a director of playgrounds.

Backed by Former Employes

The Post learned last night that Hunter's bill is backed by a group of former employes of the old Community Center Department of the public schools and the old Playground Department of the District government. A spokesman for the group said its purpose was to "put the playground and community center departments back to where they were two years ago."

The District appropriation bill in 1939 placed the playground and community center departments in a single agency under a coordinator of recreation. Shortly afterward, many community center and playground employes lost their positions.

Hunter said last night he was under the impression that the bill he introduced was that evolved by the President's committee. He explained that his action could not be interpreted to indicate his support of the measure, pointing out that he acted at the request of Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee. Hunter heads the committee's subcommittee on parks and recreation.

Randolph was out of the city last night, but it was expected that he would introduce the bill prepared by the President's committee.

The executive board proposed in the bill introduced by Hunter would be vested with power to promulgate rules and regulations for use of recreational facilities and to formulate fiscal and administrative policies.

Coordinate Activities

The superintendent would coordinate the joint activities of the community center and playground directors and would act as liaison officer between the proposed recreation department and the school board and all other agencies having to do with recreation activities.

At present recreation facilities of the playground and community center departments are unified under Milo Christiansen, recreation coordinator. This procedure has been viewed as a "stop-gap" measure to provide the city with centralized recreation control until a more satisfactory plan could be worked out by a committee designated by President Roosevelt in 1935.

The nine-member board proposed by the committee would be composed of a member of the Board of District Commissioners, a representative of the school board, a member selected by the Park and Planning Commission, the superintendent of National Capital Parks and five citizens to be named by the District Commissioners.

Nazi Pressure

During the first few days of the Nazi blitzkrieg in the Balkans the Nazi war machine drove into Greece and Yugoslavia with the same fantastic speed it had previously manifested in the Low Countries and France last year. Despite difficulties of the terrain, which were expected to hold up but which did not succeed in holding up the invaders, Salonika was captured in the first week of the struggle. Then the hopes of the Allies began to revive when it became clear that the fury of the German assault had not demoralized either the Yugoslav or Greek forces who had been first to bear the brunt of the fighting. Reports began to filter out of the war zone that the Yugoslav army had reformed its lines, and, far from being shattered, was even proving itself capable of carrying out offensive action in certain localities. The Greeks and British, for their part, established what was declared to be a strong defensive line centering on Florina. It is now apparent, however, that the line was not strong enough, but was in fact an indefensible salient. And now the Nazis have taken that strategic center, which also happens to be one of the largest cities in Greece. In turn, this development, plus the German penetration into southern Serbia, has made inevitable the withdrawal of Greek forces from the Koritsa sector, which the Italians have reoccupied.

In the meantime the situation in the Yugoslav sector remains obscure. There the German plan, as it has enfolded, has obviously been to separate and isolate the various Yugoslav units and, by preventing them from operating together, to cut them to pieces. How successful that plan has been is not entirely clear. The Germans assert that the Yugoslav army as a fighting force has practically ceased to exist. Rumors from Rome and Budapest, neither of which is a very reliable news center, go so far as to say that Yugoslavia has asked for an armistice. Yugoslav quarters in Vichy, however, insist that the great bulk of the Yugoslav army is still in the field and is fighting on with renewed determination. What the picture will be when the smoke clears is not plain, but for ourselves we are not prepared to believe that the Yugoslavs, with their fighting tradition, will so quickly throw up the sponge. In fact, the revelation that a spark of freedom exists in the Balkans is still the saving grace in an otherwise black situation, for such a spark can never be extinguished.

Homeless Again?

For only three months of its long and honorable existence has the District National Guard occupied an armory erected for its own use. And that was back in 1861! The Government then converted the building into a hospital, and shooed the militia out on an 80-year march from pillar to post. Strangely enough, just as the Guard once more is about to get a place of its own, there is talk of turning the building over to the War Department for other purposes. It is reported that the Federal Works Administrator has been asked to find some space immediately for several hundred defense workers. Last week a committee from his office, after conferring with the District Commissioners, inspected both the new armory and the nearly completed Municipal Center.

If either of these buildings must be commandeered, it appears that the drill hall would be easier for the District to give up at this time. The Municipal Center is badly needed now, and contains installations which would have to be torn out to make way for the defense offices. The operations of the local government must go on, regardless of the emergency. Since the Guard will be in the field the rest of this year and perhaps longer, it should be less of a hardship to relinquish these quarters on a temporary basis than to do without the building designed for the police, traffic and other departments. But the transfer must be temporary. The armory was pulled out of the hat only after years of disagreement over sites and of missed connections between the House and Senate, which took turns voting the magic appropriation on alternate years.

Meanwhile the militia has languished in such condemned and moldy firetraps as the former National Hotel. The new structure finally erected is the result of long and patient calculations, and occupies the site designated by the Park and Planning Commission. It would not be economical, generous or wise on the part of the Government to take it over without an air-tight understanding that the National Guard is to get it back.

Job For Hopkins

The President has made a move in the right organizational direction in centralizing access to our arsenal of democracy through Harry L. Hopkins. It is a strenuous assignment. But Mr. Hopkins' physical condition is said to have improved markedly since he went to live with the President. He has the further advantage of a knowledge of the situation in Britain which he gained from his mission to England and the close relations he established with Mr. Churchill.

The appointment, it will be noted, does not change the present status of procurement for the military and naval establishments. This is still reposed in the two departments concerned. The only concession to the national emergency which has been made in respect of this highly important work lies in a much better liaison system. The service departments are working in constant contact with the Office of Production Management and Mr. Hopkins. Perhaps this is the best arrangement that could be expected in all the circumstances. Even in belligerent Britain the Ministry of Supplies—a wartime department—buys only for the army, while the navy and the R. A. F. buy independently. Friction, to be sure, is always possible in such a lack of formal coordination. But in the United States as in Britain pressure to make the existing organization function well is sometimes more constructive than a continual quest after an ideal organization, administratively speaking. In a democratic society, anyway, such an organization must always be Utopian.

Nevertheless the organizational setup of our war effort stands in need of improvement in other than procurement respects. We still lack a committee on national strategy. In these critical times our President is first and foremost our Commander in Chief, and no Commander in Chief could function efficiently who has as many aides reporting directly to him as our President has. Nor can one think of these aides as a general staff engaged in contributing each in his field to the attainment of the only national policy that deserves the name, viz., an Axis defeat. They should be formally linked on a committee on national strategy. In that event the rival policies which flourish wordily behind the war effort, and so diminish its effectiveness, would be reduced to a minimum. And the President would be able to save his own time and make the best decisions by having at his elbow a consensus from a general staff rather than all manner of opinions from his advisers. Perhaps Mr. Hopkins' appointment is a sign that more coordination of this kind is coming.

Wanted: Children

Actuaries tell us that the time is close at hand when our continuously falling birth rate will mean an actual decline in the population of the United States. So it becomes important to discover the causes of this decline and determine whether anything can be done to arrest it. A recent Gallup survey poses this contrast: over 60 per cent of American families are either childless or have one or two children, yet 68 per cent of those interviewed said the "ideal" family is one with three or more children. In detail only 32 per cent would be satisfied with fewer than three children; over half would like to have three or four children and 14 per cent 5 or more. Heading the list of reasons for limiting the size of families is lack of money, cited by 57 per cent of the voters, while 20 per cent fear that more children would interfere with the parents' freedom of movement.

On their face these returns show a decided preference for families large enough to eliminate any fear of race suicide. It would seem that bigger families would be promoted by better living conditions. But on close analysis the showing seems less encouraging. The people in moderate circumstances are much more inclined to stress lack of money as an obstacle to larger families than those in the lowest economic strata. What does this indicate? Surely that in many cases alleged lack of money is another name for unwillingness to make personal sacrifices even when these would not entail any serious lowering of basic living standards.

As Dr. Gallup points out, moreover, there is a very serious discrepancy between the "ideal" families favored by persons of 50 and over and the ideal of the younger people. It is a matter of little importance that persons in this upper age group preponderantly favor families of three or more children. They are not likely to have any, anyway. What really counts is that 40 per cent of the voters from 21 to 34 years think two children sufficient, while another 32 per cent favor three children. Thus, if this poll reflects a typical cross-section of public opinion, the actuaries seem to be well buttressed. Only a new consciousness of our individual and our national destiny will confound them, for such a consciousness is a necessary spur to bigger families.

Wages And Prices

The first reaction to the wage increase for steel workers is one of relief that new agreements have been worked out without any stoppage of production in this vital defense industry. A steel strike at this critical moment would have been a major calamity. So managers of the large steel companies and the Steel Workers Organizing Committee have shown good judgment in compromising their differences. As pointed out by Philip Murray, chairman of the C. I. O., the new agreement sets a precedent for harmonious collective bargaining that may well be followed by other employer and employe groups.

An increase of approximately 12 per cent in the average wage was the chief concession made by the United States Steel Corporation. Together with other benefits granted, this will absorb the equivalent of more than one-half of the company's $104,000,000 profits in 1940. It is entirely reasonable, of course, for companies to share their profits from the defense program with their employes. Wage adjustments are a natural result of expanding output and rising corporation profits. From the individual standpoint, therefore, the steel agreement has much to commend it.

Unfortunately, however, this process of adjustment is not likely to end with this increase of money in workmen's pockets. A study of steel prices in the light of the higher production costs is already under way. If steel prices rise, the cost of the armament program will be increased; likewise the cost of living will go up, giving rise to further demands for higher wages. The example set by the steel industry may be followed, moreover, by many other industries. If the effect is a comparable rise in the cost of living, the net gains of labor will be nil, and the country will be caught in a vicious inflationary spiral of higher prices, higher wages, and still higher prices.

Last week President Roosevelt created the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply and gave it the task of preventing "price spiraling, rising costs of living, profiteering and inflation" during the present emergency. This assignment will become far more difficult if general wage increases are granted and prices are adjusted to cover the resulting higher production costs. From the national viewpoint, therefore, the precedent set by the steel industry involves potential dangers. In its commendable efforts to halt any tendency toward runaway prices, the Administration may find it necessary to discourage wage adjustments unless they can be supported by present price levels.

Washington Idyl

The sun smiled on the 250,000 who made the weekend pilgrimage to the National Capital to see the cherry blooms and to watch the crowning of the Blossom Queen. The sun smiled on the buds and brought them to perfection in the nick of time. The sun smiled on the roofs of thousands of automobiles as tired policemen hustled them along the streets. And the sun continued to smile its brightest all through a Monday and Tuesday of record 88-degree heat as old Washingtonians sighed half in contentment and half in relief at the departure of the annual pilgrimage. The housing bureau of the Board of Trade and the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce worked overtime trying to find pillows on which tired sightseers could lay their heads. There were the usual reports that some visitors went as far as Fredericksburg and Baltimore looking for places to sleep. There was only one sour note. The sylvan corner on the banks of the Tidal Basin next to Fourteenth Street had been destroyed in order to make way for the Jefferson Memorial, despite the extended campaign conducted against the scheme. That was another of those Congressional projects routed around the Park and Planning Commission. But it's done, now, and we'll have to make the best of it. And, if the forecaster is right, Washington's spring idyl is to be dissolved today in an April downpour.

THE HUNT

Now the clear bugle—and now the blood
Quickens to answer with rising flood
Under the fur and the coat bright-hued:
You the huntsman—I the pursued.

Clearing the firth with iron shod hooves
You leave the meadow and enter the groves
Where I, four-footed, with vixen eyes,
Quivering listen to beagle-cries;
Quivering watch the hunter nearing—
Then leap the bush and enter the clearing
Skimming the fields with flying plume,
Past the heather and over the broom
With wind-blown coat and gaping mouth,
Pointing a course obliquely South,
An arrow sped from a straining bow,
Hard on the scent of a trail I know
That ends on the crest of a subtle knoll
Where I plummet down a slanting hole.

There, in the cool earth-dark, shall I
Sleek my sides as you thunder by.

Invincibility

Is Hitler invincible? The Nazi propagandists would like to have us think so.

History is crowded with "invincible" conquerors. By superiority of one sort or another they won brilliant victories, and, lo! they became "irresistible." Gusty popular alarm created a myth about them, a defeatist myth, that resistance against them was futile. Napoleon Bonaparte, for instance, invented new military ways and means, and he also mobilized a new national fanaticism. By these, William Pitt, greatest predecessor of England's present Winston Churchill, was broken at last, through Napoleon's repeated successes. Stubborn enemies of the flashy Little Corporal refused to believe, however, that he (or anybody else) was invincible. They studied his new techniques, and improved on them. They mobilized against him the rising tide of antifanaticism. As he, inevitably, overreached himself they punctured his balloon of invincibility.

HENRY W. LAWRENCE.

For Convoys

Does it not seem that to convoy supplies to Britain now, to insure their safe delivery, would be the cheapest and quickest way to victory? True, war is repugnant to virtually all Americans. But if we are not willing to help crush Hitlerism now, before it gains new strength, we may find ourselves with a far more hideous war on our hands than any of us care to contemplate—and that may not be far off.

CITIZEN.
Washington, April 12.

Strong Leaders

What are the American people going to do about the strikes, the red tape, and the sabotage? Those leaders whom we have appointed to direct our Nation through this trying era have been tried and found wanting. It seems definitely up to us to take the matter into our own hands. We see the red tape tripping us up as we stumble along in our defense efforts. We see sabotage in its embryonic form.

Our crying need is for men in responsible positions strong enough to decide what acts and procedure are in the interests of the American people. Men who can make decisions and get things through. Fighters are what we need. What if they do step on a few toes in the process of safeguarding our democracy? One hundred and thirty million Americans will thank them from the bottom of their hearts.

Let's do something about these matters so vital to our national safety. Put some fighters in office and let's stick behind them. Get rid of the "it can't be dones" and give the "it will be dones" a chance.

L. W. M.
Alexandria, Va., April 8.

For U. S. Entry Into War

By legislation and the President's statements, our country is now committed to the success of England in the war. This commitment is approved by the great majority of our people and recognized by our legislators and public men.

Are we pursuing the right tactics? Why do we hesitate to throw our entire weight into the contest, so as to make us early and complete certainty of victory? It is too terribly clear that Britain needs all our armed strength at once. In the last year of World War No. 1 she was in danger but judged by all standards, her needs and danger are much greater now. Her army and navy are inadequate to the task they have to perform. She has only about half as many submarines as she had in 1918 and a wholly insufficient number of airplanes and destroyers. Germany has a great superiority in airplanes and many more submarines, also submarine and air bases all the way from Norway to Spain.

The combination of German warships, airplanes and submarines is destroying the merchant shipping on which Britain's life depends more than twice as fast as she and the United States together can build and otherwise obtain it, and that merchant shipping is already inadequate. This is apparently the most serious immediate danger—the destruction of shipping by German submarines. The solution of this danger is evidently the destruction of the submarines.

We keep talking of giving "all-out" aid to Britain, but we are not giving such aid. We are simply sending her a minor part of our warships and other combat material, but none of our trained naval, military or aviation personnel. They need our trained men as well as our materials. They need now the immediate help of all our armed forces, particularly our naval and air forces. If we are to save Britain and her navy, save her pople from becoming helots to Hitler, like the other Europeans, and save Americans from the same ultimate fate we should declare war on Germany immediately and send our naval and air forces into the conflict at once. Our danger is not that we may become involved in the war but that we may enter it too late.

OSCAR D. WEED.
Washington, April 12.

Free Expression

Permit me to remind all that freedom begins to die for any people when free men hesitate to express their deep convictions through their free press, for fear of abuse or hurt. If freedom is to win this titanic struggle, it must make the strength of its will known by redoubling its efforts upon every showing of the dark hand of freedom's enemies. If in unconquered America, as in conquered France, the men who believe in resisting Nazism in every possible way are more numerous than their expressions indicate—if voices are already being stilled by fear—then our future is dark with the same darkness France now knows.

Altogether, there seems a certain timidity about many who privately confess they think a rousing declaration of war the only wise course and who nevertheless are satisfied with making public statements which are deplorable understatements concerning our perilous near-future if Nazism wins. In our efforts for peace, we have bent over backwards so far we have about lost our balance.

Concerning Germany's Title To Possessions Of Conquered Nations

For many years I have read with interest and profit Mark Sullivan's comments on public affairs. But his article published in The Post of April 12 is shot through and through with error, unsound reasoning and illogical conclusions. In discussing the title of Germany to unconquered possessions of conquered nations, he either asserts or leans to the conclusion that the title to these unconquered colonies would pass to the Nazis as the result of the conquest of the mother country. This is an unsound conclusion.

He says: "By conquest Germany got some kind of title to the American territories of those conquered nations." Title by conquest extends only to the territory actually conquered and seized by the triumphant nation, unless title to these unconquered possessions is subsequently acquired by treaty. A nation can be divested of its title to its territory only by cession or force. Where the divestiture is by treaty, the title passes without any immediate or outward change in the possession. But when one nation by force overruns and seizes the territory of another nation it acquires title only to the territory actually conquered and taken into its possession. Title by force or conquest applies only to seized territory.

Germany has conquered the Netherlands, Belgium, Denmark and Norway, but has acquired no title to such possessions of these conquered nations as have not been actually seized or possessed by the Nazis. The situation is analogous to a bandit, seizing and carrying away three-fourths of a citizen's property, which act would not divest such owner of the title to the remaining one-fourth not seized by the outlaw.

Mr. Sullivan says: "Germany has title, but does not have possession." I assert that Germany has absolutely no title to the territory of these defeated nations that has not been seized and held by Germany. Capturing a part of the navy of a conquered nation would not transfer the title of the uncaptured ships to the conqueror, and, by the same token, ruthlessly seizing a part of the territory of a nation does not divest the conquered nation of the remaining portion of her territory.

Mr. Sullivan further states: "Germany would by conquest of Britain get a conqueror's title to the British dependencies in the American hemisphere." Conquering Britain will not give Germany a "conqueror's title" or any other kind of title to the British dependencies in the American hemisphere, unless and until Germany seizes these colonial possessions or forces from England a cession of them. A "conqueror's title" rests solely on force, seizure and ability to hold possession, and until that force is directly applied to these Western Hemisphere territories, and possession thereof taken, title to these dependencies remains in the mother countries until and unless renounced by treaty.

And, until Germany actually seizes and holds possession of these American hemisphere possessions, the United States or other nations may acquire title to such possessions either by treaty or conquest. In other words, these unconquered, unseized and unceded possessions in the Western Hemisphere still belong to the mother countries and are still subject to either purchase or conquest by the United States or any other nation.

To illustrate: If Germany overruns and totally conquers Great Britain, while she would have a "conqueror's title" to the British Isles, she would, by virtue of such conquest, acquire no title whatsoever to Singapore, Gibraltar and other British outposts, unless they were ceded by Britain, or unless Germany seized and held possession of them. And certainly, by conquering the British Isles, Germany by virtue of such conquest, would acquire no title to Canada, Australia, India, and other self-governing countries constituting the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The Post Impressionist

It is difficult to learn whether the British today still adhere strictly to the "pass traffic to the left" rule. When some ancient building suddenly lurches into the roadway under the impulse of Nazi bombs, an Englishman might even go so far in abandoning custom as to steer his vehicle to the right—in Yankee fashion.

However, in normal times, the "Rule Britannia" of the highways is to travel to the left, while we in the United States have chosen to pass oncoming traffic to the right. The several reasons for these diverse customs of vehicular travel are interesting.

In the early history of the British Isles, men on horseback always traveled armed against possible attack. Strange horsemen were always to the left; then, should either one of the mounted men prove hostile, the riders' right arms could swing swords or pistols into swift action against the enemy.

Later, the drivers of coaches and wagons discovered that sitting on the right side of the vehicle gave their right arms more freedom in wielding the whip over the horses. Also, in passing to the left, they were bettter able to avoid entanglements with the wheels of passing vehicles. It is not strange, therefore, that English traffic came to prefer this method. Even now automobiles manufactured in Great Britain and certain other European countries have their steering wheels mounted on the right-hand side. Many such imported vehicles may be seen attracting attention on Washington streets.

France and the Axis Powers have always employed the postilion driving system, such as ours. Using this method, early Continental teamsters sat on the horse or beast nearest the left front wheel of the vehicle. This procedure existed for both wagons and coaches. To the man riding astride the left wheel horse passing to the right afforded him a better view of the vehicles approaching him on the left. Passing oncoming traffic to the right was once the favored custom in most sections of Europe.

Prior to Mussolini, however, Italian vehicles had a dual system of traffic passing. In the cities, postilion driving was the practice—to the right. In the rural districts, where farmers used open-box wagons extensively, they passed road traffic to the left. Traffic usually wound up in knots, like a bowl of spaghetti, especially on the outskirts of cities. But Il Duce remedied this confusion by decreeing that all vehicles everywhere throughout Italy should thenceforth pass each other to the right side of the road. So the Italians settled down with "Believe! Obey! (Don't) Fight!" as traffic regulations.

Three generations ago the American Conestogas, or "covered wagons," required 20 days to travel between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Together with Western pioneers crossing trackless prairies and deserts, these wagons helped establish our standard of passing traffic to the right.

Before extensive use of these "prairie schooners," most of our vehicles passed to the left, in agreement with the general English-American custom at the time. But since the drivers of these heavy freight-and-passenger haulers rode the left wheel horse, they soon discovered that passing to the right was much more convenient.

"Hang the British left-wings! We'll drive right!" they said, in effect, and took to dozing on their "lazy boards." These were adjustable drop-leaf seats set between the two left-side wheels of the Conestogas. This "revolt" gave the drivers an opportunity to keep on the shady side of their wagons, away from the hot sun. They could also "Halloo!" passing coaches, or stop their wagons more readily for a chat with an oncoming driver, or, perhaps, pass a "chaw o tobacker." And it might have been, too, that the drivers wished to avoid a form of seasickness engendered by the sight of their horses while swaying and jogging their haunches, and bobbing up and down, over the rough roads.

At any rate, their habits of passing to the right soon became prevalent in and around American cities and settlements. The wagon ruts of the Conestoga wagons were followed by vehicles of all types, willy-nilly. They had no other choice. The single-track roads were too deeply rutted by the heavy freighters to permit any other method of passage. As the Nation grew, it developed and used automobiles which traveled over the entire continent. But they were forced to travel to the right, "caught in a rut," as it were, by the indented tracks of the wagons which had preceded them.

And now—thanks to the Conestogas of the old Keystone State—we not only obey the "Drive to the Right" injunction but we even walk that way.

Oops! I'm sorry, mister. Eh? . . . Well, how was I to know you're an Englishman? MORRIS FRADIN.

Of Our Far Eastern Policy

THE RUSSO-JAPANESE agreement should have veiled a good many State Department countenances with a delicate shade of puce. For although Secretary of State Cordell Hull maintains the new pact was "expected," there can be little doubt it has made hash of the Far Eastern policy this country has been vaguely and rather half-heartedly pursuing in the last months.

ALSOP

The foundation theory of this policy was that by being nice to the Soviet Union and not too aggressively nasty to the Japanese, further trouble in the Far East, and particularly a Japanese attack on Singapore and the Dutch East Indies, might be averted. And now, although most State Department officials are still whistling to keep their courage up, there are plenty of competent authorities who predict that the trouble will come in a matter of weeks.

THE MAJOR WRONG assumption made at the State Department was that Russia could act independently of Germany, despite the presence of 70 German divisions on the Polish frontier. Until the disclosure of the pact with Japan, Russia's kind words to Jugoslavia and taps on the wrist for Germany and Hungary were interpreted as proving this assumption. But even at the State Department it is hardly questioned that Russia signed with Japan in obedience to German threats.

According to the best available reconstruction of what occurred, the chain of events that ended Sunday in Moscow started when the Japanese Foreign Minister, Yosuke Matsuoka, reached the Reichschancellory in Berlin. There, it is believed, Hitler demanded that Japan play her part as an Axis partner by attacking the British and American position in Malaya.

Matsuoka had an easy answer—that the Russians had a large army on the Manchurian frontier, were known to be giving aid to China, and had so far refused to come to terms with Japan, although negotiations in Moscow had been dragging along for months. Without assurance of safety from Russia in the North, Matsuoka is thought to have pointed out, Japan could undertake no additional commitments to the south.

THEREUPON, it is believed, unrelenting pressure was brought to bear on Russia. Probably the friends of a pro-Soviet policy in the German foreign office and army rushed to their Russian cronies and declared they could not answer for the Fuehrer's mood if a deal with Japan was not soon agreed to. However it came, there is no dispute of Germany's intervention. The terms of the Russo-Japanese agreement speak for that. For, on the one hand, Japan received the big concession of Russian recognition of Manchukuo and an assurance of immunity from Russian aggression. And on the other, the Russians abandoned their claims to the manifold bribes they once demanded, such as the other half of the Island of Sakhalin, rectification of the Manchurian frontier, favorable settlement of the fisheries question, etc.

THE EXACT language of the pact is of course infinitely less important than its meaning as an event at this time. It means two things: (1) The belief that Moscow dared to disobey Berlin has now been shown to be wishful thinking. The trivial Russian gestures in the Balkans are put in their proper perspective as attempts to maintain Soviet prestige in the Pan-Slav area, and probably to extort from Germany additional bribes for being amiable in the west.

(2) The Japanese have lost their best excuse for a quiescent policy in the Far East. A little while ago it seemed that the conservatives in the Japanese admiralty had succeeded in deferring any adventure against Singapore and the Dutch East Indies until the outcome of the summer's fighting in Europe should be known. Now, with Molotov's signature on a pact of "neutrality," and things going badly for the British in the Mediterranean, the situation is brusquely reversed. The probability (although not the certainty) is that the adventure will be attempted. The Japanese have recently formed six new divisions, bringing their total strength ready to be sent against Singapore up to about 200,000 men. Their dispositions in Indo-China and Siam are sufficiently advanced to permit prompt action. Thus there are sound grounds for the guess that they may attack Singapore or the Dutch Indies or both in the very near future.

UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES, it is disagreeably ironic that American participation in the crucial economic warfare effort has so far been prevented. in the face of strong remonstrances from the Treasury, because the State Department feared it would upset the Russians and Japanese. What makes the irony bite a little deeper is the fact that Japan is supremly vulnerable to economic attack. Our participation in economic warfare might well have proved the best implementation of the policy of the minority factions in the State and Navy Departments, who argued from the first that being tough was the surest way to keep Japan in line. Until now they have been overruled on most occasions by their superiors. Now being tough may be attempted, but unfortunately a chain of events is harder to arrest, once it is well started.

Japan's Cabinet Approves Pact; Press Warns U. S.

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, April 15.—The Russo-Japanese neutrality treaty was approved by the cabinet at its regular session today following a detailed explanation by the premier, Prince Fumimaro Konoye.

The pact now goes to the privy council for final approval and ratification by Emperor Hirohito. Because of its importance the privy council has decided to depart from the customary procedure of subjecting the pact to examination by a committee and will consider it at a plenary session as a committee of the whole.

Meanwhile, the press has begun what might be termed as a new war of nerves against Britain, the United States and Chungking, telling them in effect the pact has created a new world situation in which Russia has joined Japan, Germany and Italy in dividing the world into new spheres of influence; that, therefore, all further resistance to Japan's program for a greater East Asia coprosperity sphere is hopeless.

Stimson Highlights

Secretary Testifies

Highlights of the testimony of Secretary of War Stimson yesterday before the special Senate committee investigating the progress of the defense effort:

I

In 1917 we armed in comparative leisure behind the protection of the stabilized front in France and the complete control over the sea possessed by the Allied fleets. France and Britain being intact, we bought from them most of the heavy weapons with which we fought.

We . . . were able to limit the training of troops which was done in America to the training of divisions only, and even to send those divisions across the Atlantic in a very imperfect state of training to complete that training after they got to France.

II

Contrast with this the situation and the problems which have confronted us today.

First: We are obliged to create here in America large forces which are fully trained to operate in a war of movement.

Second: These forces must be armed and trained for a new kind of mechanized warfare involving huge numbers of new and specialized weapons which are extremely complicated in character and slow to build.

Third: Every one of these weapons must be built in this country.

III

Until . . . the Selective Service Law and the joint resolution authorizing the ordering out of the Guard were enacted by the Congress, and until the appropriation bills . . . became law, the War Department could not purchase a foot of ground or let a single contract for housing or arming the men who were to be called out under the authority of such legislation.

By the time the authority was finally given, the summer was over and our planned construction was at the mercy of the uncertain weather of the approaching winter. That winter proved to be exceptionally unfavorable.

IV

In 1917 the cantonments were intended to house troops for a shorter period than those now being constructed. We then knew our troops were going to France and that much of our training would be overseas.

Today not only are we facing a dangerous emergency but there is strong evidence that we may have to continue our effort for a long time.

Furthermore, our forces must be prepared for the possibilities of war in many and varied terrains, it being quite uncertain in what part of North or South or Central America, or even possibly other regions it ultimately may be necessary to use them in the defense of this country and its possessions.

What I wish now to emphasize and make clear is that the initial delays have already been substantially conquered and overcome; that these new and improved plans are resulting in the successful accomplishment of housing for our troops which will give them better care, better training, and better means of recreation and improvement than any American troops have ever received in the history of this country. Furthermore, this will have been done in shorter time than was the case in the Great War.

I think I am speaking in measured language when I say that in no country in the world, including our own, has its military forces ever before been provided for in so brief a time and upon so adequate a scale for ministering to their necessities and comforts.

V

Last year the War Department was faced with the necessity of acquiring in a short time munitions adequate to meet the munitions which Germany had spent seven years in producing.

Today, assuming existing priorities are not altered, we shall, in spite of the greater complexity of modern weapons, do the job from eight months to one year faster than we were doing it (in 1917 and 1918).

In the last war . . . in spite of the fact that we ordered over 23,000 tanks to be produced in this country, not a single one of those tanks was finished in time for training purposes at home or for combat use overseas. Today our production of tanks is already well under way and in quantity production in spite of the fact that the present-day tank is a far more complicated and intricate piece of mechanism than was the tank of the last war.

We have an entirely new line of artillery and mortars all involving new designs. These weapons have much greater mobility, range and in many cases, fire power than their World War counterparts. In all of these items we are far ahead of our 1917 schedules.

VI

Roughly, the airplanes today cost five times more than they did in 1917 and, while some allowance must be made for increased labor and material costs, these figures give a fairly accurate measure of the greater complexity of the planes which we now have to produce as compared with those of 1917.

In 1917, it was not until October—nearly seven months after war had been declared—that a single one of the famous old DH-4's was ordered and it was not until late in 1918 that the first planes were delivered in France. Those planes, by the way, although a standard combat type in 1917, could not anywhere nearly equal the performance of our basic trainer plane today.

VII

By the middle of this summer the Army will be assembled, housed, and in the full course of its training.

From this point forward, the chief responsibility for the speedy completion of the equipment will rest upon American industry.

VIII

With the magnitude of the task and the speed and pressure under which it was performed, it is inevitable that some mistakes have been made; but, when the work of this committee is completed, I am confident that it will be found that the total of those mistakes will appear quite insignificant when set against the value of the time saved and the size of the task performed.

The Moscow Pact

By Ernest Lindley

American Reaction

THE FULL MEANING of the Soviet-Jap pact is not yet clear, but experts in both the Navy and State Departments support Secretary Hull's statement that its importance "could be overestimated."

The main deterrent to a Japanese thrust at the East Indies and Singapore is the United States fleet. So long as our fleet remains in the Pacific, Japan runs the risk of defeat if it moves southward. Not just a repulse, but eventually total defeat: the destruction or surrender of her navy, the loss of her entire Asiatic Empire, and her reduction to the status of a small island nation with no means of supporting her large population.

LINDLEY

Our military people admit no doubt whatsoever about the outcome of a war between us and Japan: provided we go into action while Singapore still stands, and provided we are not interrupted by events which require moving the fleet or major parts of it back to the Atlantic. The differences on this question among our naval experts are only as to the length of time required to bring Japan to her knees.

The possibility of an attack on her rear or flank by Russia was a secondary deterrent to Japan. But it could be only secondary, and in recent months probably had been of little consequence. This is because the Japanese were known to have had promises from Hitler that if the Russians moved against Japan, he would immediately invade Russia. As to the ability of the German panzer divisions to slash through Russia, there probably was no more doubt in Japan than there is among our own military observers. Hitler has kept a million men or more on the Russian frontier, apparently ready to move instantly.

While holding implicit threats over the heads of the Russians, Hitler has been urging them for months to sign a non-aggression pact with Japan. At the same time, the pact ostensibly does give the Russians greater security at their Asiatic rear if they decide to put a stiffer front toward Hitler. It is impossible to be sure whether their recent expressions of displeasure at seeing the Nazis in the Balkans represent the beginning of a real shift in policy, or whether they were merely being mildly obstreperous to improve their position.

ON ITS SURFACE, the Soviet-Jap pact does not go so far as Hitler and Japan are believed to have desired. It reveals no agreement on the partitioning of China south of Manchukuo and Mongolia. The Russians made no public promise to stop aiding Chiang Kai-shek. What was unwritten in the pact probably will come to light only slowly and uncertainly. Both the Russians and Japanese are devious, and it is doubtful whether they trust each other much more today than they did before signing their non-aggression agreement.

The Japanese cannot immediately threaten our national security. Our danger from that side is the longer-range one, if the Japs acquire control of all East Asia and the riches of Oceania—and especially if the Germans also should be victorious over England. We, on the other hand, can immediately threaten Japan's national security, with a blockade based on Singapore and Hawaii and intervening points.

If the Japs misjudge the situation, they may lose everything. If we misjudge it, we may lose prestige and a measure of security, but not our national existence. It is doubted here that Japan will take the awful risks of an attack on the East Indies and Singapore—unless Hitler meanwhile has overthrown Great Britain and our fleet is ordered to the Atlantic side.

We have gone on the theory that the Japanese were too sensible to take a leap which may mean death just to accommodate Hitler. We are continuing on that theory. The fleet remains in the Pacific.

AT THE SAME TIME, we have avoided putting heavy pressure on Japan. The Japs are proud and brave, and if cornered they can be expected to fight, no matter what the odds against them. So our policy has been a temporizing one. We have now and then applied a little more pressure, and have implied—without saying it—that there are limits to the expansion of the Japanese empire which will be tolerable to us. They know that if they go into the East Indies or strike at Singapore—unless the British Isles meanwhile have been conquered—they will almost certainly provoke war with us.

If the Japs are confident that Hitler will defeat Great Britain, they can afford to wait. If they are doubtful about it, common sense will stay their hand.

Russian policy is almost certainly dominated by fear of the Nazi army, although its longer-range hope probably is a war so long and so destructive as to exhaust all the other large nations of the world. But the Russians cannot be happy about the present thrust of the Nazis and the impending threat to Turkey. Another Nazi-Soviet deal may be in the making, but any which gives the Nazis control of the Dardanelles and the Straits of Bosporus and recognizes their right to control the Balkans is the negation of historic Russian policy and of present-day Russian interests.

In time we will see the result of the Russo-Jap pact. Meanwhile our experts in Washington are keeping on their shirts.

Monroe Doctrine Invoked By President on Greenland

In a discussion of the historical background leading to the inclusion of Greenland in the Western Hemisphere defense system, President Roosevelt yesterday invoked the Monroe Doctrine as justification for the action, announced April 10.

Explaining that a few years ago the question arose as to title to Greenland, the President said this country did not press its own claims, based on exploration of certain northern sections of the world's largest island, and accepted, instead, those of Denmark, which rested on 900 years of colonization, dating from the time of Lief Ericson.

As a result, Mr. Roosevelt added, Greenland assumed the same status of other Western Hemisphere colonies of European nations, and as such, was included in the policy of the Monroe Doctrine prohibiting transfer of a colony from one non-American sovereignty to another, inimical to the interests of the American republics.

Mr. Roosevelt put the seal of Presidential approval on Secretary of State Hull's declaration Monday that he would continue to recognize Henrik de Kauffmann as Danish Minister, despite orders for his recall from the Nazi-controlled Danish government. De Kauffmann signed the Greenland pact without Danish governmental sanctions.

Since the United States has held that Denmark's government has been under duress since the German occupation of the country a year ago, the President explained to his press conference, the Administration could not treat it now as not being under duress.

That being so, he added, this Government is applying the Monroe Doctrine and is protecting Greenland against another European nation, trusting that as soon as the duress is over, Greenland will be restored to an independent Denmark.

The Once Over

DEAR MA—

In a army you certainly meet up with lots of interesting people of all kinds from all parts of the country. In my tent is a Alabama boy, a bellhop from Rahway, N. J., a kid who lived all his life in Key West and the first sergent has Indian blood, talks with a Greek accent and was raised in Ohio. There was a Chinaman on the kitchen police detail with me and if the outfit I am with ever gets to Europe it will know most of the languages.

I still get too much k. p. work and yesterday I had a job making up sandwitches for a regiment going on a hike. I never knew so many sandwitches could be put up in one morning and I got what is known as sandwitch wrist which is like a Charley horse only worse. Why I get picked out for so much k. p. work I can not figure out but I guess I am being trained for a delicattessen division.

I never seen anybody eat like this army eats & you would think that up to the time of the draft the boys had never seen no square meal befoar in their lives. You can can take it from me most of them billlions being voted by Congress will half to be used up just paying for eats. And there will be a big food shortage at home mom on account of the army eating so much food there won't be none left for the sivilans. Personally I don't eat mutch but I would appreshiate a bottle of beer with my chow but I do not think the army considers beer in the defense pogrom witch is where it is making a big mistake.

Remember I wrote you about all the trubble I was halfing with my feet mom well do not worry no more. I am kind of ashamed to admit it but after I had been wearing the wrong shoe on the wrong foot I mean the left shoe on the right foot and vica versatile. No wonder my dogs hurt all the time. It may make me seam stupid mom but it was easy to do becuz the shoes they issue to me was three sizes two big witch is why I didn't notis the mistake at wunst. Yesterday I had a headache and the doctor who is a great joker said maybe I had my hat on crossways.

I am getting bayernett practice witch I do not like becuz it hurts me more than the dummies and I do not like the idea of stabbing nobody. The sergent told me to imagine the dummy is somebody I do not care for and wood like to murder, so I tried to imagine it was our landlord and he had raised your rent agin. I did not mind bayernet practice so much after that and today I am starting with a new dummy witch I am going to imagin is a draft army dentist witch I had to go two last month. And I am going to pull that old one about this aint going to hurt.

I see the war over in Europe is getting wurser and I think maybe we may wind up in the Ballcans or Greece. I read in all the papers that I will never be ast to serve on forrin soil but I have a feeling I have ben promised to the Serbs or somebody as a speshul six months loan just the same. But I am getting sick of so mutch training and wood just as leave fight somebody especially if it wood help some brave fellows like them Crovenes and Sloats and Serbites.

I will half to close now as it is time for inspeckshun again which I can not understand as I was inspected lots of time already. The crullers you baked was fine. Call up the garage and see if they sold my jalloppy yet and if not take another dollar off the asting price.

Your loving son,
Oscar.

P. S.—If you could send me $5 I would pay it back as soon as I get my pay witch I don't know when.

Big Wool Fire At Boston Spreads To Tenement Area

Boston, April 15 (U.P.).—A general alarm was sounded late today when fire that started in a series of two-story garages in South Boston leaped a street to a wool warehouse and spread rapidly into a block of tenements.

Police said the blaze was centered in the General Wool Co. warehouse and that flames spouted 60 feet in the air from the tinder-dry Australian wool stored there.

The Latest Upsurge Of Defeatism

THE INTENSE pessimism regarding the outlook for Britain which has taken possession of many Americans following the spectacular German victories in the Balkans and North Africa is of a kind with the hopelessness which set in last June at the time of the sudden collapse of France. And it is just as unreasoning. To paraphrase Walpole, many who only a short while ago were ringing the bells are now wringing their hands.

NOVER

The prophets of gloom are busy in the land. They see the Balkans lost to Hitler in a matter of days, German panzer divisions driving on successfully to Alexandria and the Suez Canal, the British Mediterranean fleet trapped, Germany acquiring the oil fields of Irak and Iran and thus providing an endless supply of gasoline and lubricants for its war machine, Britain invaded by midsummer, the war lost, the world lost. All this because Yugoslavia's defensive capacity proved unequal to her magnificent will to resist, because the British and Greeks have so far been unable to stop the German juggernaut in its plunge to the south and because German mechanized forces have robbed the British of all the territorial gains previously made by Gen. Wavell's Army of the Nile.

NOW THERE can be no discounting the seriousness of the situation in which Great Britain and her allies find themselves today. In the Balkans they had a magnificent opportunity to halt Hitler in his tracks. They have failed to do so. Britain may soon lose the only foothold she has on the European continent. Her position in the Mediterranean is unquestionably in greater peril today that at any time since the Franco-German armistice when the possibility arose of the French fleet being taken over by the Nazis. There is the additional danger that the German forces now in Libya and others moving into Libya may move west as well as east and while threatening Gibraltar from the African side further imperil British communications by establishing a base at Dakar.

The outlook for Britain is grim. To say that it is hopeless is to expect all the evil potentialities inherent in the present situation actually to develop and to develop quickly while at the same time ignoring the fundamental changes which have occurred in the world since the fall of France.

WHEN FRANCE fell, Great Britain was practically helpless, except for sea power and the magnificent morale of her people. She had miraculously rescued her army at Dunkerque, but when that army arrived on British soil it was an army without arms. It did not even possess rifles in adequate quantities, let alone mechanized equipment. That equipment had been left behind in Flanders. Nor was the United States in a position to supply the British with much more than weapons left over from the last war, Springfield rifles, French 75s, later, 50 over-age destroyers. Hitler could draw on all of Europe for his needs.

Since then the British have achieved prodigies of valor in training and equipping themselves for the defense of their isles. Beginning with the great daylight attacks on British ports and airdromes last August, they have beaten off wave after wave of German bombers. They have begun to achieve the mastery of night bombing even as they have taken the measure of the German luftwaffe in the daylight. And all this time their offensive capacity in the air has grown. Such raids as those on Cologne and Hanover and Kiel which the R. A. F. carried out recently were impossible nine months ago.

THESE MONTHS have also seen a fundamental change in the Italian position. Last summer Italy was Germany's ally; now she is her prisoner. Last summer Italy had a fleet; her fleet is in rags and tatters now. Even if the gains made by Gen. Wavell in Libya between January and March of this year have now been wiped off the books the fact remains that the bulk of Marshal Graziani's army has been destroyed.

The Germans themselves have had to take over the African front and thus spread out their military man power even thinner than before. As long as victory perches on their banners, this does not much matter. But the long-run consequences of this diffusion of German military strength may be anything but happy for Hitler. And in the Balkans the enormous prestige gained by the Germans through their remarkable military victories is offset to some extent at least by the fact that in having to win this victory they were compelled to smash up one of their great supply sources for foodstuffs and minerals.

IN THE MEANTIME a fundamental change has occurred in our industrial setup. A year ago our defense industry was utterly inadequate to the task demanded by the situation. It is still inadequate. But it grows more nearly adequate each day. We are not turning out enough planes, tanks, ships, munitions. We are turning out very much more than we did last year and our productive capacity is steadily growing. In time the promised flood of supplies from this country to Great Britain can turn the tide. But these supplies must reach the British and not find their way to the bottom of the ocean.

Far more serious than the defeats which Great Britain has suffered in the Balkans and Egypt is the threat to her overseas communications from U-boats, surface raiders and bombing planes. British shipping losses have reached a staggering level. Unless these losses are cut, Britain may ultimately be strangled. It is the Atlantic rather than the Aegean or the Mediterranean which is still the decisive theater of war. If the British win the Battle of the Atlantic, and they can do so with our aid, any victories which Hitler may win in the Balkans or Africa or anywhere else will turn up ultimately on the liability side of his ledger. The decision is up to us. We cannot evade it and we can only postpone it to our undoing and the undoing of those for whom, in self-interest, we have become an arsenal. Shall we, asks Roscoe Drummond in a thoughtful article in the Christian Science Monitor, act to win the war or act to concede it? That is the issue.

Oh, well, as Mr. Shakespeare wrote,
  Or was it Mr. Homer?
A name's a name, 'cept when you vote,

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Hats in the Ring

Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, noted reformer, faces another fight to retain the presidency of the Do Something About It League.

Mrs. DeGoofey

At her press conference yesterday, Mrs. DeGoofey, wearing her new dove of peace Easter hat, announced that she would "fight to the finish" the efforts of the faction led by Mrs. Marmaduke Wadd to displace her. Mrs. Wadd, widow of the nut cup tycoon, last year led an unsuccessful campaign to wrest the presidency of the league from Mrs. DeGoofey.

"Will Mrs. Wadd herself run again?" asked a London correspondent.

"No indeed. She is too clever for that. Her faction is putting up what it calls a 'coalition' candidate, a Mrs. Buffington Blah, whom no one has ever heard of. Moreover, my agents inform me that Mrs. Wadd and the leaders of her faction have been holding caucuses daily in the butler's pantry of the Plush Sofa Club."

The Old Story—'Outs' Want In

"On what issues are you being opposed, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked a representative of The New Republic.

"Oh, my opponents have a lot of high-flown names for their issues," was the reply, "but as a matter of fact it is just the old story of the outs wanting in.

"I understand they are charging that I am backed by the 'machine crowd' in the club, and that I head a little clique that wants to run everything. Now that is absurd. I am perfectly willing to turn over my leadership in the Do Something About It League—if and when I find anyone who can run things as well as I run them. Now organized this league three years ago and now that it has become popular, socially ambitious women like Mrs. Wadd are trying to horn in and run things.

Mrs. Blah

"I also understand that Mrs. Wadd and her faction do not approve of my recent campaigns to have initials eliminated from names, to have women wear cellophane protectors to prevent silk hose from running, and to eliminate the long jackets from 'little suits.'

"They are especially incensed over my campaign to cut down on all the social and club eating that is being done by women while so much of the world goes hungry. That of course is easy to understand. One look at Mrs. Wadd is the answer.

Lack of 'Benefits' Her Undoing

"Also I understand the Wadd faction thinks I have been remiss this year in not having the league give more benefits. Now I have felt that the greatest service the league could render the country was NOT to give any benefits. Understand, however, I am not opposed to the worthy causes for which benefits are held. It is just that I think too much time and money are spent on them. I can't see why people can't dig down in their jeans and do a little sacrificing to help a good cause instead of having to dress up, eat and make themselves generally spectacular in their good works."

"What is your plan of campaign, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked a returned war correspondent.

"I shall of course hold a few campaign rallies, make some radio addresses, mail out literature and make a personal canvass of all voters," was the reply. "But aside from that I am standing entirely on my record."

Mrs. Blah, reached at her residence last night, would make no statement beyond admitting that she was a candidate for the presidency of the Do Something About It League. She referred all inquiries to her Mrs. Wadd.

"I never give interviews or make public statements," said Mrs. Blah.

Lash Curler Gives the Eyes That 'Come-Hither'

Artists illustrating the newest romance are sure to sketch the heroine with up-curling lashes, so long and luxuriant they almost shadow the eyebrows.

It may be too much to expect such perfection in real life, but enhancing the beauty of the eyes can be accomplished with a few good eye cosmetics and with a gadget or two to make it easier. And a good place to start is with the eyelash curler.

It is also a good idea, though not necessary, to apply a bit of lash cream before using the curler. Scissors-like handles make the curler easy to hold and assure a firm, even pressure on the lashes. Open the curler with these handles, placing the curling end over the lashes clear to the roots and press the handles together. Hold them there for 30 to 40 seconds (a rubber guard protects the lashes) and when released the lashes are sweeping upward like the artist's pencil strokes.

Whether you use liquid or cake mascara, don't apply it so thickly that the lashes bunch together in spike-like groups.

Savory Stew

A STEW is an ideal dish for maidless homes for it simmers right along with no special attention being given to it. It tastes even better when reheated, so prepare it in the morning and heat just before serving. Many business women make it the night before.

The tender and delicious juices in stew meat bring the nutritive values to the table in one of the most savory and easy-to-eat forms. The housewife can build a stew that makes life worth living at very low cost when she uses lamb.

Little else is to be desired when stew is served. Hard rolls, or corn sticks, a simple green vegetable salad and baked apples with cookies would complete the meal. Here is a recipe by which beef or veal stew may be made.

Lamb Stew

Remove excess fat from 2 pounds of lamb chunklets (2-inch cubes from lamb shoulder). Brown meat in hot, dry pan. Add 2½-can tomatoes, 1-inch pieces celery, small carrots, salt, pepper, bay leaf, cloves. Cover, simmer 1 hour or until meat is tender. Add partially cooked onions and slices of green pepper. Cook 20 minutes more. Leftover potato balls, cauliflower or lima beans may be added (cook 10 minutes longer). Serves six.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wed Seven Years to Charming, Devoted, Prosperous Man Whose Love She Returns, Woman Is Haunted by Constant Feeling of "Utter Loneliness;" Why?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I wonder if you could offer some solution to my problem. I have been married for seven years to an attractive, successful man who, from all indications, is deeply in love with me. He never denies me any material gift that money can buy and shows me every attention. I have never doubted my love and affection for him. We have no children and have never felt any great desire for them, although we would have had them if it were possible.

We are both great dog lovers and keep them at our town house as well as at our place in the country. My husband is an architect and travels during the week for a large firm. He is never at home except on week-ends, which we spend quietly on the farm with the dogs. He is a portrait painter in his spare time and devotes much of his leisure at home to painting. He seems greatly ambitious to make money for my sake.

Before I was married, I was a gay, fun-loving soul with a keen sense of humor and the capacity to throw off anything resembling trouble or worry. There is no reason why I shouldn't be the same now, for I have had more to make me happy since my marriage than I had before. But wherever I go, whatever I do, I am haunted by a feeling of utter loneliness and helplessness, so acute that it is almost unbearable. I have tried every remedy. I have plenty of companionship during the week, as my friends are most kind about including me in their plans, and although I am very gay, outwardly, at the many parties I attend, I am inwardly heartsick.

I have tried working in a friend's real estate office, which gave temporary surcease, but the old feeling soon returned. At one time or another, I have done all kinds of civic and social service work. I have contributed largely of my time and money toward the rearing and education of an orphan, and have done many acts to lessen the load of others, hoping that by making someone else happy, I could become happy myself. But all of these things proved to be without substance.

I do not believe my trouble comes from selfishness, as I usually subordinate my wishes to those of others. When my husband is home, we do the things he likes to do. I am as lonely when he is here as I am when he is away. This is not a recent development but has existed over a period of years. It seems to be a yearning for something intangible. Is it merely a part of human nature to feel this way? Or is my case singular? And can it be solved? Please do not advise a psychiatrist. Your advice will be most welcome.

DISTURBED.

Fine Spirit's Distaste For Parasitical Role

DEAR DISTURBED: Your feeling of 'utter loneliness and helplessness" seems comparable to that which a ghost might feel, if circulating bootlessly in a world of busy people. And it occurs to me that you are suffering from a sense of futility, of uselessness, of purposelessness; from a conviction that you aren't "justifying your existence," in the sociological scheme of things.

Your pseudo-maternal devotion to dogs, partial investment in an orphan's welfare, and miscellaneous efforts to "lessen the load of others," suggests to me that childlessness accounts, in large part, for your chronic soul-sickness—which is aggravated, rather than relieved, by participation in a frivolous routine of aimless pastimes.

You are not content with being a parasite. You are sufficiently "true woman" to want to be indispensably needed by, and uniquely useful to, your own little family group. Instinctively you desire to relate yourself to life by functioning as creator and conservor of the race of man. Yet here you are, engaged in a role that amounts, in essence and at most, to being a playmate to your husband in his leisure hours.

Your marriage has never been, for you, a deeply satisfying "way-of-life." It has not given you a woman's job to do—in the doing of which you would experience a continuous sense of personal worthwhileness, of rare human value, of social authenticity. You have not been called upon to share, in adult fashion, any important, inescapable partnership responsibilities with your husband. Under the existing arrangement, he has been the indulgent patron and you the pampered charge. It is a role against which any woman (or wife) of fine and high spirit would rebel; a role which, however gaily undertaken, eventually would suffuse such a woman with a sick (though nebulous) dismay.

In "The Importance of Living," Dr. Lin Yutang discusses, with ineffable mildness and x-ray insight, the psychic malaise which seizes fine women who are circumstantially divorced from their proper role of begetting and nurturing chilren,—and of presiding, with the benign and self respecting authority of womanhood fulfilled, over the manifold affairs of those whose destinies are intertwined with theirs. Such women, he tells us, when so denied, turn to "causes" in search of fragmentary consolation for the central expression they have missed. They engage in "human betterment" activities; and are often lushly sentimental in their regard for animals. Indeed, what he has to say on the subject might have been written expressly for you.

Far from "yearning for something intangible," you are aching with need to come to grips with realistic living; to take on your shoulders your proper share of the burden of society—not in a dilettante's fashion of dabbling and dismissing; but in a spirit of complete and permanent, disciplined dedication to a splendidly important task, which will be yours to answer for to the end of your days. My advice to you is to "tie into" your marriage by having children (your husband willing, of course)—and by the adoption route, if that is the only means available to you.

With countless thousands of children needing and yearning for the kind of "mothering" you are equipped (emotionally and economically) to provide—It seems a pity, almost a crime, for you to be dawdling between your town house and your country place, filling your days with manufactured "social" pursuits, when you could be living vitally all the while in the role for which woman was fashioned by nature. Exercise, Massage Make Shapely Legs

By Ida Jean Kain

SOME FAT ladies have fat legs, others possess legs that are not so frail. And some very slim girls have a well turned calf and ankle. All of this would seem to show it's not weight nearly so much as musculature.

Of course, weight may be a general problem. An overweight with disproportionately large legs needs to diet. If her leg muscles are flabby, special exercise will bring about a marked improvement. The thin girl with underdeveloped legs must have more calories, plus exercise to round out the leg contours. The overweight woman with thin legs needs a similar set of exercises along with her diet.

Gives Shapelier Contour

Thick bones can't be changed but well-toned muscle is shapely and it tends to give you shapelier contours, including that tapered line from calf to ankle on which legs are judged.

Perfect measurements differ according to structure. For instance, the light girl may have perfect legs measuring from 11¾ inches to 12½ inches at the calf, and from 7½ to 8 at the ankle. A more solidly built girl may have legs equally good but measuring from 12½ inches to 14 at the calf, and from 8 inches to 8½ at the ankle.

But a good pair of legs always has a definitely tapered calf-to-ankle line, and it depends mostly on musculature. Flabby muscles give an up-and-down straight line which make thin legs look spindly and thick legs massive.

Legs that are too large improve most rapidly with the type of exercise which stretches the muscles. Stand on a large book, with ball of foot on the book and the heel free. Very slowly lower heels until they are touching the floor. Rise on toes and repeat 20 times.

Another good leg stretcher is to sit on the floor with legs straight out in front, reach over and grasp the toes and pull toward you. Rest and repeat 0 times in all.

Massage Helps

When the muscles are bunchy, massage is the most effective measure. Sit on floor with legs elevated a few inches on footstool or pillows. Work on one leg at a time. Grasp ankle firmly with both hands and, exerting a steady pressure, draw hands up and toward knee. If you have massage, get your masseuse to devote about 15 minutes to your legs.

Generally speaking, legs need both contracting and stretching exercise. One of the simplest exercises is to keep on your toes for about 10 minutes a day—kick off your shoes and walk or dance around on tiptoes for that length of time. Walking out of doors in heels that are not too high, swimming and bicycling are all good legwork. And, by the way, bicyling is often recommended for the correction of a knock-kneed appearance.

Several Hundred Enjoy Parties Given by the Lands and Distlers

By Hope Ridings Miller

TEATIME YESTERDAY found several hundred members of Washington society out and about at two parties that gave a gala accent to the current calendar. Celebrating the fourth birthday of the United States Maritime Commission—one day early—Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the commission, and Mrs. Land, entertained at the Army-Navy Club from 5 to 7 o'clock. At the same time, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Distler were gathering in a sizable company at the 1925 F Street Club. Both parties extended far beyond the final hour that went out on the invitations.

I'll begin with the Land party which, according to the hostess, was "strictly a Maritime affair." The second floor reception room of the club was turned over to the fete, and I must say the latter was as pleasant a get-together as I've attended this season. No, there wasn't a birthday cake. (I asked why, but nobody answered.) There were, however, a pleasant company, delicious refreshments and, of course, a host and hostess who have long been known as one of Washington's most popular couples.

Receiving informally, Mrs. Land was trimly—and appropriately—turned out in a seagreen crepe frock, fashioned floor length, and accented with a small purple straw hat covered with violets. Admiral Land mingled in the crowd and saw that everybody had a good time. The Vice Chairman of the Maritime Commission and Mrs. Thomas M. Woodward were among those arriving early and staying late, as were two Maritime commissioners, Capt. Howard Vickery, who was accompanied by Mrs. Vickery, and former Representative John J. Dempsey, whom I saw after I'd been talking with pretty Mrs. Dempsey for at least a quarter of an hour.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Josiah Bailey, Mrs. Otis Bland, Mrs. W. Garland Fay, Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. Creighton Peet and Miss Eleanor Van Valey. To mention but a few others I saw—there were Joshua Evans, telling friends that Mrs. Evans is now viewing the beauties of the Southland; Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Ring, chatting with Creighton Peet; Representative Otis Bland, a popular center of attention, and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, advising somebody from Maryland that "Mrs. William D. Byron probably will get that Congressional seat—so you might as well vote for a winner." When I finally tore away from the party guests were still coming in by the dozens.

MEANWHILE, a few blocks away the Distler party was also well under way. By the time I arrived at 6 o'clock, the event had turned into the first garden fete of the season, and guests had collected in droves in the cool shade of the trees that make the "back yard" of the F Street club one of the most attractive party-settings in all Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Distler received inside, and while an orchestra played a series of lively tunes in the drawing room, they greeted a long line of guests. The hostess, who looked as if she might have stepped out of a fashion picture, wore a frock of mauve chiffon, made on flowing lines with huge pockets of mauve blossoms that matched her small hat. Accenting the latter was a band of cerise velvet that blended with the gloves, bag and shoes that completed the attractive costume.

"LOOKS AS IF the whole town's here . . . and no mistake about it," said one guest as he surveyed the throng and then made his way to a table surrounded by a bevy of beauties. I'd say that at least 400 guests put in an appearance before the final sandwich was passed, and the final farewell voiced.

When the party moved outdoors, the tea table was deserted; so the long list of ladies assisting the hostess soon found themselves outside too . . . moving from one group of guests to another and taking their husbands on personally conducted tours through the garden.

SEEN IN PASSING: Mrs. Hamilton Fish, sitting with Mrs. McCeney Werlich until the latter had to leave in time to get home for the dinner she gave last night. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Royal T. McKenna, seeming to know everybody present. . . . Mrs. Robert Fleming greeting Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce, who are just back from an extended stay in Florida. . . . Pendleton Hogan, chatting with Mrs. William P. MacCracken. . . . Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman and Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock being besieged with invitations to join groups clustered around the garden tables. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Fred Britten, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilber, and Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Smith adding to the gayety of the assemblage. . . . Mr. and Mrs. John McClure leaving just in time to get to the dinner the Charles Palmers were giving.

MOST DASHING costume there was worn by Mrs. Moran Drury, who had chosen a yellow and orange figured frock, set off with a yellow cape and a wide-brimmed, off-the-face hat of orange straw—very smart, Runner-up for sartorial honors, however, was Mrs. John J. Shugrue, whose chartreuse ensemble was worth a fashion write-up all its own.

Over from Baltimore especially for the occasion were Mrs. Robert E. Bradley, sister of the hostess, and the latter's sister-in-law, Mrs. John Cyrus Distler. Mrs. Robert Ash, Mrs. Everett Sanders, Mrs. John W. Guider, Mrs. Loy Henderson, Mrs. John Crosby and Mrs. William A. Morgan were among those assisting Mrs. Distler, as were Mrs. Mae Hamilton, Mrs. Francis D. Thomas and Mrs. Irene Caldwell.

H. Pope arrived during the latter half of the party to join their wives, both of whom were assistant hostesses. Still others seen in the throng were Mrs. A. M. Nevius, Mrs. Thilman Hendrick, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Merle Thorpe, Miss Eleanor Connolly, Joseph Tumulty, who had quite a crowd around him; Miss Meredith Howard, attired in a stunning purple ensemble; George Williams, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, Mrs. James Craig Peacock and, at least, 300 others.

Becomes Bride At Home Here

MRS. SAUNDERS PARRISH, who, before her wedding yesterday at the home of her parents, was Miss Frances Rockwell Brainerd

First Lady's Niece White House Guest

Stopping at the White House are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Proctor Elliott who are on their wedding trip. The former Miss Eleanor Roosevelt was married in Dedham, Mass., and the ceremony was attended by her aunt, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The young couple are en route to Mexico City. Yesterday they visited the embassy to obtain the necessary passports and plan to leave Washington today for the South.

George Abell Leaves On Trip to West Coast

Returning early yesterday from North Carolina, where he and his son, Ty'er Abell, spent the weekend with friends, George Abell left last night for Chicago, en route to the West Coast. He will be gone about six weeks.

Mr. Abell has leased his apartment at 1606 Twentieth Street to Maurice Hutton, of the British Buying Council. Mrs. Hutton, who is still in England, is expected to join her husband here in a few weeks.

Miss Brainerd Becomes Bride

With her four sisters as bridesmaids, Miss Frances Rockwell Brainerd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Brainerd, jr., was married yesterday afternoon at 4 to Saunders Parrish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Albert Parrish, of Crestview, Fla. The ceremony took place at the Brainerd home, 2234 California Street, the Rev. Albert J. McCartney officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown made with a sweetheart neck. Her long veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried white roses and valley lilies. The bridesmaids were the Misses Jane, Betty, Ethel and Edith Brainerd. They wore peach and blue jacket frocks of marquisette and carried old-fashioned bouquets of spring flowers. Sidney Alvarez was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. Assisting were Mrs. Clifford McCleod, sister of Mr. Parrish; Miss Evelyn Parrish, his cousin; Miss Nancy Kittelle, Miss Marian Sears, Miss Katherine Hubbard and Mrs. Thomas McCormick. The house was decorated with palms and spring flowers.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Charles A. Adams, of Middlebury, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hubbard, Muskogee, Okla., and Mrs. Charles Guigon, of Richmond.

Miss Stapleton, Fiance Feted By Miss Flood

That much feted couple, Miss Stellita Stapleton and George Renchard, were honor guests at a cocktail party given yesterday afternoon by Miss Eleanor Flood.

The hostess, entertaining in her apartment at the Shoreham, looked cool and spring-like in a green flowered print. Off the living room is a balcony overlooking the lawn, and standing room there was at a premium.

Miss Stapleton, who said she had unpacked 108 wedding presents that afternoon, looked calm and collected in a pale pink woolen jacket and black and pink skirt. A black straw hat with a feather completed her costume.

Seen here and there: Justice Frank Murphy . . . the Misses Edith and Mary Wright, the latter wearing a polka dot print . . . Baron James Baeyens of the French Embassy . . . Miss Sylvaja Szechenyi, among the balcony sitters . . . Nathan Bartlett chatting in the library with Dean Rucker.

Walter Birge, who is awaiting assignment to his first Foreign Service post . . . He recently passed the State Department exams . . . Mr. and Mrs. Thacher Winslow, who are settled at their place in Virginia for the spring . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robinson McIlvaine and Miss Page Huidekoper arriving together . . . Middleton Train, Samuel Biddle, Zeva Fish and her cousin, Beth Kean, both with Florida sunburns . . . Miss Mary Wilson had with her Miss Mary Anderson, of San Francisco, who is visiting her.

Eugenia Coleman Will Be Honored At Luncheon Today

Bride-elect Mary Eugenia Coleman, whose marriage to Ensign Louis Roddis is set for June 7, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given today by Miss Phyllis Walke Richardson. The party will take place at White House, the Fairfax, Va., home of the hostess' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Richardson.

Guests will include Miss Mary Betts, Miss Alice Ingersoll, Miss Mary Lane Macatee, Miss Anne Lippincott, the Misses Marian and Mary Theresa Norris, Miss Jacqueline Wilkinson, Miss Yvonne Perrin, Miss Mary Anne Ferrandou, Miss Audrey Cowan, Miss Marcia O'Brien, Miss Virginia Galt, Miss Achsah Dorsey, Miss Sybella Clayton, Miss Mary-Stuart Price, Miss Lina Macatee, Miss Priscilla Watson, Miss Eula Counsil, Miss Anne Barrett and Miss Randolph Richardson, sister of the hostess.

All those in the above list will serve as ushers for the showing of Ray Scott's films at Constitution Hall on April 27 for the benefit of United China Relief.

Mrs. Bacon Gives Dinner for Baldwins

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon entertained at a dinner party last night at her home on F Street, in honor of Representative and Mrs. Joseph Baldwin, of New York.

Mrs. Baldwin arrived yesterday from her home in New York City and is stopping with Mrs. Bacon. She will return tomorrow. Mrs. Baldwin plans to join her husband here permanently in the fall.

A. B. Campbell Here

Arthur Bradley Campbell has returned after an absence of several months and is staying with Clarence Hewes at the latter's home. Mr. Hewes will entertain at a dinner tonight and at a luncheon tomorrow.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

AUSTIN BLODGET, broker husband of Cornelia Otis Skinner, spent his first day in Washington this week running down a cameo for his wife to wear on opening night. At the last minute it was decided she needed one for her costume, so Mr. Blodget began calling up friends to ask where a cameo could be found. He tried several shops before unearthing one for "only $15."

HARMON

Miss Skinner and Somerset Maugham had never met until John Golden asked her if she would star in his play. She is going to ask Mr. Maugham to autograph his books for her. A talented writer herself, Miss Skinner has just sold two more pieces to the New Yorker. One way she manages to conserve time for acting and writing is by never going out to luncheons or teas.

DONALD OENSLAGER, who designed the four sets in "Theater," always loses a hat during rehearsals of every new production. Once, when "You Can't Take it With You" had been running for months, he came across his bonnet adorning a hatrack used in one of the scenes. It had been included in the props. Another time, when properties were being returned after a show closed, his hat came to light in a large pickle jar.

Miss Skinner's co-workers never stop praising her. They say she never loses her temper or raises her voice, even when, as last week in Wilmington, they toiled from 9 one morning until 4 the next.

A GUEST at Mrs. Longworth's after-theater party the other night remarked that nobody can mix people as successfully as she. "There were America First adherents, interventionists, Republicans and Democrats, all having a wonderful time together," observed the guest admiringly the next day.

Somerset Maugham wandered about, she added, with a pencil stuck in his dinner jacket . . . Adolph Berle, Emil Hurja and Fulton Lawis, jr., formed a group in front of the fireplace . . . Arthur Krock wandered about from one guest to another . . . Frederick Bradlee, talented young actor who plays the role of Miss Skinner's son, was surrounded by other young people. He is the nephew of Mrs. D. P. Morgan, of Washington . . . Senator Robert Taft was the only man in a white tie—he probably had been addressing a dinner beforehand . . . the George Sloanes came up from Warrenton for the party, and Frank Kent was there from Baltimore . . . and several others, some sitting at small tables set up in the dining room.

Wonder what James Penfield, our consul in Greenland, will think when people descend on his post to construct the new airplane bases? When Mr. Penfield was named to Greenland last year his friends were sure he would find the life lonely and monotonous. But after a return visit to Washington, where he spent a holiday, our consul observed: "People here all talk too much . . . Crown Princess Martha of Norway has a hobby—photography. Snaps she took of her children feeding their ducks at their Maryland home are reproduced in the interesting magazine, Norway. This publication has been issued by the Norwegian Legation . . . Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss has settled down at Merrywood, the Auchincloss home in Virginia, after a Florida vacation. Close friends say that neither she nor her husband have the remotest idea of changing their address . . . What prominent debutante sat through the opening baseball game the other afternoon patiently waiting for the half to be over?

Several Dinners Planned to Precede Arcade Auction

Mrs. Hoyer Millar, wife of the First Secretary of the British Embassy, will be among those entertaining at dinner tonight before the Piccadilly Arcade auction sale at Anderson House. Mrs. Millar's party, which has been arranged in honor of Miss Anne Harcourt, the British artist, will take place at the Millar home on Massachusettts Avenue. Guests will include Jonkheer H. R. van Swinderen, former Netherlands Minister to England, and Mme. van Swinderen; William Elmslie, of the British Embassy, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hinton.

Others who will give dinners before the auction include Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who will fete Elsa Maxwell; Mrs. Robert Lovett, Mr and Mrs. Walter Lippmann, Mrs. Keith Kane, Mrs. Archibald MacLeish and Mrs. Patrick Hill.

The doors of Anderson House will be open at 9:30 o'clock for inspection of articles. The auctioneer, Richard Meyer, of New York, will start the sale at 10 o'clock. Elsa Maxwell will assist him.

Srta. Bernardino Honors Dozen At Cocktails

Senorita Minerva Bernardino was hostess yesterday at a cocktail party. In the spirit of true Latin American hospitality, she had not one or two, but some dozen guests of honor.

Among them were the son of the President of the Dominican Republic, Wanceslao Troncoso de Concha, and his wife, who are touring the United States on a pleasure trip. They have been in Havana for the international legal conference held there recently.

Also sharing honors at the party were Senoritas Erma Cartillo Najera, Marie Elena Davila, Christina Michels, Matilda Pastoriza, Luisa Tudela, Nina Castro, Leda Feni, Conchita Tosta, Eugenia Sosa, Susana Larguia and Graciela Guerra.

Among the guests were the recently appointed Peruvian Minister to the Dominican Republic and Senora de Garland; Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Dominican Minister; Mrs. Frank Buck, Mrs. Francis Cabell Brown and the First Secretary of the Dominican Legation and Senora de Vega.

Florence Davis, Lieut. Hunt Wed At Chevy Chase

In a candle-lit setting, Miss Florence Gill Davis, daughter of Mrs. Raymond E. Hawkins, of Chevy Chase, Md., was married last evening at 7:30 to Lieut. William Hugh Hunt, U. S. A., son of Col. and Mrs. William E. Hunt, of Dunroven, Youngstown, N. Y. The ceremony took place at St. John's Episcopal Church in Chevy Chase, the Rev. Joseph Williams officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Hawkins, chose a gown of pale pink chiffon instead of the traditional white. The high neck was trimmed with a narrow ruffle and the frock had bishop sleeves and a finger-tip veil attached to orange blossoms. She carried Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. John L. Hoffman, her matron of honor, was gowned in green mousseline de soie with a lace yoke, wore a small mousseline hat and carried yellow tea roses.

Capt. Richard J. Hunt was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Lieut. William C. Fortune, Richard Green, John M. Carney and John L. Hoffman. A reception at the Hawkins home followed. Later the couple left on a motor trip, the bride wearing a two-piece gray wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses. They will make their home in Niagara Falls.

Lieut. Hunt attended Ohio State University.

The Echegarays Hosts at Dinner For the Garlands

The Agricultural Attache of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Echegaray entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Dr. Eduardo Garland, Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy, and Senora de Garland.

Dr. Garland will leave April 27 to assume his new duties as Minister of Peru to the Dominican Republic. The Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos will entertain at cocktails for the Garlands April 24, and the following afternoon another cocktail party will be given in their honor by Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Dominican Minister.

Mrs. P. B. Eaton To Give Tea

Mrs. Nelson Johnson and Mrs. William E. Borah will be among those assisting Mrs. Philip B. Eaton, wife of Capt. Eaton, of the United States Coast Guard, at her tea Saturday afternoon for members of the Friends of Hawaii committee of the United China Relief Benefit, which will take place at Constitution Hall April 27. Others assisting Mrs. Eaton will be Mrs. Nathan Twining, Mrs. Edwin Halsey and Mrs. Parker West.

Mrs. Lawrence Arnold will entertain at a party at the Mayflower tomorrow afternoon for the Congressional group which she heads. Mrs. Millard Tydings is chairman of a committee and other committee chairmen include Mrs. Alvin Newmyer, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Lenning Sweet, Mrs. William B. Sims, Mrs. Allan Reed and Mrs. John Allan Dougherty.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

A SLIGHT, BLOND young man who didn't look a day over 30 mopped his brow the other hot afternoon and insisted that he didn't mind the unseasonable heat because Washington was so beautiful with buds and blossoms. He was Noel Hall, lately professor of political economy at the University of London, member of the Advisory Committee to the Rockefeller Foundation in Great Britain and Ireland, author of profound books—one of them is "The Economist in the Witness Box"—joint director, with Lord Drogheda, of Britain's Ministry of Economic Warfare, and at present attached to the British Embassy in Washington as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary.

Prof. Hall was guest of honor at the very pleasant cocktail party given by his able assistant, Miss Craig McGeachy, in one of the drawing rooms of the Sulgrave Club the other afternoon. Miss McGeachy had invited her guests from 6 to 8 to allow for late office hours, she herself being one of the busiest people anywhere around. The Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy, Sir Owen Chalkley, came in with Lady Chalkley, who looked cool and charming in a flower print and a spring hat. Mrs. Dwight Davis, whose efficiency and drive make her a force in the Red Cross, was as dainty as a china figurine in palest beige with pink roses on her hat. She made the rounds of the guests in company with her distinguished husband and then was off, one suspects, to work.

Mrs. Dean Acheson chatted with attractive Jill Hamilton, secretary to Professor Hall. Miss Hamilton arrived from London only a week ago and was kept busy answering questions as to how various favorite London landmarks had fared under the bombing. One of her most interested questioners was Mrs. George Rublee, who inquired after the Hyde Park Hotel as an old friend. Mrs. Rublee, always smiling and friendly, likes gay colors and had chosen that afternoon a scarlet jacket worn with a black frock and a black and scarlet hat.

A FEW FRIENDS dropped by for a cocktail with Jacob Beam the other afternoon to wish him bon voyage and to give him messages for friends in London. Mrs. Beam, who had a long tour of duty in Berlin before coming to Washington, is now assigned to London and is pleased at the prospect of seeing things from the English side. Mrs. Hugh Cumming, jr., came by without her husband, who is on mission in Greeland.

Among those telling Mr. Beam goodby were Mrs. Prentiss Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harsh, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Pell, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark. Everyone was delighted to see Mr. Clark out again after a long siege of eye trouble.

ENERGETIC LITTLE Countess de Gramont, who now lists herself in the 'phone book as "Mrs. Mary de Gramont," has decided to turn her energy to the service of Washingtonians and incidentally to the support of her three small children, while her husband fights with the French under Gen. de Gaulle. Countess de Gramont is Greek by birth and no other compliment is necessary these days than to say "She is Greek."

With Mme. Jean Baube, Countess de Gramont has opened a service bureau at 1911 I Street, where the two ladies will do shopping, find quarters for working girls, arrange parties and dig up any sort of desired information. One of their specialties is arranging cocktail parties for bachelor hosts who are too busy to attend to details. The bureau, which is called "G. V. P.," and stands for "s'il vous plait," is modeled on the same name which used to be of great help to people in Paris before the war.

Dinner Party Held By Mrs. Werlich

Mrs. Randolph H. Miner and Miss Carolyn Nash, who recently returned from an extended visit in California, were guests of honor at a dinner given last night by Mrs. McCeney Werlich in her home on Sixteenth Street.

Ranking guests were the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel Freyre y Santander, and Senator Theodore F. Green, of Rhode Island.

Barney House Honors Daughter of Founder

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

Mme. L. Dreyfus-Barney, daughter of the late Mrs. Alice Pike Barney, who was founder of Barney Neighborhood House, was guest of honor yesterday afternoon at an exhibition of her month's paintings, sponsored by the board of trustees of the settlement.

It was held in the new neighborhood art gallery Mme. Dreyfus-Barney has established on the second floor of Rhoads House, 1315 Fourth Street Southwest, in historic Wheat Row, the oldest group of row houses in the Capital. This house has been restored with care to preserve the details of the Georgian interior, under the supervision of a committee headed by Mrs. Merle Thorpe.

The paintings in the collection shown yesterday included a number that had not been exhibited before in Washington and many that had not been shown for many years. Striking among them was a pastel portrait of George Bernard Shaw and also one of Alan Chesterton, brother of Gilbert K. Chesterton. There were also portraits of Mme. Dreyfus-Barney and of her sister, Miss Natalie Barney, who is widely known in France as a poet and who is now in Florence, Italy.

There also was a portrait of the artist herself, done in 1898 by Prince Troubetsky, and there were studies by her in oil and pastel.

In addition to the pictures, Mme. Dreyfus-Barney had on exhibition three examples of her own sculpture. She has been living in France and Switzerland, having returned to this country in recent months.

She received yesterday with Mrs. George C. Thorpe, president of the board. Miss Margaret B. Merrill, head resident of Barney Neighborhood House, also welcomed the guests.

Tea was served with Mrs. Adelbert Althouse, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Miss Mary B. Adams and Mrs. Frank C. Baldwin alternating in pouring.

Among the many guests were Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. W. O. Boswell, Mrs. Benjamin McKelway, Miss Dorothy Tirrell, Miss Bertha Noyes, Carles Mason Remey, the former United States Minister to Czecho-Slovakia, Wilbur Carr; Mr. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Lofton Wesley and Mrs. George Everett.

The Girl Scouts of Neighborhood House assisted Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, chairman of the committee in charge, and Mrs. Samuel Herrick and Miss Mary L. McQuade, the other members.

Iowa D. A. R. Group Honors Mrs. Wallace

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, was guest of honor yesterday at the luncheon given by the Iowa delegates to the D. A. R. congress, held in the Carlton Room of the Carlton Hotel, with 70 members and guests attending. She came in for dessert and coffee after having presided at the regular meeting of the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club, at the Capitol.

The U-shaped table at which the guests were seated was decorated with snapdragons, tulips and jonquils and asparagus fern extending the full length. The place cards, which were presented by Mrs. O. S. Von Krog, Iowa State regent, were brought from Iowa for the occasion. They bore the emblem of the D. A. R. at the top.

Among the guests were wives of several members of the Iowa Congressional group, Mrs. Fred C. Gilchrist, Mrs. John W. Gwynne, Mrs. Ben F. Jensen, Mrs. Thomas E. Martin and Mrs. Paul Cunningham.

The D. A. R. officers attending included Mrs. Robert J. Johnston, vice president general; Mrs. Imogene Emery, chairman of national defense through patriotic education; Mrs. Harry E. Nary, candidate for reporter general to the Smithonian Institution; Mrs. T. B. Throckmorton, vice regent of Iowa; Mrs. John A. Hull, State chaplain; Mrs. Jerome Adams, Mrs. A. H. Avery, Mrs. J. W. Maguire, Mrs. C. A. Garlock, Mrs. E. J. Scofield, Mrs. A. S. Elder, other State officers, and Miss Helen McElroy, the Iowa good citizenship pilgrim.

Mrs. W. R. Mount, of Washington, Iowa, 89, who is attending the congress, also was present at the luncheon as the guest of Mrs. E. G. Bowman, chairman.

TWO NEW CHAPTERS were initiated into Sigma Tau Gamma Sorority last night at the home of Carolyn Holloran, 3815 Kanawha Street, Chevy Chase.

Mrs. Ruth D. Swinburne, president of Alpha Chapter, presided at the formal initiation. Three members donned white ritual robes over white evening gowns, and took part in the initiation while the rest of the members, similarly robed, witnessed the ceremony.

The pledges in the two chapters, formerly two social clubs—Chit Chat and Joli, wore either white or blue evening gowns, carrying out the sorority colors. The room was lighted with candles.

Pledges who were initiated were Chit Chat, Mrs. Mae Asher, Mrs. Marian Lipski, Mrs. Peggy Rogers, Miss Ann Schiel, Miss Marjorie Swanson, Miss Rosamond Swanson, Miss Macie Wentz and Miss Virginia Wolf; in Joli, Miss Laura Birdsong, Miss Elizabeth Conard, Miss Louise Wentz, Miss Ida Frost, Miss Bernice Wiltshire and Miss Hazel Wiltshire.

Members of the Alpha Chapter of Sigma Tau Gamma were: Miss Helen Curtin, Miss June Marks Farr, Miss Maudie Gillispie, Mrs. Mickey Hoddinott, Miss Carolyn Holloran, Mrs. Carl Johnson Humphrey, Mrs. Cornelia Reid Hutchinson, Miss Marjorie Logan, Mrs. Agnes T. Marks, Mrs. Dorothy Matthews, Mrs. Lucille Miller, Mrs. Clara Haneke Reynolds, Mrs. Ruth Duckett Swinburne and Mrs. Mildred Duckett Taylor.

STATE DANCE FRIDAY—The national defense dance to be sponsored by the Illinois State Society Friday, at 9 p. m., in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel will have as its guest of honor Miss Harriet Elliott, Consumer Commissioner of the National Defense Advisory Commission. Miss Elliott, a native of Carbondale, Ill., will join Donald M. Nelson, director of the division of purchases, Office of Production Management, and Congressman Sol Bloom, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, in being honor guests of the affair.

W. R. C. SOCIAL—Mrs. Anna Horn, chairman of the executive board, Department of the Potomac, Woman's Relief Corps, has announced that the members of the board will sponsor a benefit radio social at her home 146 Uhland Terrace Northeast at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. Horn entertained the members of the Past Department President's Club at a beautifully appointed dinner, assisted by cohostesses Mrs. Bertha B. Brown and Miss Mary G. Pinnock.

'Hewibs' Fete Clara G. Snyder

Clara Gebhardt Snyder, of Chicago, director of the Wheat Flour Institute and also chairman of the department of home economics women in business, National Home Economics Association, last night was honor guest at a dinner given by the local "HEWIB." The affair was at the Parrot Tea Room and was attended by 50 members and guests, with Miss Bernice Burns, the local chairman, presiding.

Mrs. Snyder told the Washington "HEWIB" of the work of some of the similar groups in other cities. A field day was recently held by the New York City organization for home economics seniors and faculty members from some of the leading colleges and universities, she said. The program was designed to acquaint the girls with opportunities in business and industry for young women with home economics training. Similar programs have been arranged in Minneapolis and St. Paul and in Chicago, she said.

Second Open House Scheduled Today at Goodwill Industries

The second open house at Goodwill Industries will be held from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Yesterday many visitors toured the plant and saw workers reconditioning articles contributed in the Goodwill bags.

Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of Associate Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court, who is president of the Goodwill Guild, was among those who poured at the tea in the afternoon. Others were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of Associate Justice Stone, and Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, wife of Associate Justice Reed.

Gonzaga Group To Give Party

A card party and dance will be sponsored by the Mothers' Association of Gonzaga High School on Friday night, May 2, at 8 in the Willard Hotel. Proceeds will go to the scholarship fund.

Mrs. Michael Cannon is president of the organization and the Rev. Francis E. Garner, S. J., is headmaster of the school.

Foundry Church Women Sponsor 11th Lecture Series

For the eleventh season Dr. Wesley M. Gewehr, professor of history at the University of Maryland, will present a series of lectures at Foundry Methodist Church, Sixteenth and P Streets, under the auspices of the Woman's Society. The series will be on six consecutive Thursdays at 11 a. m., beginning tomorrow morning, in the lecture room of the church edifice.

Dr. Gewehr will discuss the rapidly changing world scene, his talks being under the general title of "Back of the Headlines in the World Today."

Mrs. Frederick Brown Harris is chairman of the committee in charge of the series and Mrs. Porter L. Gaddis, president of the society.

Show to Be Given By Finnish Group

In commemoration of the twenty-third anniversary of Finland's independence, the Finnish-American Book Club of Washington is sponsoring a full two-hour show at Pierce Hall, Sixteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest, Saturday, at 8 p. m. Mika Waltari's screen story, "The February Manifest," a drama of love and sacrifice, will be shown, as well as a short, "Finland Marches On."

In keeping with the old Finnish custom, coffee and Finnish coffee cake, will be served following the showing of the picture.

Col. P. W. Ziliacus, Military Attache of the Finnish Legation, will give a short talk on Finland.

Seat Pleasant Civic Leader, Ill, Kills Self

Mrs. Ellen V. Miller, 51, of Seat Pleasant, long a prominent figure in Prince Georges County civic and school circles, died yesterday from gas asphyxiation in her home on Chapel Road. Dr. James I. Boyd, county medical officer, issued a certificate of suicide last night.

Mrs. Miller was found by her daughter, Virginia, at about 7 a. m., when the latter had come downstairs to open the store operated by the family. A call was made for the Bladensburg Rescue Squad, which was unable to resuscitate the woman. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital.

Had Been Ill

It was learned that Mrs. Miller had been receiving treatment for a nervous breakdown suffered recently.

Mrs. Miller had resigned as president of the Prince Georges County Federation of Parent-Teachers Associations on account of ill health. She had served as a trustee for the Seat Pleasant Elementary School and is credited with many improvements made in the school and grounds in the last few years.

In addition she was a former president of the Prince Georges County Women's Democratic Club and of the Women's Welfare Club of Seat Pleasant.

Husband a Former Policeman

Mrs. Miller was the wife of William F. Miller, a retired Metropolitan policeman who was attached to Number 9 Precinct until January. Besides her husband and daughter, she is survived by two other daughters, Miss Pauline Miller and Mrs. Rebekah Manes, and a son, William F. Miller, jr.

Funeral services are to be held at Chambers Funeral Home in Riverdale at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow with interment at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

North Bay, Ont., April 15 (INS).—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who brought the Dionne quintuplets into the world, underwent a major operatio ntoday in Toronto, it was revealed here tonight

The doctor's condition was declared to be "satisfactory" by his brother, Dr William A Dafoe, of Toronto, and his chances "good." A blood transfusion had to be given, however.

John F. Harris Dies

Palm Beach, Fla., April 15 (AP).—John F. Harris, 78, New York financier and Republican national committeeman from Florida for two terms, died during the night after an extended illness.

Seakford Slain Fleeing Police, Kin Testify

Luray, Va., April 15 (AP).—Three witnesses testified today that William Keller, Page County game warden, shot and killed Bernard Seakford, 35, as the latter fled from a party of officers on a farm near Alma last February 12.

They were Seakford's uncle, Edward Smelser, on whose farm the shooting occurred, and the latter's son and daughter-in-law, Glendon and Grace Smelser.

The officers, led by Sheriff J. W. Ruffner, of Page County, said at the time they had gone to the farm to serve a warrant for unlawful cutting, sworn to by Seakford's mother. The Smelsers said that as Seakford ran some distance from the house, Keller aimed and fired.

The 52-year-old game warden went on trial here today, and Commonwealth's Attorney I. R. Dovel asked for a verdict of second-degree murder from the jury in Page Circuit Court.

The mother, Mrs. Flora Seakford, explained on the stand that her son had an "humble" mind "like a child" and that he had spent some time in an asylum. He was frightened, she said, when summoned to appear before a Selective Service board at Luray for examination and said he was going to leave home.

The mother said she took her son's coat to keep him from leaving and "I cut my hand on his knife." She said she then swore on February 6 to the warrant with the idea of detaining him.

Clyde Short, police officer of Stanley, said he and Kirby Shenk, a county officer, tried to seize Seakford near Alma, but that he ran. Seakford's sister, Edna, said she called from a rural store to Deputy Sheriff Rumsey Sedwick for help in getting her brother to Luray to appear before the board. Sedwick summoned other officers.

When the party of officers reached the farm, Mrs. Grace Smelser said she "called for Bernard not to run and Keller not to shoot." The game warden told her, she stated, that Seakford had a knife.

Edward Smelser identified a rifle shell as one found at the scene of the shooting, near a pig pen on the Smelser farm. N. Felton, described as an F. B. I. ballistics expert, said the shell came from a gun identified as Keller's at the inquest.

25 A. U. Students To Tune in Today On Mental Waves

Veterans of five months of psychic experiments, 25 American University students today at 2:30 p. m. will attempt their first long-distance extra sensory perception experiment when they "tune in" on mental wave-lengths from New York.

From the Museum of Science and Industry in Rockefeller Center, three experimenters representing the arts, business and sociology will concentrate on 25 sketches and descriptions of celebrities from the S. J. Woolf book, "Here Am I."

They are Arthur T. Cremin, director of the New York School of Music; Michael Mordkin, jr., industrial designer, and Daniel M. Eisenberg, sociologist and president of a national missing persons bureau.

While they concentrate, the students in the psychology class under the direction of Dr. John E. Bentley and Miss Irene Seber-Jay will think deeply and then write down their impressions of the text and pictures being examined.

Firemen Rescue Two Families in Fourth Street Blaze

Three children were carried to safety by firemen who rescued two families early yesterday when fire blocked the only exit from second-floor rooms at 1356 Fourth Street Southwest. A fireman and one resident were injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Seidel were awakened by the crying of their 8-month-old daughter, Paulette. Finding their living quarters filled with smoke, they groped their way to the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Greenstein on the same floor.

Attempting to reach a rear stairway they were halted by smoke and flames. Seidel broke a front window and yelled for help. He cut his right hand on the shattered glass.

Greenstein helped his wife and two daughters, Pauline, 5, and Deanna, 22 months, down a ladder raised by firemen.

Pleads Guilty To Housebreaking

Andrew Henderson, colored, 18, was in the District Jail last night in default of $15,000 bail demanded by Police Court Judge John P. McMahon yesterday when the youth pleaded guilty to a housebreaking charge following two early-morning attacks on a man and woman in the Meridian Park section, April 3.

The youth, who escaped from the National Training School the day before the attacks were reported, admitted he struck Mrs. Evelyn Kneeland, 2311 Fifteenth Street Northwest, and John S. Long, 1321 Belmont Street Northwest, over their heads with cobblestones. He entered their apartments, he confessed, to rob them.

Though sentenced to the training school until he is of age in 1940, Judge Fay Bentley waived jurisdiction over the youth in order that he may be tried in District Court. Judge McMahon ordered him held for grand jury action.

Union Ruling Expected to End Strike at Pier

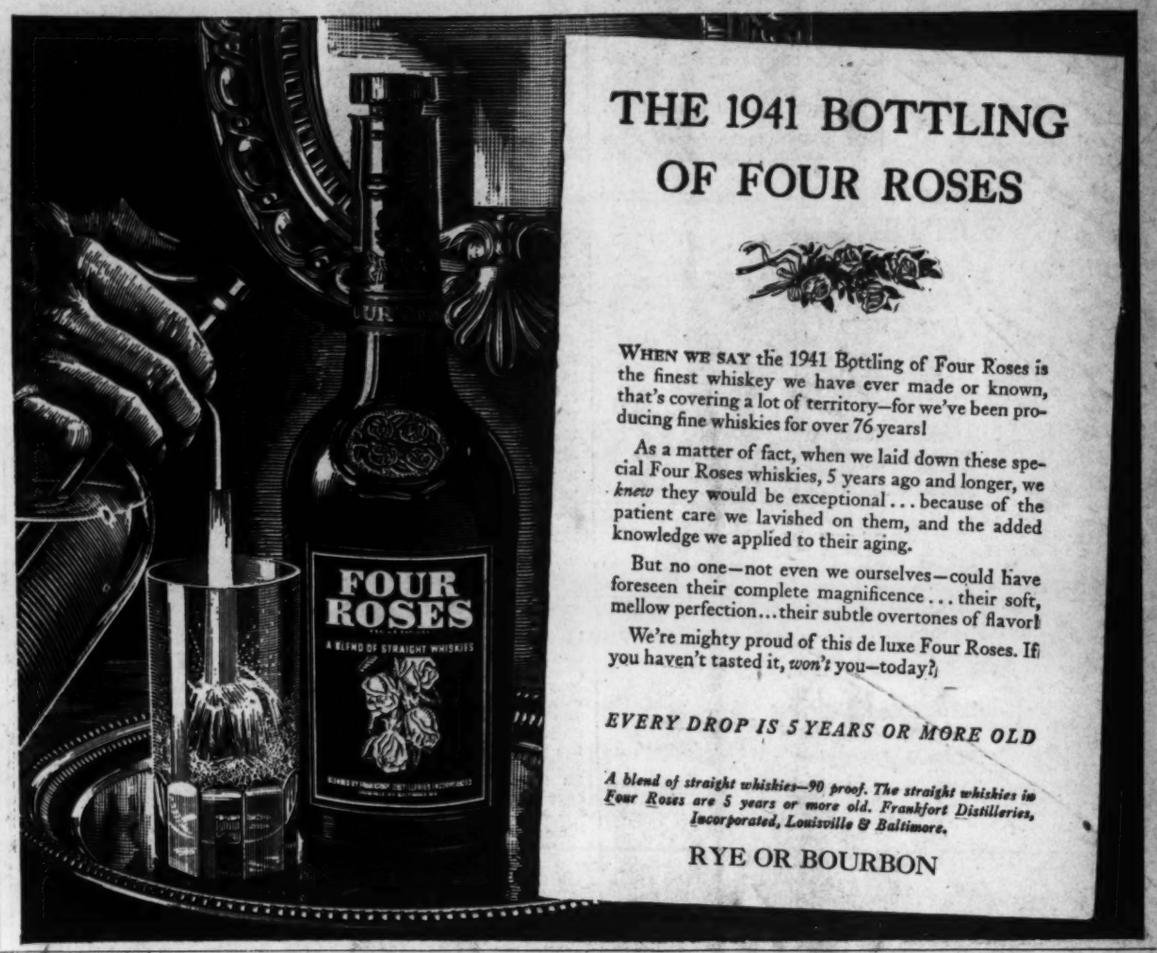
Work on the construction of a $240,000 pier for the War Department at Maine Avenue and N Street Southwest was expected to be resumed today following a ruling on inter-union dispute between A. F. of L. carpenters and laborers by the building trades department of the A. F. of L.

Fifty carpenters left their jobs yesterday at 12:45 a. m. when the first shift came to work.

Herbert Rivers, secretary of the building trades department, said the claims of the laborers were upheld. Approximately 100 laborers have been employed on the job since last December, he said.

Before the ruling was made yesterday, Frank Howard, business agent for the carpenters, declared the carpenters walked out because they were doing work which rightfully should be done by laborers.

Finer than any whiskey we have ever made or known!



THE 1941 BOTTLING OF FOUR ROSES

WHEN WE SAY the 1941 Bottling of Four Roses is the finest whiskey we have ever made or known, that's covering a lot of territory—for we've been producing fine whiskies for over 76 years!

As a matter of fact, when we laid down these special Four Roses whiskies, 5 years ago and longer, we knew they would be exceptional . . . because of the patient care we lavished on them, and the added knowledge we applied to their aging.

But no one—not even we ourselves—could have foreseen their complete magnificence . . . their soft, mellow perfection . . . their subtle overtones of flavor!

We're mighty proud of this de luxe Four Roses. If you haven't tasted it, won't you—today?

The Federal Diary

Transfer of Coast Guard To Navy Believed Near

Transfer of the Coast Guard from Treasury to the Navy Department is believed to be in the making. Such a shift is known to have been discussed by high Administration officials. A Congressional O. K. isn't necessary to make the transfer. The President has power to do it by executive order. The Coast Guard law gives the President power to make the transfer in time of war or a National emergency. Coast Guard was transferred to Navy during World War 1 and some officials believe it would have already been shifted if it wasn't for the fact that Coast Guard and Navy are now working very closely together.

OPM Chief William Knudsen recently received a contribution from an enthusiastic American who wanted to do his bit for defense. The gift was more than 500 old razor blades, some corroded with rust. The sender surmised that the blades would help to avert a steel shortage.

Federal employes living in Alexandria are now eligible to participate in local politics, to be candidates for and hold office. However, the Civil Service Commission has ruled that Federal employes must not engage in State or National politics and must not neglect their official duties. Employes running for office must do so as independents. The commission won't permit them to run as Democrats or Republicans or under any other political label. Neither can employes manage political campaigns. Employes elected to full-time positions must resign their Federal jobs. On previous occasions the commission has declined to extend political privileges to Federal workers living in Alexandria.

Uncle Sam is setting up two concentration camps to place the 1,375 Italian sailors who were seized along with their ships several weeks ago. Immigration and Naturalization Service has arranged to take over Army posts at Bismark, N. Dak., and Missoula, Mont., where the sailors will be interned. Immigration agents will guard and operate the camps, which are large enough to accommodate 1,000 men each.

Senate Approves Walsh Bill

The Senate yesterday approved the Walsh Bill which would pay time and a half overtime to per annum employes in the field services of the War, Navy and Coast Guard. A number of employes at Washington Navy Yard stand to benefit. They are classified field employes. . . . The appointment of former Senator Henry Ashurst as a member of the Board of Review of the Immigration and Naturalization Service will be announced shortly by the Justice Department.

Home Owners Loan Corporation has had 12 per cent of its employes resign to take defense jobs since July. The percentage is expected to reach 25 per cent before July 1. HOLC has sent some of its best employes to defense jobs. A total of 137 employes have transferred, including 87 clerical employes, 31 technicians, and 19 administrators. HOLC is liquidating, but it has had to hire a number of stenographers and typists to replace those who resigned.

Civil Service Exams: Coal inspector, $3,800, War Department; social worker, $2,000, Veterans Administration and Bureau of Prisons; regional agent and special agent in trade and industrial education, $3,800 to $4,600, Office of Education, and assistant mammal curator, $3,200.

Civil Service Commission is reorganizing in line with recommendations being made by the Budget Bureau. The reorganization study hasn't been completed and other bureaus may yet be affected. James Nicol started the study but he resigned to accept an OPM administrative job. Vernon McGee is now chief of the survey. Most important change effected is consolidation within the examining division of the applications and certifications divisions. This is in the interest of speed and economy.

The examining division hereafter will consist of the technical and clerical examining sections, records and arrangements section, test review and construction section and control, budget and personnel section. W. A. McCoy will be chief of the enlarged examining section. The consolidation will permit appointing officers to obtain all information on any examination from one unit, instead of three separate divisions. Officials believe it will speed up the placement of persons in jobs.

On Eating Cake and Having It, Too

A lady appeared in the District Building yesterday and informed a collector that she didn't wish to pay the District income tax since she claimed domicile in Wisconsin. She'd been living here 18 years, but, she emphasized, she voted in Wisconsin.

Politely, the collector asked: "Would you phone Wisconsin if your house caught fire?" She paid.

Will Motorists Stay Off It?

Broken glass on the road, arch enemy of the motorist, is now being used on Maryland roads to make driving safer. Ground glass is being sprinkled on painted traffic lines to reflect against the headlights of the car and make the lines visible when otherwise they might be obscured by weather conditions.

Groups Observe 150th Year Of First D. C. Cornerstone

1. MEMBERS OF THE MASONIC ORDER, in colonial costumes and bearing flags, leave their lodge in Cameron Street, Alexandria, Va., and parade down to . . .

2. . . . WISS TAVERN at Fairfax Street. Here, they waited for autos to take them to Jones Point to reenact the laying of the original District of Columbia cornerstone. Those who took part in the ceremony of April 15, 1791, stopped at the tavern for refreshments before starting the long walk to the point

3. AT JONES POINT, the Masons first assembled on the porch of the old lighthouse, where they listened to Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Virginia Masons, as he told of the first dedication

4. THE ORIGINAL CORNERSTONE is examined by Peter Railey, 5, whose great-great-great grandfather, Maj. Andrew Ellicott, fixed the point where the stone was laid. Peter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Railey

The 150th anniversary of the laying of the first District of Columbia cornerstone, which marked the original boundary between Virginia and the District, was commemorated yesterday in two ceremonies at the site, Jones Point, now in Alexandria, Va.

Alexandria-Washington Lodge No. 22, Ancient and Accepted Free Masons, which conducted the original dedicatory program April 15, 1791, reenacted those ceremonies.

In the other observance, sponsored by the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of Washington and the Washington Society of Alexandria, District Commissioners David McCoach, jr., and John Russell Young headed a delegation to the scene, and some 33 residents of Virginia and the District represented citizens who participated in the original dedication.

Wearing Colonial costumes and Masonic aprons which are among the prized relics on display in their historic lodge room, the Washington and Alexandria Masons followed the original ceremony in retail, as described in old records.

Erdman T. Stulz, acting worshipful master, represented Dr. Elisha Dick, master in 1791, who laid the original cornerstone. James Sherier, of Alexandria Lodge, read an oration originally delivered by Dr. James Muir, pastor of the old Presbyterian Meeting House.

C. Phillip Heishley, the lodge's marshal, read the proclamations issued by Masonic officials for the first cornerstone laying. Robert Goods, senior warden, placed on the marker the "corn of nourishment," scattered on the stone from a small glass vial.

The "oil of peace and harmony," emblematic of the friendship between Virginia and the District, was poured by Ivan Vannoy, junior warden.

Prior to the exercises the participants met in the lodge room where, according to records, the dedicatory meeting was convened by Dr. Dick. From there the delegation proceeded to historic Wise's Tavern, where the delegation of 175 assembled to drink a toast to the boundary marker.

At Jones Point, visitors were welcomed by Mayor William T. Wilkins of Alexandria and brief talks were made by Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Virginia Masons, and Ara Marcus Daniels, grand master of Masons in the District of Columbia.

Martin H. Kinsinger, senior grand warden, and Garland W. Wolfe, deputy grand warden of the Maryland Grand Lodge of Masons, joined in the observance.

In the program sponsored by the Oldest Inhabitants and the Washington Society of Alexandria, John Clagget Proctor, president of the former organization, presided, and the District Commissioners made short talks.

Representative Stephen Bolles, of Wisconsin, member of the House District Committee, and John B. Gordon, president of the Washington Society of Alexandria, also spoke.

Commenting on the friendly relations which have existed between residents of Virginia and the District since the original boundary marker was laid, Representative Bolles declared the only difference between residents of the two jurisdictions today was the fact that District citizens are deprived of the privilege of voting.

"People of the District should have a vote, and I intend to do my utmost to see that they do," he said.

7,000 Jam Tax Office On Last Day

Last-Minute Rush To File District Returns Taxes Collector's Staff

Seven thousand "last minute" taxpayers yesterday jammed the District income tax office which remained open until midnight, deadline for filing a return and paying at least the first half of the levy.

Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent held 30 special tax examiners available until the deadline to aid the crowds of taxpayers desiring to escape the added penalties for a late return. All returns postmarked not later than midnight, of course, will be accepted by the tax collector.

Of yesterday's payers 1,250 actually had their returns made out by one of the special examiners. The others had already made their return, but sought the aid of the notaries public or asked questions regarding the tax.

Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson said at least 5,000 persons at a late hour last evening had paid their taxes and that he had on hand nine mail bags of returns. Four cashiers were pressed into service until midnight.

Largest jam occurred shortly after 4 p. m., when Federal employes swarmed into the first-floor corridor of the District Building, tax headquarters, forming a line clear around to the collector's office.

The assessor estimates that at least 100,000 returns to date have been filed by local taxpayers, including those not requiring to pay any levy because the exemptions exceed the income. Second half payment on the tax is due on October 15, but probably 80 per cent of the taxpayers who filed their returns have paid the entire bill, Dent estimated. Reason is, he said, the levy is only 1 per cent for individuals and rather than bother with a payment in October the taxpayer prefers to pay the entire bill now.

The individual tax, including payments to be made in October, should net the District $1,550,000, he said.

Wrestler Is Held In Death of Mate On Norfolk Boat

Norfolk, Va., April 15 (AP).—Raymond F. Reutt, former Virginia Military Institute football and wrestling star, will be given a preliminary hearing in police court tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock on a charge of murder, placed yesterday in connection with the death of Harry B. Murphy, of Washington, first officer aboard the Norfolk and Washington steamer Northland. Murphy was knocked overboard, police charge, in a scuffle on the vessel's hurricane deck Sunday night.

Murphy's body has not yet been recovered. The Northland searched the area, about 3 miles north of the new Morgantown Highway bridge and in Maryland waters, for two hours before abandoning the search. Planes made a search without success today.

Reutt has been at liberty under a bond of $2,500 since the charge was placed against him.

Holy Cross Music Clubs to Attend Alumni Dance

The combined musical clubs of Holy Cross College will appear at a concert and dance tonight at the Mayflower Hotel ballroom under the sponsorship of the South Atlantic Holy Cross Club, alumni group for the Washington area.

Features will include the college glee club of 35 voices, a philharmonic orchestra of 45 pieces, instrumental and vocal solists and "The Crusaders," a 12-piece dance band.

Professor J. Edward Bouvier of the college faculty will be general director.

The clubs are on an Easter holiday tour of the East and will come to the Capital from the Biltmore Hotel, New York City.

Yesterday, Thomas V. Gannon, chairman of the presentation, announced that several score prominent Washingtonians will be patrons and patronesses.

Symphony Rally Will Open Today

The National Symphony Orchestra will be represented at the third biennial Conference of Women's Committees for Symphony Orchestras, opening today in Philadelphia by a delegation including Mrs. Foster Adams, Mrs. Charles Pittinger and Mrs. Emory Scott Land. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe and Mrs. Reeve Lewis will also attend as alternates. The conference will last through Friday.

Among the guests of honor at the annual luncheon tomorrow will be Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Firemen Honor First Aid Corps

Six members of the Chevy Chase (Md.) First Aid Corps were honored guests last night at a meeting of Washington Local No. 36, Firemen's Association.

The Marylanders were thanked in person for their "numerous favors" to District firemen. Specifically, the local smoke eaters showed their appreciation for coffee and sandwiches which the first air corps has served to them after fires here. The meeting was held at the Knights of Pythian Hall, 1112 Ninth Street Northwest.

Bilbo Backs McCarran as D. C. 'Mayor'

Theodore G. Bilbo, "the man" from Mississippi, yesterday came out for Pat McCarran, the Irishman from Nevada. Indirectly, he indorsed Senator McCarran for the chairmanship of the Senate District Committee.

"I hope he takes the job," said Senator Bilbo.

Bilbo returned to the Capitol yesterday after a vacation at home. Reporters wanted to know what he thought about the committee chairmanship, inasmuch as, next to McCarran, he is in line for the post, assuming Senator Reynolds, present chairman, is elevated to chairmanship of the Military Affairs Committee. And assuming, also, that Senators Glass, Tydings and Bankhead retain more important committee jobs.

The Mississippian indicated how he felt about the matter when, jokingly, he told reporters he was going to tell McCarran they wanted to know how the Nevadan stands on horse-racing in the District. Citizen opposition to racing here is well known.

McCarran remains the likeliest, although not altogether willing, successor to Reynolds.

D. C. Chiefs Oppose Bill for Annex As Asked by Ickes

The District Commissioners yesterday formally opposed a bill, introduced on behalf of Secretary of Interior Ickes, which would permit construction of a Pan American Union annex at Virginia and Constitution Avenues.

ment of Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets, and Virginia Avenue, so that the annex could be built without blocking off the southern view of the Interior Building. The Commissioners fear that rearrangement will create a traffic bottleneck.

Forensic Contest Finalists Named

Two winners in the semifinals of the National Optimist Club oratorical contest were announced last night following a contest held at the Eastern Branch of the Boys Club of Washington.

Robert Alfandre, 14, of 1629 Twenty-first Place Southeast, and Robert Darr, 12, 1435 Maryland Avenue Northeast, were the winners who will compete in the finals before the national contest to be held May 10 at the Mayflower Hotel.

Alternates selected were John Williams, 13, 425 Twentieth Street Northeast, and Spero Pappafotis, 16, of the Central Branch of the Boys Club. Judges were H. W. Bondurant, vice president of the Southern Railway; W. W. Mackall, past president of the Washington Stock Exchange, and Dr. Ray Murray.

Citizens to Hear Dr. Meriam

Dr. Lewis Meriam, who conducted the Brookings Institution survey of Montgomery County government, will be speaker at a special meeting of the Edgemoor Citizens Association tonight at 8 at the Bethesda, (Md.) Elementary School.

Dr. Meriam will discuss the report in its broad outlines and then will answer questions of a general nature, without undertaking to consider the report as to minor details, according to Richard H. Akers, president. A general discussion of the report will follow the talk.

Chamber Guild Gives Second Spring Concert

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Chamber Music Guild String Quartet (Frank Gittelson, Alexander Levin, Benjamin Sosner and Marcel Ancher) presents second spring concert in Cosmos Club assembly hall Tuesday night. Assisting artists: Malda Fani, soprano; Sylvia Meyer, harp; Alba Rosa, violin. Program: Quartet No. 8 in D major (Mozart), "Beau Soir" (Debussy), "La Caravane" (Chausson), Quintet in One Movement (Loeffler).

In their spring series of concerts, Frank Gittelson and his associates of the Chamber Music Guild String Quartet are enlisting the services of resident artists as assistants in the laudable cause of program diversity. Last evening their able collaborators were Malda Fani, soprano; Sylvia Meyer, harpist, and Alba Rosa, violinist. The reaction of the auditors in the assembly hall of the Cosmos Club indicated a cordial approval of the policy which draws upon other chamber music compositions than quartets.

BROWN

The one quartet on the program was Mozart's eighth in D major, a work of his adolescent period when he was trying his hand at the form. In the melodic style and the ornamentation it shows the effect of his Italian journeys, while its emotional content is joyous.

Mme. Faldi was the soloist in two French songs the accompaniments of which were played by the quartet augmented by Miss Meyer's harp. Her choice fell upon Debussy's lovely setting of Paul Bourget's poem, "Beau Soir," and Chausson's "La Caravane." The artistry of her readings resided in the suavity of her phrasing, the subtle shading of her tone and the clarity of her diction.

Mme. Rosa joined the quartet in the performance of the final work, Charles Martin Loeffler's string quintet. One of the most cosmopolitan composers, Loeffler absorbed influences from his early environments and turned them to eloquent account. A native of Alsace, he lived during his impressionable early years in Russia, in Hungary and in France, and when he came to the United States in 1881 he brought with him musical memories which colored all the music he subsequently wrote as an American composer. The quintet, which dates from 1894, has an autobiographical quality and is unmarked by the poetic symbolism which he later developed.

U. S. Employes Urge Automatic Promotion Plan

Automatic promotions for Federal employes were urged last night by speakers at a meeting under the auspices of the District Federation of Federal Employes Unions, affiliate of the National Federation of Federal Employes, at North Interior Department auditorium.

Edgar B. Young, personnel officer of the Bureau of the Budget, urged passage of a bill, sponsored by that unit, providing automatic promotions every 11 months for employes earning $3,800 or less annually and promotions every 30 months for those with salaries higher than that amount.

Young said a survey conducted by the Budget Bureau revealed that promotions were considerably faster in the higher than in the lower Government pay brackets.

The official also stated that in some departments there was practically no advancement of employes.

Other speakers included William P. Lehman, of the Civil Service Commission, and Luther Stewart, president, National Federation of Federal Employes, who discussed the Federal interdepartmental placement service, and promotional policies in the Government.

Mobile Power Plant Shown in Capital

A mobile power plant, which could be plugged in almost anywhere in case of power plant failures caused by bombing or other disasters, was exhibited here yesterday by the Rural Electrification Administration.

During open house festivities tonight at the Longfellow Building, the REA's new quarters, the generator will be used to light part of the building.

The plant is en route from the factory at Detroit to a group of farmer electric cooperatives in Georgia.

Hazen Discharged From Florida Hospital

Melvin C. Hazen, president of the District of Columbia Commission, yesterday was discharged from Morrell Memorial Hospital in Lakeland, Fla., but remained under care of his physician and friend of 40 years, Dr. John E. Ballenger. Hazen is recuperating but said he would probably stay another month.

D. C. Court Probe Urged By Citizens

Columbia Heights Forum Favor Plan to Speed Up Wheels of Justice

A Congressional investigation of the District's courts "to the end that we may have an up-to-date and efficient system," was requested last night by the Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights.

A resolution asking for such an inquiry was adopted unanimously at a meeting in Powell Junior High School, Hyatt Place and Lamont Street Northwest, after the citizens agreed something should be done to speed up the wheels of justice here.

The investigation, said the resolution, should consider the advisability of magistrate courts at police stations, additional judges to cope with congestion of dockets, a compulsory retirement system for all judges, a law restricting the length of judges' vacations, prompt assembling of courts at regular hours each day, an administrator for all District of Columbia courts and annual reports to the District Commissioners.

The inquiry was urged in connection with the proposed consolidation of the Police and Municipal Courts.

The forum also declined to affiliate with the Municipal Assembly, called for larger appropriations by Congress for work with children shut in their homes here by illness and adopted a resolution of regret in the death of Charles S. Easterling, first president of the forum.

Dr. Robin Gould, pastor of Asbury Methodist Church, spoke.

Deanwood Civic Ass'n

The Deanwood Civic Association will celebrate its twenty-ninth anniversary at 8 p. m. today with ceremonies at the Deanwood School, 1035 Whittingham Place Northeast.

The program, in the charge of Frank L. Shears, will include a testimonial to the Rev. E. T. Broadus, pastor of Central Union Baptist Church. It will be delivered by the Rev. Hampton T. Gaskins.

Alberta Lawson, winner of the Elks educational contest, will give an address on "The Negro and the Constitution." W. J. Tompkins, recorder of deeds, also will speak.

Petworth Citizens

The Petworth Citizens Association last night petitioned President Roosevelt to fill the post of people's counsel in the District of government, which has been vacant for some time. The action was taken at the regular meeting of the association held at the Petworth Library.

Protest of any decrease in bus service to the Petworth area was reiterated at the meeting.

Pause for Drinks Foils Prison Break Plot in Which Four Die

By the Associated Press

White Plains, N. Y., April 15.—The desire for a "couple of drinks" by two confessed outside aides of a desperate convict trio who shot their way out of Sing Sing Prison probably caused the failure of the plot which resulted in four deaths and murder charges against four men.

District Attorney Elbert T. Gallagher said that William Wade, 32, and Edward Kiernan, 33, both of New York, confessed they smuggled three pistols into the prison nearly a month ago on a milk delivery truck.

With the smuggled weapons, Convicts Joseph Riordan, Charles McGale and John Waters fought their way to temporary freedom early yesterday. When they got outside the wall after fatally shooting a prison guard, their coconspirators were having drinks in a tavern instead of standing beside a waiting escape car, as planned, according to Gallagher.

Waters was killed in a gun fight with Ossining police, in which a police officer also was slain. In the prison infirmary, where the break started, a convict patient died of excitement and shock.

Gallagher said the absence of the outside aides when McGale and Riordan started their flight caused them to take an unplanned course across the Hudson River, where they were ferried by a reluctant fisherman at gun's point.

They were captured in the wooded hills there a few hours later. Wade and Kiernan, meanwhile, had been picked up by Ossining police after discovery of a car parked near the prison, containing a machine gun.

Gallagher said he would seek first-degree murder indictments against Riordan, McGale, Wade and two others now at large.

The convicts and their outside aides were arraigned on the charge, waived examination and were taken to the Westchester County Jail.

Tuft of Beard Of King George III To Be Auctioned

A bit of fluff described as a part of King George III's beard will be among articles to be auctioned here at 9:30 p. m. today to raise funds for the British Royal Air Force benevolent fund. The auction, aftermath of a three-day sale by the Picadilly Arcade earlier this month, will be held in the Anderson House, 2108 Massachusetts Avenue.

Auctioneers will be Elsa Maxwell, expert on how to throw parties, and Richard Myer, a director of the New York Philharmonic, both of New York City. Other articles they will put under the hammer include:

A signed copy of Wendell Willkie's testimony on the lend-lease bill, a signed copy of President Roosevelt's third inaugural address and a billfold formerly owned by the present Queen Elizabeth of England.

Rotary to Celebrate

Tenth anniversary of the founding of the Georgetown branch of the Boys Club of Washington will be celebrated at a Rotary Club Founders' Day luncheon today in the Willard Hotel.

Dr. McMahon Assails U. S. Isolationists

America's own security and world peace in the future depend upon "the abandonment forever" of isolationism by the United States and its decision to "take its rightful place in effecting world order," Dr. Francis E. McMahon, of the University of Notre Dame, said here yesterday.

Addressing the fifteenth annual conference of the Catholic Association for International Peace at Trinity College, he told the delegates that "some sort of international organization will be needed.

"Never again," he added, "must we be misled by the isolationists."

"If Nazi nihilism triumphs in the present war, there will be no chance for a world organization built upon justice and Christian charity," he said. "Our task, therefore, is to see that this war ends with the uprooting of the cancer of nihilism, and to apply in the post-war period the intelligence and good will requisite for a state of permanent peace."

Charles G. Fenwick, chairman of the association's international law and organization committee, warned the representatives that a German victory over Europe would result in South American states being forced to make barter agreements with Nazi trade officials.

"These barter agreements will be the opening wedge for Nazi propaganda so highly organized and systematized that it is doubtful whether it can be effectively resisted, even by governments which fundamentally abhor it," he said.

William M. Montavon, K. S. G., of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, announced at the closing conference session that his organization's news service will be expanded to include a Spanish language service for Latin-American countries "within a few weeks."

Other developments in the program to increase Pan-American solidarity, he said, include plans for a Catholic Hour to be transmitted via short wave to South America by the National Council of Catholic Men, and issuance of pamphlets on Spanish-American topics by the Catholic Association for International Peace.

Other speakers at yesterday's session of the two-day conference included the Right Rev. John A. Ryan, Mary P. Holleran, Matthew M. McMahon and Marie J. Carroll.

The bidding:

J. L. C has only a fair hand but his partner has "reversed," showing exceptional strength and practically forcing him to bid again. His wisest call would probably be two no trump.

SUMMER AT THE SHOREHAM. The sun terrace at the Shoreham opened Monday, and you should have seen the dozens of lily white anatomies getting their first dose of sun tan after a dip in the pool . . . The rainbow fountain will start to sparkle some time this week and the outdoor cocktail terrace opens in a few days . . . Chairs and tables on the Shoreham Terrace are being given new costumes of bright paint, though the gala summer opening isn't scheduled until around Decoration Day. It's bandied about that Dancers Woods and Bray will head the opening outdoor revue on the Terrace.

Capt. Nick Hope and his accordion will join Lina D'Acosta and Tommy Johnson in the Silver Fox diversion ensemble beginning Friday. You'd better arrived early at the Silver Fox for weekends. More than 200 were turned away last Saturday eve. Owner Fred Johansen gives us the happy news that the Silver Fox will be open on Sunday evenings hereafter.

LOUNGE RIVIERA NEWS. Newest type air conditioning will be installed in the Lounge Riviera annex and be completed well before the formal summer opening around May 20 . . . We saw Tinsley Garnett, of the local draft authorities, dancing with chic Mrs. Walter Simon, recently divorced. Alex Hagner was squiring Countess Baillet Latour . . . Many Riviera patrons are coming in to say goodby before they leave for camp. Among them was Horace Dodge, who's off to Fort Bragg as a first lieutenant.

PROPHECY FULFILLED. Didn't we tell you that Glen Echo's opening would bring the good ol' summertime? The Spanish Garden Ballroom is balmy as a night in June, crowded with youngsters who know that Paul Kain's brand of swing is what the doctor would order, if they ever saw a doctor.

KNEE-DEEP IN APRIL. If you see a dashing brunette clad in wood violet from her head to her suede shoes, it'll probably be Eileen George, of the Anchor Room . . . Loczi, handsome cymbalon player of the Plymouth is so enamored of a pretty girl entertainer, that he has invited us to his wedding. The young leddy seems to like Loczi, too . . . Oscar of the Hi Hat is busy planting a bushel of dahlia bulbs. They were a gift from a grateful customer . . . Dorothy Pond, dainty Arthur Murray dancer of the Pall Mall Room, looks like a waltzing flower bed in a formal of tropical print . . . Vince Perry, guitarist and youngest member of Don Carper's Four in Cafe Caprice, has a specific blonde complex . . . Whatever you do, don't miss seeing the toy Easter village adjoining the Mayflower Lounge. It has everything,—railroad, schoolhouse, grist mill, grocery store, gardens and little people and animals.

Marjorie Gainsworth, one of the country's most gorgeous sopranos, is bedazzling the Troika. Next on La Helen Hamilton's list of stars is Emil Boreo, who'll arrive around May 1.

QUAINT FACTS. One of Lotus' favorite customers is now in the hospital. She called up while convalescing and Bill Strickland had the band play her favorite "Deep Purple" over the telephone . . . Maestro Milton Davis of the Rainbow Room tells us that all army musicians are subject to duty as stretcher bearers in time of war.—

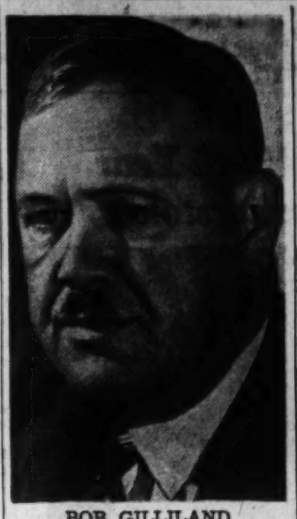
DRUMMER SHOOTS TRUMPETER! They're blank shots, but Drummer Pat Murphy shoots Trumpeter Sidney Foster in Jack Coffey's Metronome Room revue. Next person to do some shooting will probably be Maitre d'Hotel William Hino, who's getting plumb exhausted from digging up properties for the Coffey shows. He nearly balked at getting a fortune telling crystal. Greeter Boris is leaving Metronome and his new singing career to do some real shooting. He gets into uniform tomorrow.

An army colonel from Honolulu recently pronounced that Hawaiian songs of Evelyn Knight of the King Cole Room are absolutely perfect in their intonation of the native language. Evelyn learned her Hawaiian via gramophone records.

DIZZY SPECIALS. Those nameless boogie-woogie originals done in Mayfair by the Gentlemen of Rhythm who dug them up in the odder quarters of New Orleans. . . Jerry Brandow's twice-a-night jive spasms at Paul Youngs. Wilder than a tiger who's been offered a vegetable dinner. . . The way Cecilia whoops up Mexican numbers in Ciro's Famous Village. She has all onlookers shouting "Agua!"



BOB GILLILAND, owner and founder of River Bend, popular dine-and-dancery on the Mount Vernon Boulevard and "Yippee-e". . . Jack Shaffer's shivering midnight trumpet in the Casino Royal. He blows the notes away up there until they go through the roof.

SMART PEOPLE are Bob and Bertie Hellman of the Neptune Room who are also featured on the current Earle Theater bill . . . Also accomplished Jose and Paquita of La Salle Versailles, so proficient in Mexican folk lore that they can present dances typical of every state in Mexico . . . Also Jane Marlow and the Heintze Brothers of Restaurant "823" whose piano and violin music has a warmth and ingratiating quality that shine equally in classic interludes and "823's" community sings . . . Also Don Wallmark, Washington musician, who makes many arrangements for Carmen Cavallaro's orchestra at the Carlton.

"It's New Year's Eve every weekend at Kavakos", says Bill Kavakos. That puts it perfectly. The weekend floor shows at Kavakos' Grill are dillers, always include the liveliest of vaudeville talent.

FOOD WITH GLAMOUR. Rare French sauces compounded by Chef Bianchi glorify all the principal dishes on Olmsted's menu. . . The Madrillon has evolved a group of new cocktail tidbits with a South American slant.

THE NIGHTINGALE SINGS, and tells us that Leader Rodd Raffell has again succumbed to that composing urge, turned off a couple of neat dance numbers that he'll play for you, if you ask him pretty please.

PRIZE CONTEST for Winter Vacation PICTURES!

Here's your chance to show Washington what a good time you had on your winter vacation . . . and to pick up a little money, too! Each week The Post publishes in its rotogravure section the best picture received from amateur photographers, calls it "The Picture of the Week" and pays $5.00 to the cameraman. In (and for) a few weeks this contest will be devoted to winter vacation scenes exclusively. One week there will be a $5.00 prize for the best Southern scene. The next week's $5.00 prize will be given for the best Northern scene.

In addition to the $5.00 pictures, The Post will publish some of the other entries, too. One dollar will be paid for each picture used. Even though you think your picture isn't the tops in lights and shadows, send it in anyway. It may win you a dollar or even $5. Address all entries to Winter Vacation Picture Contest, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C., before April 21st.

Introducing the One-Man Gang

Boston, April 15.—I met up with the one, the only, the original one-man gang today. He was wearing a Red Sox uniform, and he is a gold-toothed, bronze-complected citizen named Mike Ryba. He's 36-years-old, but that didn't deter Manager Joe Cronin from buying him from the Rochester club last winter. He's sort of terrific.

POVICH

Nominally, he's a pitcher, but that isn't exactly true. Put him on any spot on the diamond, behind the bat, in the outfield or any of the infield jobs, and he isn't out of position. He plays them all. As we were saying, at 36, he's breaking into the big leagues again as a rookie, at an age when most players are supposed to be in their baseball dotage, if, indeed, they haven't passed out of the majors as poor decrepits.

This guy Ryba—you pronounce it Reeba—is a refreshing character aside from the fact that he plays any of nine positions on a ball team. At least he sounded like it this afternoon when I got him aside on the Red Sox bench and asked him what he made of this baseball business after 16 years in the minors and finding himself in the big leagues at 36.

"It gripes me," said Mike, "to hear these guys squawking about their baseball jobs. Any time I'm playing ball for any club anywhere, I'm happy. I'm not squawking about the train rides or the dirty uniforms, or what they call bad service in the hotels. I know I'm lucky to be out of those coal mines where I spent the first young years of my life around Pittsburgh.

"Most all of the 16 years I've been playing ball, I've been in the minors, but I'm not kicking. They've written sob stories about me wasting my time in the minors without a real major league chance, but they'll never make me believe that. Listen, sonny, you know what I call my baseball career? Well, I call it a 16-year vacation from the coal mines.

Old Man Ryba Serves 'em Up

"I go back to the old home town and see my own boyhood pals working down there in those coal holes, and I feel lucky. I used to be one of 'em. Never saw the sun for months, except on Sunday. Baseball has been wonderful to me, even if I have been in the minors. Whenever you hear Mike Ryba squawk, you'll know he's gone crazy."

The way Joe Cronin figured it, any pitcher who won 24 games and lost eight with Rochester last year in Double A ball had a whale of a chance of making his Boston pitching staff, and that's why the fact that Ryba's 36 years didn't make any difference when Rochester put a $10,000 price tag on the old boy. Apparently the Red Sox thought he still could pitch.

The idea was, originally, that old man Ryba would be exceedingly useful in the late innings when Cronin's supposed regular pitchers started to swoon, but they've forgotten about Ryba as a relief pitcher now. Down South, he demonstrated that he was just about the best pitcher on the Boston squad, and he is now a qualified starter on Cronin's club.

I'll serve 'em up some of the things I've been throwing in the minors," says Mike. "I can give 'em a pretty good side-arm fast ball and a pretty good curve, and if I'm not fooling anybody, I'll show 'em a knuckler that's not bad." But he wasn't telling all of his pitching story. Joe Cronin added, "and yes, he can pitch a cross-fire and a better than fair change of pace. He's wonderful."

Ryba had his chance with the Cardinals back in 1936, but somehow he didn't stick in the majors. The Cardinals couldn't decide whether he was pitcher, catcher, infielder and outfielder, but they knew he was an attraction and regularly sent him out to bolster one of their farm teams as a one-man gang. In the minors, they staged exhibitions for Ryba in which he played one inning at each position on the field until the nine innings was completed.

It Took a Pitcher to Catch Dizzy

"Down there with St. Louis, one day in 1936, Frankie Frisch was looking around for somebody to catch Dizzy Dean, and he finally ended up by picking a pitcher to catch Dean—that was me," says Ryba. "That was the softest job I ever had, catching Dizzy. He was the greatest pitcher I ever saw. I'd just hold my catcher's mitt up, and he'd throw the ball wherever I held it. I could have caught Dean sitting in a rocking chair. When he was right, the men who caught Dean were stealing the club's money."

There was the season when he managed the Cardinals' farm at Springfield, Mo., in the Western Association. He had a pretty good pitching record that year. Won 14 games and lost only 3. Why didn't he win more? Well, you see, he was also catching 95 games for the club that season.

"I was manager, pitcher, catcher, infielder and outfielder," says Ryba. "In my spare time with Springfield, I'd sell tickets, rub the other pitchers, arrange all the trips, and pinch-hit. I started out catching one game, and when the first baseman was hurt, I played three innings at first base. When our pitcher started going bad, I went in there and pitched the last three innings. I used to be a pretty busy guy."

How come he could do all these things? "It's my arm," says Ryba. "It's a wonderful arm that I've got. I can make any kind of a throw, from pitching to infielding. That's why certain ball players are limited to one position—they have only one kind of throw. I never had any trouble making any kind of a throw. This old arm has never been sore in its life. I love this old wing of mine. I know it has given me a 16-year vacation from those coal mines I was telling you about."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Uncle Mike Looks Ahead

Lieut. Commander Gene Tunney and Mike Jacobs put their heads together here at the Navy Department and mapped out the first step in what promises to be the biggest boxing program ever attempted.

CONSIDINE

They arranged a boxing show to be held in Jacksonville, Fla., on May 17. The card will be made up of nine matches between draftees from Camp Blanding, Fla., where Former Featherweight Champion Petey Sarron is boxing instructor, and a team composed of sailors stationed at Pensacola, Jacksonville and Miami.

But this is only the beginning of a draft camp boxing campaign which will reach from coast to coast and make use of countless thousands of men.

With Jacobs as a kind of advisory promoter and Tunney as the Government's man, inter-camp and inter-service rivalries will be fostered with small admission charges. Out of this tremendous amount of boxing is expected to come the new faces which Jacobs and other promoters need so vitally in order to keep their game prospering.

Tunney is a great believer in the value of boxing to a soldier. "I believe boxing is most important in inculcating the qualities that make for a good military man. Boxing makes for quick-thinking, self-reliance, stick-to-it-iveness and discipline," he said.

"This competition we plan will be a great thing for the boxing game. There is no doubt that the boxing instructors we're assigning, and shows such as the one we plan at Jacksonville, will promote new interest in the game. I never would have become heavyweight champion had it not been for my training as a Marine Corps boxer. I had boxed a little before going into the Marines, but it was as a Marine with proper instructions that I found I had a real talent for the sport. I dare say that this will be true of hundreds of young men in camps today, when we get this program working well."

Boxing Game Is Making History

Speaking of Jacobs, he told us that boxing history is being made without the average fan's realizing it. His last few shows at Madison Square Garden were very quietly televisioned and shown to a few radio executives at a theater a few blocks from the garden.

The historic part of all this is that the matches were shown on a full sized movie screen. We saw this miraculous thing work in the Nova-Baer match, and even though the television cameras were not placed too well in the garden that night, the full screen impression was very nearly as good as those fight pictures you see after the big battles. The sound, of course, was much better and truer than the crowd sounds dubbed in on fight films.

"Within a year," Jacobs told us, "engineers will be sending television broadcasts to theaters within a 900-mile radius of the fight itself. And don't think Uncle Mike is going to be left out in the cold. It's been suggested that I collect a 10-cent royalty on every seat in the theaters which will exhibit the televised fights. I've got a better idea. I'll work on a 60-40 basis with each theater. And get it on the company that sells the equipment, too.

"You heard a lot of talk about the million-dollar gate. With television perfected, there could easily be a ten-million-dollar gate for a fight—when you consider the countless thousands of theaters in the country which would pay for the privilege of showing the televised bout."

Boston's 3-Run Rally in 9th Beats Nats, 7 to 6

Record Crowd Sees Chisox Beat Feller, 4-3

Rapid Robert Walks Seven, Strikes Two

46,064 See Indians' Star Chased in 6th; Bill Dietrich Hurls Steadily to Score

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, April 15.—Bob Feller failed the Cleveland Indians today. The record Cleveland season-opening turnout of 46,064 fans saw the Iowa strike-out king walk seven men, hit two more and give five hits in the first six innings to stake the Chicago White Sox to a 4-to-3 triumph.

While Feller was walking across what turned out to be the winning run, spectacled Bill Dietrich hurled steady seven-hit ball.

Rapid Robert hurled a no-hitter in last year's opener against the same White Sox and went on to win 27 games, but he didn't have it today. Jimmy Dykes' crew promptly made two runs in the first inning to spoil all thought of another no-hitter.

Feller Wild

Feller's own wildness contributed to the first two tallies. He hit Bill Knickerbocker and walked Joe Kuhel on four straight, to put two runners on base. The Sox couldn't pass up this opportunity and tallied twice on singles by Julius Solters, Dario Lodigiani and Larry Rosenthal.

The Indians knotted it with a run in the fourth on Hal Trosky's double and Jeff Heath's single, and another in the fifth when Hemsley singled and finally scored with aid of a passed ball, a sacrifice and an infield bouncer.

That put it up to Mr. Feller and he promptly fizzled. Lodigiani singled and Rosenthal doubled, the former scoring on an outfield fly. Rosenthal was run down on an infield grounder, but Feller walked three men in a row to push the winning run over the plate.

Ray Mack's 360-foot eighth-inning homer into the left-field stands was wasted. Joe Heving and Clint Brown finished for Cleveland. The crowd compared with the previous record of 31,606 in Cleveland Stadium for the 1938 opener.

A Feller pitch hit Dietrich on the right arm in the second inning and one of the Chicago hurler's slow balls nicked Bob on the sleeve in the fifth. By special permission of Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, Chicago used Donald Kolloway as a pinch runner for Dietrich while the flinger rested his bruised arm for action the next inning.

Writers Pick Columbus In American Association

Columbus, Ohio, April 15 (AP).—Baseball writers in American Association cities today picked Columbus to win the 1941 pennant after a stiff fight with Minneapolis and Kansas City. Kansas City won the pennant last year.

The Columbus club got 19 out of 33 first place votes, Minneapolis 10 and Kansas City the other 4.

34,940 See Cards Beat Reds, 7 to 3

Cincinnati, April 15.—The St. Louis Cardinals staged a display of batting power to win the season's opener against the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 3, before a crowd of 34,940.

Paul Derringer, ace pitcher of the world champs, and Joe Beggs were mound victims of the Cardinals' batting attack, which included homers by Koy, Slaughter and Mize.

Frank McCormick put the Reds off to a lead with a homer in the second inning. Joost doubled, scoring Ripple in the same frame.

With two out in the third, Koy accounted for the Cardinals' first tally with a homer. The Cards grabbed the lead in the fourth, when Moore singled and Slaughter homered.

Marion's double, Crespi's sacrifice, Warneke's single and Koy's out gave the Cards another in the seventh. They got their fifth run in the eighth on successive two-baggers by Moore and Mize, and finished their attack in the final frame when Moore singled and Mize rapped a home run.

McCormick gave Cincinnati its third tally with a homer in the ninth.

Three double plays enabled Lon Warneke to last through the Reds' 10-hit attack. The Cards secured 12 base knocks. Gus Mancuso, St. Louis catcher, was forced from the game with a split middle finger on his right hand when struck by a foul tip.

Dean Bests Ruffing, A's Beat Yanks, 3-1

Macks Ace Duplicates Last Year's Victory Over 'Red;' Chapman's 2-Run Homer Decisive

By the Associated Press

New York, April 15.—Lovill (Chubby) Dean, of the Philadelphia Athletics, has the New York Yankees' number—on opening day at least.

A year ago he duelled Red Ruffing for ten innings in which each pitcher allowed out six hits and then he drove in a run in the extra chapter for a 2-to-1 victory.

Today he again opposed Ruffing and handcuffed the Yanks on five hits for a 3-to-1 triumph before 40,128 fans who turned out for New York's home opening.

Chapman Homers

The game was a scoreless struggle until, with two out in the seventh, Dick Siebert singled and Sam Chapman homered. Then with two out in the ninth Siebert singled for the third straight time and Rookie Pete Suder doubled him home.

The Yanks didn't get a runner to third until the ninth, but Joe DiMaggio doubled in that frame and came home on an infield out and a long fly.

Hash Defeats Fenelon in Jamaica Race

By the Associated Press

Jamaica Race Track, N. Y., April 15.—Mrs. Payne Whitney's Hash led William Woodward's Fenelon home by a length and a half in the mile and 70 yards of the Dunboyne Purse here today, but arguments waxed loud and long after the race as to which was the better horse. Fenelon ran out at the stretch turn, a new trait for the Belair colt, while Hash saved all the ground possible while speeding into command.

This money went to Maxwell Howard's The Chief. Bonzar was fourth and Hypnotist II, another Woodward horse making his American debut, brought up the rear. The last named, a war refugee which came here with quite a reputation, showed some speed in spots. The erratic running English stakes winner doubtlessly will be benefited by the race.

Hash Pays $5.40

Hash, which finished fifth in Hialeah's Widener Handicap in his last outing, was $5.40 for $2 second choice to the Woodward pair, the latter closing at 4 to 5. The time was 1:42 3-5.

Once again the attendance was well over the corresponding day of a year ago. Today's count was 12,847.

Fenelon, which raced far back in the recent Paumonok, won by another Fitzsimmons-trained horse—King Cole—showed the speed that made many consider him last year's best 3-year-old. He dashed right to the front under Jimmy Stout and opened up daylight over The Chief. The bay colt reached the top of the stretch with two-length margin. At that point, Hash had drawn alongside The Chief. Then Fenelon made his extremely wide turn for home. Hash skirted the inside rail, took a good lead and held Fenelon safe as the latter gamely tried to overcome the handicap.

All five starters are nominated for Saturday's $10,000 mile-and-one-sixteenth Excelsior Handicap. In that event, Hash and Fenelon may provide the answer to the questions and claims that were heard here this afternoon regarding their respective merits.

WMAL Will Air Nats Game Today; Problem Unsettled

The Nats second game with the Boston Red Sox today in Boston will be broadcast by Station WMAL, pending settlement of the question of carrying the entire Nats' schedule over the air this season.

With Arch McDonald and Ray Michael at the microphone, telegraphic returns of the game as yesterday, will go on the air at 4:15 p. m. on a noncommercial basis. Radio officials expect a definite answer on the broadcast problem sometime today.

Decisive Run Walked in By McFayden

Hudson Blows Three Leads, Is Charged With Loss; Homers Help Red Sox Win

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Fenway Park, Boston, Mass., April 15.—Ouch! The Nats just tossed off a two-run lead in the ninth inning and got themselves licked by the Boston Red Sox today, 7-6.

It was painful in the extreme. Not only because Sid Hudson was unable to hold three separate leads the Nats nobly went out and procured for him, but because Boston's winning run was forced across the plate by Danny MacFayden.

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall threw out the first ball at the start of the game with 17,700 fans in their seats and in the sixth inning Manager Joe Cronin threw out the first Boston pitcher, but the Nats' success didn't endure.

Ted Comes Through

Hudson, who was being banged around freely from the start—there were homers by Joe Cronin and Bobby Doerr in the early innings—made a mess of his 6-4 lead in the ninth. His first act of the inning was to pitch a two-bagger to Frankie Pytlak who clouted the ball high against the center field wall, and then Cronin called on the injured Ted Williams to pinch hit.

Williams did. He rapped a solid single into right field and Pytlak scored to cut the Nats' lead to 6-5. Dominic DiMaggio sacrificed to move the tying run to second base, and then Hudson saw his lead vanish completely when Lou Finney almost decapitated him with a single to center that made the score 6-6.

Hudson was through, but the Red Sox weren't. Their old pal, Danny MacFayden, poked his nose in the pitcher's box, and right off the bat Pete Fox singled to right to put the winning run on third with one out. In this hopeless sort of crisis, Manager Bucky Harris ordered Jimmy Foxx walked to fill the bases. Whereupon MacFayden threw some balls to Cronin—four of them punctuated by one strike—and the game had blown up in the faces of the Nats.

Gets Two Doubles

It was sad. The Nats were a valiant sort of crew today, except for their pitching. They slugged out 13 hits and knocked Jack Wilson out of the box in the sixth inning. They banged long drives against Boston's left and center field fences five times, four of them two-baggers. In the field, Roger Cramer, Ben Chapman and Buddy Myer sparkled, but Hudson and MacFayden were giving runs back to the Red Sox faster than the Nats could score 'em.

It wasn't Rick Ferrell's fault that the Nats lost. The little catcher banged three hits against the left-field fence, two of them doubles.

At the end of the sixth, however, the Nats' attack collapsed. Herb Hash, Boston's second pitcher, held Washington scoreless in the seventh, and young Earl Johnson similarly shut them out in the eighth and ninth, to become the winning pitcher.

Syracuse Scores Four in First to Beat Maryland Nine, 8-1

Moran Holds Old Liners To Six Hits

Fulton's Wildness Leads to Orange's Early Outburst; DiPace Star at Bat

By Jack Munhall

Maryland's baseball team encountered first-inning trouble again yesterday and for the fourth time this season lost a ball game before it even came to bat. Syracuse, shoving over four luscious tallies in the opening frame, shellacked the Terrapins, 8-1, at College Park to wind up its invasion of these parts with two victories in three starts.

In all three of the up-State New Yorkers' games in this vicinity the winning score was eight runs. They blanked Navy, 8-0, Saturday and bowed to Georgetown, 8-3, Monday. Syracuse continues its Southern swing by meeting Western Maryland tomorrow and Loyola of Baltimore Friday.

Ray (Red) Moran, only experienced hurler on the Syracuse staff, pitched steadily to limit the Old Liners to six scattered hits and escape trouble in all but the second inning when Maryland counted its only run. A lead-off double by Frank Dwyer, a single by Mearle DuVall and a forceout by Danny Boothe produced Maryland's marker.

No Contest

And so, after the second inning, it was just no contest. Syracuse loafed along until the sixth without stirring up much trouble against Cecil Woodward, who had relieved Bill Fulton in the first. Then it added one run. Max Hunt became Maryland's third pitcher when he replaced Woodward in the seventh and the Orange took kindly to his offerings.

They teed off in the eighth for three hits, which with two errors by the shaky Maryland defense, engendered three runs and ended the day's scoring.

Moran pitched to only 34 batters in notching his second straight victory. He had allowed only three hits in blanking the Middies. He surrendered two hits in the second and one each in the third, fourth, seventh and eighth. In the first, fifth and sixth he turned back the Terps in order and after the third not a Maryland player reached second base.

Danny DiPace, speedy Orange basketball star, headed the Syracuse attack with a single and a two-run homer. His circuit smash, a liner to center, came in the eighth behind a single by Watt.

Fulton, crippled Maryland sophomore southpaw, failed to last one inning for the second successive time. Against Michigan last week Fulton, who is as wild as young lefthanders are supposed to be walked himself out of the box before he could retire a second batter. Yesterday he was the first man he succeeded in getting out.

The youngster who pitches and catches with the same left hand while using the stump of his right arm only as a peg for his glove, yielded consecutive singles to Watt, DiPace and Cocapt. Charles Holly, issued pases to Kenny Hess and McPhail, and then threw a single to Cocapt, Ray Pulaski and three runs were across. At this point he was relieved by Woodward, who attends Maryland's law school in Baltimore and commutes to College Park each day for practice.

Woodward, a righthander, ended the threat peremptorily by retiring the next three batters. He then sailed along impressively until giving way to Hunt in the seventh, being touched for only three singles and one run during his six-inning stretch. Hunt gave up the last three of Syracuse's 12 safeties.

Maryland, now loser of six of eight games, returns to action tomorrow, playing host to Washington and Lee in a Southern Conference attraction.

Prince Georges Boxing Show On Tomorrow

A 16-bout amateur boxing show topped by a three-rounder between Red Vernon, Golden Gloves senior lightweight king, and Walter (Buddy) Thomas, of the Prince Georges County Police Boys' Club, will be staged tomorrow night at the University of Maryland Coliseum.

Outstanding amateur fighters who won laurels in both the Gloves and the A. A. U. tourneys recently will take part in the show, sponsored by the Prince Georges club, and an old-fashioned "battle royal" involving six colored boys will climax the business.

Thomas, who won the outstanding novice title in the Gloves contest and then went on to win the senior A. A. U. 135-pound championship, highlights the card in his battle with the clever red-head from the Metropolitan Police Boys Club No. 5.

Mullens on Card

The show will bring out such amateur stars as Dickey Mullens, Lloyd Rauschkolb, Lewis Hanbury and the Todd brothers.

Mullens, the National Training School's A. A. U. flyweight champion, fights Bill Miller or Charles Fischer, of the Merrick Boys Club. Lew Hanbury, also of Merrick, will carry his 126-pound A. A. U. title into battle against Huston Anderson, of N. T. S.

Six sets of brothers will be seen in action—Mack, Ray and Lewis Hanbury; Ray and James Cleveland; Par and Buddy Thomas; Hershel and Vernon Todd; Lawrence and Matthew Leaf, and the two 55-pounders, James and Freddy Richardson.

The Line-ups

1. Freddie Richardson, 55 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. John Richardson, 50 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club).
2. Stanley Moreland, 105 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. Ray Hanbury, 108 pounds (Merrick Boys Club).
3. Gene Hunt, 130 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. Ray Cleveland, 128 pounds (Merrick Boys Club).
4. John Sturgis, 75 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. James Cleveland, 80 pounds (Merrick Boys Club).
5. James Caraway, 95 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. Ray Brown, 105 pounds (Metropolitan Police Boys Club, No. 4).
6. Lawrence Leaf, 120 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. Danny McLaughlin, 118 pounds (Merrick Boys Club).
7. Pat Thomas, 55 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. Robert Dunmoyer, 55 pounds (Merrick Boys Club).
8. Vernon Todd, 147 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. Lloyd Rauschkolb, 147 pounds (National Training School).
9. Matthew Leaf, 160 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. W. Beckham, 160 pounds (National Training School).
10. Mack Hanbury, 65 pounds (Merrick Boys Club) vs. Lane Huff, 65 pounds (Merrick Boys Club).

Intermission

11. Richard Kline, 95 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. Dave Staples, 98 pounds (Merrick Boys Club).
12. Hershel Todd, 160 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club vs. Wallace Turner, 160 pounds (National Training School).
13. Sidney Warner, 175 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. unnamed representative of National Training School.
14. Bill Miller, 112 pounds (Merrick Boys Club) vs. Dick Mullen, 112 pounds (National Training School).
15. Lewis Hanbury, 126 pounds (Merrick Boys Club) vs. Huston Anderson, 126 pounds (National Training School).
16. Walter "Buddy" Thomas, 135 pounds (Prince Georges Police Boys Club) vs. "Red" Vernon, 135 pounds (Metropolitan Police Boys Club, No. 5).
17. Battle Royal—Six or more fighting colored boys in a free-for-all.

DeChard Offered $500 To Fight Kenner Here

Local Heavyweight Wanted for Special Eight-Rounder on Turner's Card Tomorrow

Promoter Joe Turner yesterday announced that he has made Jimmy DeChard a "flat offer of $500" to fight Jabbo Kenner, 220-pound colored heavyweight find, in a special 8-round bout on Monday night's Cocoa Kid-Joey Sutka middleweight card in the Fourteenth and W Streets arena.

It was undetermined as to just who the "flat" referred to in the offer, but in the event of such a specialty it is certain that either Jimmy or Jabbo would be strictly horizontal at the end of the goings-on.

DeChard, who made his professional debut at Uline's last week with a one-round knockout over something called Joe Linsie, is rather frail to match with the hulking colored fighter. Kenner made his professional debut two weeks ago at Turner's with a hasty knockout of Larry Bochard. Kenner and DeChard both showed plenty of punching power, but Kenner's prowess is likely to scare off Frankie Mann, manager of DeChard, at this time.

Meanwhile, the District Boxing Commission yesterday went into a huddle to study the problem of a referee for the proposed Joe Louis-Buddy Baer heavyweight championship fight, tentatively scheduled for Griffith Stadium late in May.

The commission—which had held out for a local referee—agreed to name one of three nationally known figures proposed by the Louis and Baer camps, either Arthur Donovan, Billy Cavanaugh or Eddie Josephs.

But despite the championship drawing power, the prices which Promoters Mike Jacobs and Ray Alvis plan to demand for the business are enough to scare away even the most avid fan—$15 for ringside and $2 for general admission.

Former Purdue Star To Coach at Union

Schnectady, N. Y., April 15 (AP).—Arthur C. Lawrence, former Purdue University athlete, was named today head football coach at Union College, succeeding Nelson W. Nitchman, resigned.

Lawrence, a native of Schenectady, has been on Union's football coaching staff since 1934. He was center on Purdue's 1932 and 1933 football teams.

Nitchman resigned, effective August 1, to become head football coach at Colby College, Waterville, Me.

Dick Chapman Gets Appointment To Maxwell Field

Greenwich, Conn., April 15.—Richard D. Chapman, national amateur golf champion, will be appointed assistant physical director at Maxwell Field, Army Air Corps training center at Montgomery, Ala., the Greenwich draft board announced today.

Earlier the board ordered Chapman to report to Hartford tomorrow for induction into the draft army, but Clerk Charles P. Robinson said he received a telephone call from the Maxwell Field commandant notifying him of the pending appointment.

The golfer, Robinson said, would take over the post soon and probably be commissioned a second lieutenant. Meanwhile the draft board, to whom Chapman had applied unsuccessfully for deferment because of hay fever, granted him a temporary deferment in view of the new development.

Polo Star Seeks U. S. Horses for Argentina

Buenos Aires, April 15 (AP).—Winston Guest, international polo player and member of the Pan-American Relations Committee, arrived here yesterday and conferred with jockey club authorities regarding a proposal to bring United States race horses to compete in stakes at Buenos Aires.

Guest said he also was considering the possibility of a United States polo team visiting Argentina this year and United States swimmers and other athletes competing in Brazil and Argentina.

Manor Host to Women

Manor Club will hold its first weekly ladies' field day Friday with 18 holes of medal play on both the men's and women's courses.

LaChappelli Wrestles Here Tomorrow

One of the best French wrestlers ever to show locally, Maurice LaChappelle, will return after a six-month absence to meet Jim Austeri, well known Eastern grappler, on tomorrow night's show at Turner's Arena featuring the Green Hornet, mystery man, and Milo (Strong Man) Steinborn.

A portion of the gate receipts will be turned over to a testimonial for Jim McGrath, WINX wrestling announcer who recently was injured seriously in a fall at the station.

LaChappelle is no villain and prefers the clean, scientific grappling to the rougher style as employed by the Duseks and Hornets.

Lou Plummer, topnotch villain, will face Len Macaluso, erstwhile football star, in a semiwindup, and Leo Nurma, a newcomer from the Pacific Coast, will make his bow against Chief White Feather, otherwise Tommy Marvin. Fred (Legs) Grobmier will oppose Herbie Freeman.

The Hornet wants revenge on Steinborn and also Referee Casey Berger. In his first local bout Berger disqualified the Hornet for unnecessary roughness against Steinborn.

Johns Hopkins Beats C. U. Netmen

Catholic University's tennis team suffered its third loss in seven matches yesterday when it lost to Johns Hopkins, 5-4, on the neutral Georgetown University courts. The match was to have been played at C. U. but the school's courts were not in shape.

The Cards and the visitors from Baltimore divided the six singles matches and Hopkins won two of the three doubles for its victory margin.

The results:

Singles

Dorasavage (C. U.) defeated Hobes, 2—6, 6—3, 6—1; Schman (C. U.) defeated Stern, 6—3, 1—6, 6—3; Baratz (H.) defeated O'Brien, 6—4, 6—1; Williams (C. U.) defeated Tannenbaum, 6—2, 6—3; Halle (H.) defeated Calcote, 8—6, 6—1; Cosworth (H.) defeated Sheridan, 6—0, 6—0.

Doubles

Hobes and Tannenbaum (H.) defeated Dorasavage and O'Brien, 7—5, 6—4; Williams and Schuman (C. U.) defeated Stern and Baratz, 6—2, 8—6; Halle and Cosworth (H.) defeated Calcote and Souffrond, 6—0, 6—0.

Cabmen Smash Pin Records At Brookland

All kinds of records went by the board at Brookland Recreation last night when the Diamond Cab boys took to the drives. George Simons, one of the stars of the loop, broke two records when he totaled 172 for the single, which he followed with a 437 set. Simons added 19 sticks to the former game mark and 33 to the old set high which he posted himself some months ago. Simons' Brightwood team, inspired by their star's bowling, then proceeded to chalk up new team records, counting 633 for the game and 1,732 for set which added 21 sticks to the former high team-game record and 23 to the set high. Carter, Greyhounds, also broke the high-game record with his splendid 165, only to see Simons come along and take the play away from him.

BETHESDA

The Christ Lutheran quintet in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Church League stole the show for they won both team highs with pinfalls of 599 for the game and 1,639 for the set. The Mount Zion Baptist lads took the odd game from Kensington Methodist, winning the third game by a single stick. Bob Althaus, Christ Lutheran, was the individual star for the meet with his 155 high single and 383 set.

GEORGETOWN

Larry Smith, Chappell Billiards, was the star of the Georgetown Commercial meet last night for he topped the others with a 153 game which he followed with a 410 set. Ed Leigh, Sam's Men's Shop, shot his second big set in a row, a nice 409, to pace his team to the odd game over the leading Hillows Cafe boys despite Pinky Bradt's 406. Frank Stump helped valiantly for Sam's with a nice 402 set. Old Home Cafe won the high team game with a 658 that helped them take three straight from C. B. Long & Son while Sam's Men's Shop knocked over 1,798 sticks to capture high set honors.

ARCADIA

Strawser, Luther Place No. 1, was the high single man in the Lutheran Men's League. His 142 topped them all as did Roudybush's 390 set for St. Matthew. The St. Paul No. 1 lads took the team highs after pinfalls of 601 and 1,746.

ICE PALACE

Joan Bransford, Woodpeckers, and Pauline Ford, Doves, were the best bowlers in the Ice Palace Ladies League with a 125 single and 337 set, respectively. Mrs. Ford's set helped her Doves team to a three-game win over the Cyclones that sewed up the championship for them by a one-game margin over the Woodpeckers. The Cardinals and Orioles split team honors with 505 and 1,450, respectively, with the latter team taking a three from the Eagles, while the Cards defeated the Racqueters, 3-0.

Goodman's Team Drills

Don Goodman's baseball team, after an organization meeting Thursday at 1910 Sixteenth Street Northwest at 8 p. m., will hold a lengthy practice session Friday at Ballston Stadium at 5 p. m.

Blue Delight, Agricole Draw Derby Notice

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., April 15.—Agricole and Blue Delight drew attention today of railbirds following Kentucky Derby eligibles in training at Churchill Downs.

Blue Delight, a filly owned by John Marsch, of Chicago, stepped the mile in 1:42 3-5, the best time for the distance recorded so far this year at the Downs. She was clocked for the three-quarters in 1:14 3-5.

Agricole, which with his Sandy Brook Farm stablemate Cadium, defeated Whirlaway, top-ranking Derby candidate in Florida last winter, had an impressive drill. He stepped off the quarter in 23 3-5, the half in 48 and the three-quarters in 1:15. Cadmium, apparently disliking the cuppy Downs track, was timed in 1:18 for the three-quarter.

Bulldinger and Drumont, Marsch's two other Derby nominees, each were timed in 1:15 3-5 for the three-quarters. Bulldinger pulled up the mile in 1:44 and Drumont pulled up the seven-eights in 1:29.

Feet Too Much In the Air, Wife Asks for Divorce

By the United Press

Miami, Fla., April 15.—Mrs. Alberta S. Miller likes bowling but her husband is too enthusiastic over the game, she said in a divorce suit filed in circuit court today.

Each time her husband would make a strike, she said in her petition, he would "repeatedly seize the plaintiff's ankles while she was seated in the chair and raise her feet high in the air."

Such "boisterous" actions, said Mrs. Miller, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., caused her "great physical pain and extreme embarrassment."

Boys From Peoria Almost 'Stood Up' In Nashville

By the Associated Press

Nashville, Tenn., April 15.—All the way from Peoria came the Bradley Tech golf team to play Vanderbilt—but when the boys got to the course the opposition wasn't there.

Apparently, Vanderbilt's golfers forgot the date. Bradley boys got on the telephone and let it be known they were ready to start the play.

Posthaste, three Vanderbilters arrived, found the Bradley swingers ready, and able. Bradley won 12½ to 5½.

Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. life-saving certificates will go to those swimmers who successfully complete the eight-week series of life-saving classes starting Thursday at the "Y" pool. Registration for the instruction may be made with Robert S. Fulton, senior instructor.

Jockey Tells Jury Of 'Pulling Up' Hollywood Mounts

Los Angeles, April 15.—Jockey Willis Ward on testifying today in a race-fixing trial, told the jury he kept four horses from winning in a single day's card and received $300 for his services from a gambling syndicate.

He listed them as Mimosa, Dandy Vale, First Bid and Atta Bunny at Hollywood Park, July 22, 1938. Mimosa, he said, gave him a lot of trouble, because the horse wanted to run and finished second when he was easily the best in the field.

The parents of Ward filed a civil suit today against the five defendants and 11 others, demanding $37,000 damages.

Postscripts . . .

Boston, April 15.—Boston's opening-day ceremonies were a drab affair compared to Washington's gala inaugural. . . . Park officials were chary with their bunting, and Gov. Leverett Saltonstall's opening pitch from his box seat was a dreary toss to the groundkeeper. . . . But the weather was kind and on the warmish side, and it didn't seem like April. . . . It was a sporting crowd that gave its old favorite, Roger Cramer, an uproarious hand in his first appearance in a Washington uniform. . . . Cramer responded with a wicked single through the box. . . . Cramer received another deserved tribute in the second inning when he made an incredibly thrilling catch of Pytlak's line drive to center field. . . . The fleet center fielder cut far across the outfield, speared the ball with a lengthy dive, and held it as he slid 10 yards on his elbow. . . . Just before Cramer's play, Ben Chapman robbed Bobby Doerr of a hit with a one-handed catch in front of the left field fence. . . . Herbert Guggenheim, Washington's merchant and great good friend of both Joe Cronin and Bucky Harris, watched the game and divided his allegiance between the two teams. . . . He sat in the official Washington box in the early innings and then moved to Tom Yawkey's Royal Box aton the stands for the remainder of the game. . . . George Archie turned in a fancy fielding bit on Tabor's grounder to Lewis in the fourth inning. . . . Lewis' high throw lifted Archie off the bag, but the first baseman whirled quickly to tag Tabor on the line. . . . Until the sixth inning today, when he singled to center, Ben Chapman was having a dismal season. . . . He hadn't made a hit, and his interference with Catcher Frankie Pytlak robbed George Case of a stolen base. . . . Boston's old familiar shout of "take him out!" was heard as early as the fourth inning of today's opener when the Nats banged Jack Wilson around for three hits and a pair of runs. . . . Tomorrow it will be Walter Masterson making his first start of the year, against Charley Wagner, young Red Sox right-hander.—POVICH.

Terry's Team Scores Four In Eighth

Wyatt Victimized By Late Uprising; Rookie Ace Adams Credited With Win

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, April 15.—The New York Giants broke up the Brooklyn Dodgers' opening day party today with a four-run outburst against Whitlow Wyatt in the eighth inning and emerged 6 to 4 victors before 31,604 fans.

Hal Schumacher started on the mound for the Giants and gave up all the Brooklyn runs on four hits and eight walks in 3 2-3 innings.

He was followed by Chief Melton, Paul Dean and Rookie Ace Adams, who finally got credit forthe victory by virtue of the five-hit rally in the eighth.

The Giants cracked the ice against Wyatt in the fifth when he walked two men and Johnny Rucker tripled. The later uprising included three singles and a pair of doubles by Joe Orengo and Bill Jurges.

Phils Show Punch, Stop Bees, 6 to 5

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, April 15.—The Phillies, showing a new-found punch, won their opening game of the season today beating the Boston Bees, 6 to 5, behind Cy Blanton's masterful four-hit pitching before 10,595 at Shibe Park.

Blanton, a castoff of the Pittsburgh Pirates, pitched no-hit ball for 6 2-3 innings before Carvel Rowell beat out a bunt. Max West then followed with a homer. In the ninth Eddie Miller plastered a 3-2 pitch into the left-field stands with two on for the Bees' other three runs.

Etten, Marty Homer

Homers by Joe Marty and Nick Etten gave the Phils two runs in the third. In the fifth a walk, an error, Stan Benjamin's triple and Etten's single accounted for three more tallies and drove Dick Errickson to cover. The Phils' winning run came in the seventh on singles by Marty, Etten and Danny Litwhiler.

Etten, playing his first game for the Phils, had a perfect day at bat, getting three singles in addition to his homer.

Mrs. Meckley Steals Show At Kenwood

Mrs. Betty Meckley stole the show yesterday as the Kenwood Golf and Country Club staged its opening day women's tournament.

Competing in a field of 27, Mrs. Meckley scored an impressive 81, which with her handicap of 9 gave her a net 72 and choice of the gross or net prize. She took the latter, throwing the gross award into a tie between Mrs. Donald Kane and Mrs. G. F. Goetzman, each with 96. Mrs. Goetzman won the draw.

Other net prizes went to Mrs. Robyn Thomburg, with 98-22—76; Mrs. H. W. Bashore, 99-18—81, and Mrs. Betty Wells, 110-29—81. The prize for lowest number of putts went to Mrs. John Holland with 31.

Rookie Wild, But Cubs Halt Pirates, 7 to 4

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 15.—Manager Jimmy Wilson's Chicago Cubs, rejuvenated with a scattering of rookies, opened the National League season today with a 7-to-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before 17,008 fans.

The Cubs—with a new pilot, and rookies behind the plate and at first, shortstop and left field—piled up five runs in the third and added two more in the sixth while Claude Passeau was holding the Pirates to 12 hits. The Cubs made four errors—all by Rookie Shortstop Lou Stringer.

The Bucs scored in the third on Deb Garms' double and the first of Arky Vaughan's two triples. His second three-bagger and Van Robays' single produced another run in the seventh. Pittsburgh added two more in the ninth on three hits and two errors by Stringer, but Passeau ended the threat by striking out Vince DiMaggio with the bases full.

Stringer opened the Cubs' big third frame with a double and scored on McCullough's single. Passeau singled, Stan Hack and Rookie Ed Waitkus flied out, Dom Dallessandro walked, and then Bill Nicholson rapped a homer into the center field bleachers.

George Washington Horse Show Set; Proceeds to British

The East-West Highway show grounds will be the scene of the George Washington University Horse Show Sunday, commencing at noon and continuing throughout the afternoon.

Constructed along informal lines to give every type of mount a chance at exhibiting, the prize list includes events for hunter hacks, ladies' hunters, go-as-you-please jumping, student hunters, open jumpers and student and alumni horsemanship.

Dick Bairstow, president of the riding club, heads the committee, which also includes Charles Coffee, Jane Marshall, Emaline Burnet, Catherine Stewart, Jerry Kruger and Louise Shaeffer.

Featured on the card is a dressage exhibition by 15-year-old Albert Ostermaier and his pony, Pinto. Proceeds of admissions and refreshments will go to British war relief.

What to Do? Will It Be Goat's Milk Or Baseball, Pal?

By the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., April 15.—The mighty Casey failed his team when he struck out, but in this case Wade Gray had to go home to milk his goat.

The Section 7 baseball team of Minnie Holman Grammar School was leading Section 9 at the beginning of the seventh inning.

Then Wade responded to the pleas of his nanny goat in a nearby lot. Because no other player was available, the game was called off.

"Another game," said Class Secretary George Hopson, "will be played if Wade can get somebody to milk his goat for him."

Briarley Nine 13-7 Winner Over Coolidge

Special Dispatch to The Post

Ammendale, Md., April 15.—Briarley Military Academy spoiled the first start of the baseball season for Calvin Coolidge High nine, of Washington, here today when it took advantage of six errors and nine bases on balls to score a 13-7 victory.

Sharing the mound assignment equally, Coolidge's Paul Vaughn and Lester Nelicove gave the hosts 12 hits, two more than the Colts registered, but fell before excessive misplays on the part of their teammates. Lodge went the first eight frames for Briarley, allowing eight safeties, and Cordua and Ingberg saw action in the ninth.

Though it scored two runs in the first half of the opening inning and got through its half of the third with a 3-1 lead, Coolidge was never able to get back in the running after the lower half of the third. Briarley, playing heady ball, pushed over six tallies then and clinched matters with two more in the fifth, one in the eighth and a trio in the eighth.

Ingberg, who played three positions during the afternoon, sparked the attack of the Cadets with a single, double and triple in five times at bat. William Penn's four straight singles in as many trips led the losers.

Schoolboy Nines In Four Games Here and Nearby

Their most active day of the Easter vacation finds schoolboy baseball teams of Washington and vicinity engaging in four games today.

One of two strictly local clashes on the card brings together Gonzaga and Roosevelt on the Ellipse. In the other St. Alban's plays host to Devitt Prep.

Eastern High, touted as one of the strongest clubs in the interhigh family, moves out to Alexandria to face Episcopal's nine, and Wilson goes across the Potomac to meet Washington-Lee at Arlington. All four games start at 3:30 p. m.

Roosevelt Golfers Blank Tech, 9-0

Roosevelt High's golf delegation boosted its stock in the interhigh links series immensely yesterday at Capital Country Club when it shut out Tech, 9-0.

Starting with easy victories by Myers and Brownridge over Curtan and Bale, respectively, the Riders were never threatened seriously. Their closst triumph was registered by Barse over Rey, 2 and 1.

COMPLETE RESULTS

Roosevelt, 9; Tech, 0.
Myers (R) defeated Curtan, 5 and 4; Brownridge (R) defeated Bale, 3 and 4. Best ball—Roosevelt, 7 and 5.
Barse (R) defeated Rey, 2 and 1; Wartman (R) defeated Brown, 3 and 2. Best ball—Roosevelt, 5 and 4.
Griffin (R) defeated Belote, 3 and 2; Wanran (R) defeated Lewis, 6 and 5. Best ball—Roosevelt, 5 and 4.

Landon Nine Tops Gilman, 12-5, in Debut

Landon Prep opened its 1941 baseball season in fine style yesterday with a second-inning uprising which brought about a 12-5 victory over Gilman School, of Baltimore, at Landon.

But in turning back the visitors, Landon lost the services of its regular third baseman, John Sager, a junior, who was spiked in a third-inning collision with a Gilman player. Sager, who slammed out a triple in the second with a man on base, had to be removed from the game and several stitches were taken in his leg. He'll be out at least ten days.

Landon turned on the steam in the second and piled up nine runs, with Sager driving one in and scoring himself, and Crandall Alford bringing in two more with a double.

Paul Baker, Landon pitcher, led the hitting for the day, with three hits for five times up, and fanned 14 men. Landon was aided by seven Gilman errors, and was guilty of but two miscues in the field.

Stomach Trouble?

We're not the least bit interested in the medical approach to this problem. Ours is purely exterior interest. A lot of fellows have more stomach than they care to advertise, and we'd like to help them select clothes that soft-pedal their waist.

If you're not extra short, double-breasted suits help conceal an expanded waistline. Wear them with only the bottom button closed. The long roll of the lapel diminishes the dimension between the chest and stomach, giving the chest the better of it. A bit of drape helps, too.

Trousers may have pleats for comfort, as well as to give a straight line from waist to cuff . . . tapering, of course, from knee to bottom.

Baseball Openers Lead to Various Odd Predictions

By Whitney Martin
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, April 15.—A few last-minute, oven-fresh hunches as the major league baseball season gets under way:

That Paul Derringer, Bob Feller, Kirby Higbe, Buck Newsom and Bucky Walters will make up the list of 20-game winners.

That Monte Pearson will win 15 games for the Reds.

That Joe DiMaggio will lead the A. L. in hitting with about .360, and also will lead in home runs.

That Joe Medwick will hit about .350 for the Dodgers and press Johnny Mize for N. L. home run honors.

That Jimmy Foxx will see service behind the bat for the Red Sox before the season ends.

That Pete Reiser will be a star in center field for the Dodgers and will hit about .290.

How About Managers?

That there will be no mid-season managerial changes in either league.

That Eddie Joost will stand up under the daily grind of shortstop for the Reds, but that he won't hit .250.

That Leo Dorcher will play 50 games for the Dodgers.

That the Reds and Indians will be leading their respective leagues July 4.

That the Browns and Bees are going to cause more trouble than a lot of people think.

That the Dodgers will take part in more fights than Joe Louis.

That Charley Gehringer will play the full schedule at second base for the Tigers and will hit .320.

That Bob Feller will have at least a one-hit game on his record.

That four clubs—Detroit, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and the Yankees—will top the million mark in attendance.

That the Yankees will not be sold before the season ends.

That Paul Waner will have a fine season with the Dodgers, and will hit .335.

That Van Mungo will be (1) fined; (2) suspended, or (3) have a sore arm before the season ends.

That the Tigers can't count on Schoolboy Rowe winning 16 games, or the Dodgers count on that number again from Fitzsimmons.

That Ernie Lombardi is going to miss a lot of games because of that old ankle injury.

That the Giant line-up will see more shifts than the opponents of Frank Leahy's Notre Dame football team.

That Jimmy Dykes will be ousted by Umpires oftener than Leo Durocher.

That the N. L. pennant will be won on pitching (Reds) and the A. L. on hitting (Yankees).

That after the first beaning other clubs will follow the Dodger example of insisting the players wear a head shield.

That Larry MacPhail will grab more headlines than all the other club officials combined.

That if 20 per cent of these predictions are accurate it will be equivalent to the Phillies winning the pennant.

Jockey Injured, Horse Killed in Havre de Grace Crash

Fence Ripped For 20 Feet By Third Try

Danning Suffers Bruises and Good Shaking Up When Thrown From Mount

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Havre de Grace, Md., April 15.—Apprentice Jockey Willie Canning, under contract to Preston Burch, Washington, D. C., trainer, was injured in a spectacular accident that marked the running of the eighth race here today. Canning was riding Third Try when the 4-year-old colt bolted and crashed into the outside fence at the first turn. Canning was thrown into the air and the horse tore down 20 feet of fence. The boy was given a hasty examination which revealed bruises and a shaking up. He was rushed to the Aberdeen Hospital for further examination. The horse was so badly injured that he had to be destroyed. Third Try was owned by O. S. Jennings, whose Blablah was a winner on the day's program.

G. C. Brenton's Onisac won the race. The $8.90 shot came from far back to down Howard and Sealoch in a battle over the course of a mile and one-eighth.

A crowd of 7,000, a fitting gathering for a featureless program, reported for a day at the races here and watched maiden 3-year-olds strut their stuff in the fifth and sixth races, generally reserved for the big-shot performers. In the fifth race, the Christiana Stable's Docket graduated from the maiden ranks while in the sixth event, the Mill River Stable's Port Alibi was the winner.

Just when it appeared that Docket would be a nonwinner for the remainder of his career, the son of Kantar and Portever, drove home a half length in advance of Mrs. Elmer Trueman's Gino Beau, with W. J. Hirsch's Beacon Street in third position. Docket, capably handled by Jockey Leon Haas, paid a $16.30 mutuel.

Port Alibi was a paddock tip and was backed into second choice. Sterling Young did the saddle honors and he brought the son of The Porter and Polly Mac to the top approaching the stretch. Young then took up and toyed with Swynstan, the favorite. Port Alibi paid $6.80 after the tip got around. H. R. Dulaney's Golden Hour set the early pace and tired. A field of 12 competed in each of these races.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING INDIAN, $3.90, $3.20, $2.80; TOWER MAID, $5.50, $3.90; PETES BET, $4.40.

FLYING INDIAN forged to the front at once, drew clear, saved ground and won with speed in reserve. TOWER MAID, off in a tangle, worked her way to contention and closed with a bold rush. PETES BET was well placed from the beginning and closed with good energy.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:46. Off at 2:47. Winner, S. S. Zell's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MORSTEP, $4.70, $3.70, $3.10; NICK, $7.40, $5.70; DOGROSE, $10.90.

MORSTEP, well handled and taken under restraint while racing clear on the outside after breaking on top, moved to the lead when shaken up in the stretch and drew out under a drive. NICK was forced to race between horses early, displaced LA SCALA to take command approaching the stretch and was weakening at the end. DOGROSE raced in close quarters on the inside approaching the stretch and closed with good energy.

Daily Double, FLYING INDIAN and MORSTEP, Paid $21.00

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:15½. Winner, Jouett Shouse's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALLANTE, $25.30, $8.90, $4.90; ROUGH BISCUIT, $3.20, $2.80; DARK FRIEND, $10.20.

CHALLANTE, off in the first flight and rated to the stretch, responded gamely when placed to a drive and wore down ROUGH BISCUIT to win going away. Harrell's foul claim against the winner was not allowed. ROUGH BISCUIT, first away, was steadied along on the outside of LULA KHAYYAM, disposed the latter, but was unable to resist the winner. DARK FRIEND closed resolutely from a sluggish beginning.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:45. Winner, O. S. Jennings' b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLAHBLAH, $8.80, $4.40, $3.00; REMOLEE, $6.90, $4.50; ROUGH BRIGADE, $3.00.

BLAHBLAH, a forward factor from the start, escaped bumping in the stretch run and drew out to win easily. REMOLEE lacked early speed, gained gradually after the opening quarter and closed with a bold rush. ROUGH BRIGADE was allowed to race on his own courage early and closed full of run.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:16. Winner, Christiana Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORT ALIBI, $6.80, $3.80, $3.20; SWYNSTAN, $3.00, $2.50; GOLDEN HOUR, $4.00.

PORT ALIBI was not hurried in the early stages, came out for racing room, took command over GOLDEN HOUR and was taken in hand while holding SWYNSTAN safe. SWYNSTAN was hard ridden while trying to dispose of GOLDEN HOUR and came with good energy at the close to be second best. GOLDEN HOUR forged to the front early, set a good pace and tired gradually after being displaced.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:15. Off at 5:15. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's b. m. (7), by Transmute—By O'Baby. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:47⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAIN MARIE, $11.30, $4.00, $3.00; AUTUMNQUEST, $3.10, $2.50; BLAZING HEAT, $3.80.

BAIN MARIE, allowed to settle into her best stride, circled the leaders to take command and won easily. AUTUMNQUEST, a forward factor from the start, disposed of BLAZING HEAT and CENTERVILLE to get to the front, but was no match for the winner in the closing stages. BLAZING HEAT set the pace, accompanied by CENTERVILLE, and weakened after being displaced.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:45½. Off at 5:45½. Winner, G. C. Brenton's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ONISAC, $8.90, $5.60, $3.10; HOWARD, $7.20, $4.80; SEALOCH, $2.80.

ONISAC, allowed to settle into her best stride, improved her position gradually, was forced out at the final turn and came with a bold rush through the final sixteenth to dispose of HOWARD in the concluding strides. HOWARD was forwardly placed from the start, took command over SEALOCH, but could not resist the winner. SEALOCH was rushed from the start and was ridden into defeat.

Dear Al:

Although he may be back for stake engagements later, Jockey Nick Wall bid goodby and left for New York. He certainly left a good impression here with his masterful finish on Madigama opening day. Coming up on the train yesterday we were discussing the Kentucky Derby. Although I was voted down, I still believe Little Beans has a chance in the classic and I'll be disappointed if he doesn't start. He isn't so much on looks but he has courage and that's what it takes. Grant Thorn's White Sand probably has run his last race. The veteran has been barred by the stewards for refusing to break in last Monday's race. White Sand got the habit last year and it was thought the winter rest would change him. However, he was up to his old tricks and it looks like curtains on his racing career. Racing fans who give such matters their attention are pondering the possibilities of America's triple crown being won this season. War Admiral, in 1937, was the last colt to sweep victoriously through the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes, the important spring classics for 3-year-olds comparing with the English triple crown of the Epsom Derby, St. Leger Stakes and 2,000 guineas. Only three other colts—Sir Barton in 1919, Gallant Fox in 1930 and his son, Amaha, in 1935—have been able to account for all three of the races and if the trick is to be turned this season it seems to be the general feeling that Bold Irishman, Dispose and Porter's Cap have the best chance. Fourteen other colts are eligible to the three events with the most promising appearing to be Whirlaway, Attention and Monday Lunch. The others are Perisphere, High Command, Fairy Mount, Swing Sway, The Rhymer, Alaking, Itabo, New World, Exploration, Yankee Chance, Gun Bearer and Armistice. As New World already has been declared out of the Derby, he is eliminated as a candidate for triple crown honors. The Belmont's record winning share of $66,040 collected by Gallant Fox gave him total earnings of $168,690, the highest award gained by any triple crown victor, but this mark is in danger of being topped this spring due to the increased value of the Preakness. The Maryland Jockey Club's feature is expected to gross $80,000.

BILL.

First race—GIGGLE LEE appears well placed in the opening event. Turned in a fine effort at Bowie and probably will run over this gang in the stretch run. TRAMP SHIP performed good enough at the other town to warrant a place high in the field. PLAYMORE is going to get the change of riders this time and is dangerous.

Second race—HAPPY GALLOP is a fair juvenile and fits nicely in company of this kind. Needs only a share of the racing luck. The Heighe entry of PONY BALLET and WALTHAM CROSS, with the accent of the first named, is formidable. TOWER GUEST could be the third one.

Third race—BECOMLY gets in light and seems to have the company that suits. The stable has a barn full of sharp ones. ROUGH MAN gets a high figure among this kind and belongs close. FISH WIFE worked in good fashion over the Bowie track.

Fourth race—SUPREME SPEED has worked well and may prove a good thing in this company. Disregard the 117-pound assignment and get aboard. GINOBI and KING COTTON raced well at the other track and will battle it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Fifth race—The J. W. Y. Martin entry of ABRASION and SLOW MOTION holds a strong hand in this sprint. Both are prominent on the work list and I believe they will take it all. JOHN'S STAR gets in with feather weight and is dangerous. The Bostwick entry of CACODEMON and SHIPMATE probably will provide the third horse.

Sixth race—RIDING LIGHT shapes up well in this. Bowie races were excellent and I see no reason for mistakes. ICE WATER has been touted for this event and belongs close. HAPPY HUNTING is rounding into best form.

Seventh race—FOXSHADE is strictly the class in this field. Last year's races were with the best and I'm forced to string along. OVERSIGHT made his move too soon last out. Will be prominent. RUN BY to take care of the others.

Eighth race—DRIFT ALONG passed up yesterday's race for this and is a stand 'out. SISTAUR had trouble last out and may be close at long odds. WAR GRAND for the show end.

Best bet—DRIFT ALONG.

Capital Bank Elevates Four To New Posts

Four officers of the American Security & Trust Co. have been promoted to newly created positions of assistant vice presidents, it was announced last night following the regular meeting of the board of directors.

William W. Keck and Edward E. Swan, assistant treasurers; Frank M. Perley, trust investment officer, and William E. Schooley, assistant treasurer, became assistant vice presidents. All will continue with their various departments.

With the continued growth of the company, other promotions were made through the transfer of three assistant treasurers. Richard E. Harris will come from the central branch1 to the main office banking department; Paul J. Seltzer will take charge of the growing Southwest branch and Percy C. Brady, at present at the Southwest branch, will be transferred to the central branch.

All of the officers elevated to assistant vice presidents have been with the bank for many years—Mr. Keck since 1893, Mr. Swan since 1906, Mr. Schooley since 1917 and Mr. Perley since 1918.

The recent financial statement of the American Security & Trust Co. showed deposits of nearly $60,000,000 and resources of approximately $70,000,000, the highest in its 52 years.

Twelfth Anniversary

Officers and directors of the Prudential Building Association will observe the twelfth anniversary today at the company's offices in the Second Bank Building. Organized and opened for business in 1929 the home lending group has made consistent progress and in the latest report revealed total resources in excess of $3,900,000.

According to E. J. Carlson, secretary-treasurer, the gain in assets during the past 12 months was $225,000 while the surplus, reserve and undivided profits account has grown to $210,000. He stated that dividends paid to shareholders during the past year amounted to $113,000.

Prudential Building Association was the second association in Washington to become a member of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Officers are Luther C. Steward, president; Curtis Walker and John B. Colpoys, vice presidents; Mr. Carlson, secretary-treasurer; C. H. Boyse, assistant secretary-treasurer, and Harvey L. Cobb, attorney.

Directors are T. Howard Duckett, William P. Ames, Thomas E. Hampton, Thomas D. Lewis, F. Eliot Middleton and Colpoys, Steward, Cobb, Walker and Carlson.

Rail Revenues Spurt

Eighty-six Class 1 railroads had estimated operating revenues of $330,001,334 in March, compared with $268,805,257 in March, 1940, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

The association said the 86 reporting carriers represented 82.2 percent of total operating revenues of all Class 1 railroads.

Freight revenues of the 86 amounted to $282,420,954 in March, compared with $218,682,217 in March, 1940. Passenger revenues amounted to $32,161,553, compared with $27,290,462 in March, 1940.

Building At 12-Year Peak

Construction contracts in 37 Eastern States in the first three months of this year totaled $1,055,481,000, the greatest first quarter since 1929, F. W. Dodge Corporation Statistical Research Service, reported yesterday.

This compared with $868,943,000 in the first quarter of 1940 and $1,252,330,000 in the like 1929 period. In March alone, contracts totaled $479,903,000.

"Public ownership construction," said the service, "continues to consist predominantly of defense projects for Army, Navy and Air Force deficiencies in housing facilities for enlisted personnel and industrial workers are being met simultaneously by governmental agencies and by private builders, assisted or unassisted by Government aid."

Special Fares for Military

Special railroad fares of 1¼ cents per mile for the uniformed personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard will be established on or about May 1, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, announced yesterday.

The special fares will be good for round-trip travel in coaches between all points in the United States and will be available to any member of the Nation's military forces traveling in uniform on furlough at his own expense.

The special fares will carry a 30-day limit, and will expire on October 31, 1941. Prior to the expiration date, consideration will be given to the possibility of extending these rates.

Gasoline Supplies Continue Decline

New York, April 15 (AP).—Evidence that the seasonal decline in gasoline stocks was really under way was disclosed today in the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute. Gasoline stocks declined for the second successive week during the period ended April 12, decreasing to 98,854,000 barrels, compared with 99,112,000 the previous week and 103,656,000 at the same time a year ago.

Foreign Exchange

New York, April 15 (AP).—The Canadian dollar advanced 1.37½ cents in terms of the U. S. dollar in free foreign exchange trading today while the pound sterling lost ⅛ cent.

The Canadian dollar had previously set a new 1941 high for the day at 88.73 U. S. cents, but closed lower at 88.62½. The pound sterling closed better after establishing a new 1941 low.

Other gainers were the Swiss franc and the Argentine free peso. The Hongkong and Shanghai dollars closed slightly lower.

Closing rates, follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents).

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying, 10 per cent premium; selling, 11 per cent premium. Equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

New Chairman of Exchange Is Leader of 'Reform' Wing

Robert Stott, 41, Is In Harmony With Martin's Ideas

By the Associated Press

New York, April 15.—Another comparatively young man came to the front in Wall Street today as a leader in the adjustment of the financial district's affairs to Federal control and world economic upheaval.

He is 41-year-old Robert L. Stott, Brooklyn-born broker, nominated for chairman of the Board of the New York Stock Exchange.

Usually nomination by the official nominating committee is equivalent to election, although the slate is put before members at the annual election May 12 for approval.

Younger looking than his years, modest-mannered Stott was regarded in brokerage circles as a leader in the so-called "liberal" wing which ousted the "old guard" from administration of the exchange three years ago and installed as the first paid president William McChesney Martin, jr., then only 31 years old.

Stott's friends consider him well in harmony with views of Martin and Martin's chief backers. As chairman of the board and member of a special committee seeking a capable man to take the presidency, Stott presumably would have a lot to say in the exchange's future affairs, including pending proposals for further reform of the management to place it almost wholly in the hands of professional administrators.

Named with Stott among 13 governors nominated for posts on the 32-man governing board were men mostly betweeen ages of 40 and 50, with a strong representation of office partners of commission firms and out-of-town houses. Included were Allan H. Crary, Los Angeles; Charles C. Renshaw, Chicago, and James J Minot, Boston.

The governors will have final say on a new president after a choice has been made by a committee looking over the field for an executive head.

Stott, a black-haired medium-statured man who went to work in Wall Street as a clerk in 1819, after finishing high school, thinks he can bring back to the exchange some of the millions of dollars' worth of business lost in recent years by shrinkage in public interest in trading and shift of dealings to the so-called over-the-counter market.

He wants to build up a combination of the dealer system used in London and the auction market established in Wall Street, with full disclosure of transactions and prices.

"I don't yet know how we will do it, but I am convinced it can be done," he said.

Stott is a partner in the firm of Wagner, Stott & Co., which acts as "specialist" on the exchange floor in general issues and does little business directly with the public.

120-Hour Week Sought in Machine Tool Industry

New York, April 15 (AP).—Defense officials have asked metal-working plants to operate at least 120 hours a week to carry the extra production load of the British aid program, the American Machinist reported today.

Noting the machine tool industry was about to have the greatest burden in its history placed upon it, the trade publication explained the longer working hours were equivalent to two shifts of ten hours each six days a week.

"Many factories," it said, "are already on that schedule or are close to it. Still others are running three 8-hour shifts on a six-day week, though difficulty is experienced in securing skilled man for that basis of operations."

The indications are, it was added, that tool requirements in 1942 would be as great as this year, when some $750,000,000 are scheduled to be produced.

Firm to Make 15 Army Tanks Daily

New York, April 15 (AP).—American Car & Foundry Co. reported today it expected soon to be turning out 15 combat tanks daily.

The company noted it had developed "the most extensive facilities to be found anywhere in the world for the manufacture of case carburized armor plate" for tank manufacture on a large scale.

Part of its rail equipment facilities have been converted to defense production.

Risk Rates Boosted On Cargoes to Egypt

New York, April 15 (AP).—Shipments between the United States and Egypt today were assessed 7½ per cent instead of the former 5 per cent of their value for war risk insurance, after action by American marine insurance underwriters.

It was understood the underwriters considered the German drive in Africa was aimed at the Suez Canal and, in consequence, the insurance rate increase affected only ports in and around the Canal. The rate to the lower portion of the Red Sea, below Egypt, remained unchanged at 5 per cent.

Martin Feted Prior To Entry in Army

New York, April 15 (AP).—An industrious young man put in his last licks today at a Wall Street job paying $48,000 yearly, then planned to rise early in the morning to go through the preliminary motions of becoming a soldier for Uncle Sam at $21 a month.

In his final day on the job before he reports for military training, William McChesney Martin, jr., 34-year-old president of the New York Stock Exchange, mixed farewells from friends and associates with a busy round of work.

Employes of the exchange presented him with an illuminated scroll expressing "appreciation and admiration for his gallant leadership under the most trying conditions." Exchange executives gave him a luncheon. The night before he had attended a farewell dinner by the governing board.

Refinancing Plan Of V. P. S. Given Final Approval

Richmond, Va., April 15 (AP).—An order of the Virginia Corporation Commission today gave final approval to a $40,000,000 refinancing program of the Virginia Public Service Company.

The authorization, including the private sale of $28,000,000 principal amount in new 3¾ per cent bonds and $8,500,000 in new debentures bearing interest at rates ranging from 2½ to 3¾ per cent, will provide funds for refunding debt outstanding and also $2,399,565 for capital improvements, the commission's order showed.

Other plan approved was a revision of an authorization of last November.

Gold Imports Fall Sharply in Week

By the Associated Press

Gold imports fell last week to $5,642,313, the lowest for any week since January 15. Reporting this figure yesterday, the Commerce Department said imports in the week ended April 9 were only about a third of the preceding week.

The only large shipment was $3,189,322 from Canada. Next largest were $726,357 from Peru and $649,055 from Mexico. Foreign gold deposited under earmark in the Federal Reserve banks increased $3,553,007 to a total of $1,909,978,973.

Silver imports gained slightly to $1,181,891, including $640,448 from Mexico $250,223 from Canada and $184,826 from Peru.

Mexico Pays $400,000 To U. S. Sugar Firm

New York, April 15 (AP).—A bond retirement notice disclosed today that Potrero Sugar Co. American owned, which recently reached an agreement with the Mexican Government on its expropriated property in Mexico, received $400,000 in settlement.

The property, exropriated last year prior to the inauguration of president Avilia Camacho, consisted of farming lands surrounding the company's plant, which latter remains in the hands of the company.

Late Relapse Wipes Out Feeble Stock Rally; Steels, Industrials Depressed by War News

New York, April 15—The stock market today slipped at the opening, rallied around midday and relapsed in the final hour. Conflicting war bullitins, brokers said, were partly responsible for touching off a little late selling in steels and other industrial leaders. Reports from Budapest that Yugoslavia had asked for an armistice were apparently a bit disturbing although denied by both London and Berlin.

Buying cropped up after a hesitant get-away on the belief of some technical forces that the list had been oversold. Prices had been hovering at or near the lows of the year for more than a week. Losses running to a point or so were converted into advances before offerings became insistent enough to put most quotations back to bottom marks of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 40.1, wiping out yesterday's upturn of as much. A few large blocks of low-priced utilities put volume up to 453,400 shares compared with 458,700 the day before.

The better labor outlook at home was a factor in the morning recovery, analysts believed, although peace prospects here were tinged with some doubts because widespread wage increases in steel and other industries aroused further conjectures as to just how shareholders would come out in the way of dividends if boosted production costs were not offset by lifted prices. In this respect, Wall Street still was inclined to believe Washington would put thumbs down on any extensive price-raising move.

On the losing side fractions to better than a point were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Crucible Steel, Republic Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, Sperry, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, Western Union, Anaconda, Westinghouse and Texas Corp.

Earnings forecasts helped some individual issues such as Warner Bros., which held a gain of ⅛ to 3½, a new 1941 peak. Others retaining modest plus signs included Pennsylvania, Loew's, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville and International Harvester.

Bonds were uneven, as were commodities. Wheat at Chicago fell ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel and corn was off ¼ to up ¼. Cotton lost 45 to 75 cents a bale.

Ragged price trends were the rule in the curb. Conceding small amounts were Creole Petroleum, Electric Bond & Share, Glen Alden Coal, Lake Shore and Republic Aviation. Humble Oil was a gainer along with Aluminum of America, American Gas, American Cyanamid "B" and G. A. Fuller. The turnover here was around 75,000 shares versus 71,000 Monday.

Gen. Electric Net Dips to $11,377,969

By the Associated Press

Schenectady, April 15.—Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric Co., told stockholders at their annual meeting today March quarter profit was $11,377,969, or 39 cents a common share, compared with $11,951,450, or 41 cents a share, in the like 1940 period.

He said net sales billed in the first three months of this year, totaling $129,860,707, were the greatest of any quarter in the company's history, and compared with $85,949,194 in the first quarter of 1940.

"As indicated by results for the first quarter," said Wilson, "we are now operating under very unusual conditions, and it appears likely that we will have ot face similar conditions for some time.

"Profits will continue to reflect the substantially greater provision for taxes, increased costs due to overtime payments and employe training programs, and some sacrifice of operating efficiency resulting from our efforts to attain maximum speed in production for defense.

"However, the accelerating factory output is an offsetting factor which should have an increasing effect as the year progresses."

Rate Increases Planned

New York, April 15 (AP).—Earle S. Thompson, president of American Water Works & Electric Co., told stockholders at the annual meeting today the company plans to ask rate increases for a number of its water works properties to offset increased taxes and operating costs.

The company operates water properties in 21 States and Cuba, serving about 3,425000 persons, chiefly household users.

He asked stockholders to be patient in the matter of dividends until the company is "somewhat further along the road."

Cotton Futures

New York, April 15 (AP).—Cotton futures today slid down to final looses of 9 to 15 points after a slight gain in early dealings.

Fairly consistent mill buying was outweighed by hedge selling and professional liquidation. The latter was attributed to absence of expected word on the progress of the farm legislation program.

Excepting a sizable demand for industrial fabrics North Street business in cotton textiles was comparatively small. Prices were firm.

Exports Monday, 850 bales; season so far, 832,290. Port receipts, 18,960. Port stocks, 3,399,348.

Cottonseed Oil

New York, April 15 (AP).—Despite an abrupt decline after a further rapid early advance cottonseed oil futures today saved final gains of 4 to 8 points. Transfers were 412 contracts.

Before the reaction the market was governed by bullish reports indicating a still accelerating demand for oils and fats. May closed at 9.83 bid; July, 8.89; September, 9.00; October, 9.01.

Crude oil sold in light volume at 8 cents a pound in the Southeast, Texas and Valley.

Of Special Interest to Investors Who Are Frequently Out of Town

In these troubled days, your securities should be available for instant re-appraisal and adjustment. The best way to achieve this preparedness is through a Custodian Account -- a service which this firm offers at no cost, provided the principal amount of your securities is $10,000 or more.

You continue to control your investments in a Custodian Account, but we relieve you of the many details involved in collection of interest and dividends, etc. Your securities are individually segregated, and you have access to them at all times. Above all, they are ready for instant action, no matter where you may be.

There are no strings to our offer of free Custodian Service. We know from experience that with your securities available for advantageous changes, you will make them more frequently with resulting commissions to us. It's as simple as that. I suggest that you send today for our interesting booklet on Custodian Accounts.

Other advantages of dealing with Merrill Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt include low interest rates, minimum commission charges, and no service fees of any kind. Every investor, large or small, has at his command the resources of our able and alert Research Department, supervised by a partner. This department deals in facts, not in tips or rumors.

Won't you come in to discuss your investment problems with me? No obligation, of course; and it may prove to be one of the wisest moves you ever made.

Early Bird Catches the Worm—and the Fish

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

One of the first arrivals on the scene, Hugo Adams wears a happy grin as he shoulders his quota of five trout. Hugo was one of the hundreds who descended on Wissahickon Creek at dawn yesterday as the trout fishing season opened in Pennsylvania

'Death's Voice' Returns With 435 Lilies

Margaret Russell, of New York City, who was ousted from the House galleries last February when she donned a death's head mask and a black robe during debate on the lend-lease bill, was back at the Capitol yesterday. This time she carried lilies—435 of them.

She said she want to give a lily and a pamphlet to every member of the House. She wanted to distribute her flowers in person, but Capitol police demurred.

After a conference with Sergeant at Arms Kenneth Romney she told reporters she had decided to send the flowers by messenger. Later she was reported to have been seen entering a taxicab with lilies in her arms.

The pamphlet contined a message evidently inspired by spring, and was signed "Andra." The message began:

"Spring . . . Easter . . . The year's cycle on the upward swing. Powerful life-vibrations beating upon the cosmos. . . ."

Miss Russell, 34, is a former Vassar College student.

Chilean Journalists Compiling Pan-American Autograph Book

ON GOODWILL MISSION—Orlando Bonta (left) and Orlando Oyarzun, Chilean journalists visiting Washington, are shown with the "Book of Americas," which they are taking to all 21 Pan-American countries to obtain the signatures of government officials

Autograph hunters in the grand manners are Senors Orlando Bonta and Orlando Oyarzun, Chilean journalists visiting in Washington.

Today, with the assistance of Ambassador Rodolfo Michels of Chile, they will launch upon their task of obtaining the signatures of President Roosevelt, his Cabinet, Vice President Wallace Congressional leaders, Supreme Court justices and other high officials.

The names are to be inscribed in the "Book of the Americas," a sort of goodwill volume which the two newspapermen are taking to all 21 American Republics.

Already they have obtained the desired autographs in Colombia, Panama, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador, Guatemala, Mexico and their native Chile. Leaving the United States, probably some time next month, they will go to Cuba, thence down the east coast of South America.

The "Book of the Americas" is a huge volume of 200 sheets of fine parchment between covers which are made of chiseled copper and silver. On the cover is a sculptured relief with three figures symbolizing North, South and Central America.

Bonta and Oyarzun began their mission last August. They hope to complete their autograph collection, which was conceived by the town of Vina del Mar, Chile, and which is fostered by the government, by the end of the year.

Eventually the "Book of the Americas" will be presented to the Pan American Union for exhibition and preservation. A replica will be given to President Roosevelt.

Schenck Defense Rests

New York, April 15 (INS).—The defense rested late today in the income tax evasion trial of Joseph M. Schenck in Federal Court after Defense Attorney Harold Corbin asked the jury to acquit the movie magnate since not even a semblance of guilt had been proved.

Bids and Proposals

Federal Works Agency, Public Buildings Administration, Washington, D. C., April 11, 1941.—Sealed proposals in duplicate will be publicly opened in this office at 1 p. m., Standard Time, April 25, 1941, for construction of the FCC Radio Monitoring Station, Laurel, Md. Upon application, one set of drawings and specifications will be supplied free to each general contractor interested in submitting a proposal. The above drawings and specifications MUST be returned to this office. Contractors requiring additional sets may obtain them by purchase from this office at a cost of $5 per set, which will not be returned. Checks offered as payment for drawings and specifications must be made payable to the order of the Treasurer, U. S. Drawings and specifications will not be furnished to contractors who have consistently failed to submit proposals. One set upon request, and when considered in the interests of the Government, will be furnished, in the discretion of the Commissioner, to builders' exchanges, chambers of commerce or other organizations who will guarantee to make them available for any sub-contractor or material firm interested, and to quantity surveyors, but this privilege will be withdrawn if the sets are not returned after they have accomplished their purpose. W. E. REYNOLDS, Commissioner of Public Buildings, Federal Works Agency.

Bosox Shade Nats as Run Is Walked In

In the fourth the Nats gave Hudson two more runs to work with. Archie got his first hit of the season, a double against the wall in left, and Rick Ferrell scored him with a single off the wall in center. George Case singled to left to lift Hudson's lead to 3 to 1, but he couldn't make it last. With two out in the Boston half of the inning, the young right-hander walked Cronin and then watched Bobby Doerr knock a ball over the left-field wall for the two tying runs.

Well, in the sixth the Nats put on another batting show to give Hudson a 6-to-3 lead. Ferrell launched proceedings with a double against the left-field fence, and then Wilson messed up Hudson's sacrifice bunt, with both runners being safe. Case scored Ferrell with a long double to left center, and Cramer moved Hudson home from third with a long fly to right. Case scored the third run of the inning on a wild pitch by Wilson.

In the same inning, Hudson gave a run backto the Red Sox. His first act was to pitch a triple to Jimmy Foxx, whose line drive rocketed against the center field wall, 420 feet distant. Foxx scored on Cronin's long fly. Doerr followed with a single, but the Red Sox got no more runs at this time because Buddy Myer, after muffing Tabor's line drive, recovered it quickly and launched a double play.

But, of course, the ninth inning eventually rolled around, as ninth innings most always have.

Zale and Hostak Won't Meet May 16

Chicago, April 15 (AP).—Promoter Bill Rand announced tonight that a scheduled 15-round title bout between Middleweight Champion Tony Zale, of Gary, Ind., and Al Hostak, of Seattle, set for May 16 at Chicago Stadium, had been called off.

"I was forced to cancel the bout," Rand said, "after Eddie Marino, Hostak's manager, called me today and demanded 20 per cent of the gate as his fighter's share. We already had a verbal agreement that he was to get 12½ per cent and Zale 37½, the usual percentage for challenger and champion."

Zale won recognition as the National Boxing Association titleholder when he whipped Hostak last July in Seattle.

Neophyte Umpire Sold by Eastern

Williamsport, Pa., April 15 (AP).—An umpire who has yet to umpire his first game in organized baseball was sold today by the Eastern League to the International League.

President Thomas H. Richardson of the Class A loop announced the sale of Charles Berry, whom he signed last winter when Berry, 1940 manager of Wilmington of the Interstate League, announced his intention of becoming an umpire.

The AA league's newest man in the mask is a former catcher for the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics and a former football star at Lafayette.

Nebraska Takes Quadrangular Meet

Salt Lake City, April 15 (AP).—Nebraska University's well-balanced track and field team outclassed Utah's collegiate best in a quadrangular meet today.

The Cornhuskers, en route to Berkeley to tangle with California University's athletes, tallied 80½ points, more than double Brigham Young University's 39. Utah University was third with 36 and Utah State trailed with only 18½.

4,000 Quail to Be Freed On Virginia Refuges

Richmond, Va., April 15 (AP).—The State game commission reported today that approximately 4,000 young quail would be distributed this spring, most of them on upland game refuges of 40 to 100 acres which will be posted through two breeding seasons to give the birds a chance to multiply.

Chester F. Phelps, superintendent of game propagation, said in putting out the quail it was the theory that the overflow from the refugees would go into adjacent territory and provide a hunting supply in season while a brood stock also was being maintained.

Bill Ackerman On Fishing

The drums are in. Those words spread like wildfire throughout the length and breadth of North Carolina just about this time every spring. Anglers grab their tackle and head for the beaches. Mostly, that happens days in advance of the real run, for the first of the big red fish are usually caught offshore. But hope is eternal in the breast of all anglers and after the first one has been caught there is always a chance.

ACKERMAN

The first channel bass were caught last week at Masonboro Inlet, far down the coast. It will be a week or more before they come in the surf, and another week before they appear at Oregon Inlet and at Nags Head.

They were caught on the full moon in April just as the Outer Bankers predicted, but it will be the full moon in May that brings the real fishing, and that falls on a Saturday, the tenth.

True, many fish will be caught days ahead but guess it will be a fair bet to give it a try anytime after the sixth. Further, the best fishing will be at mid-day during that weekend.

By that time, however, we will be snagging hardheads here in the bay—at least in the Honga River or far up the Patuxent at Benedict. One need not go so far for the first fishing of the season. The lure of the surf, filled with the big flashing beauties, will attract hundreds of local anglers. It always does, for no spring is complete without at least one trip down the Outer Banks.

Some of the oldtimers around Washington remember the spring runs of fish in the Potomac because of the great sturgeon, which often come up as far as the Anacostia to spawn.

Occasionally one is still to be found, but when it is, it is hunted until caught so there is little chance that we will ever see the return of the old huns. That is just an example of our rape of our natural resources.

Sturgeon are nonexistent in these waters of the mid-Atlantic but in the St. Lawrence there is quite a run every year because they are protected, at least on the Canadian shore, where the sturgeon is a ward of the Crown.

Just across, Americans spear them without hindrance. At night, following Route No. 2 along the Canadian shore, one sees the whole river shimmering in the light of huge bonfires down the Americanside. They are fires of the Canawaughna Indians living in the states, who use this means to attract and blind the big fish so they are easy prey for the lances. Every fire is attended by an Indian, poised on a rock, to take the fish he is prohibited from killing on the Canadian side.

That is an instance of the value of international treaties, for marine fishes as well as wildfowl. Fish and Wildlife Service men who know of the inexcusable waste because of the lack of regulation are permitted to make recommendations, but it is seldom they are ever followed—when they concern migratory fishes.

Little Generals Turns Back Fairfax, 11-4

After an openin loss to Episcopal, Washington-Lee High's diamond team came back yesterday to even its record for the season by beating Fairfax, 11-4, on the Arlington field.

Scoring six runs in the first inning, the Little Generals were never behind despite Fairfax's four-run uprising in the fourth. They added counters in the fourth, seventh and eighth.

Only recently returned to the line-up after being hit by a bat last week, Catcher "Shanty" Shepherd paced the winners' 15-hit slugging along with DeCelle, Wilson and Pitcher Winfield. Shepherd had a single and triple in three trips, and DeCelle had two singles and a triple in five trips.

Bowbeer, a newcomer, hurled the first three innings for W.-L., allowing five hits before being relieved by Winfield. The latter went the rest of the way with only two safeties charged against him. Best blow for the losers was a double by Neisch, who hit safely three of the four times he came to bat.

Gonzaga Netmen Beat Tech, 4-3, For 1st Victory

Gonzaga High scored its first victory in two Scholastic Tennis League outings yesterday at Argyle courts, a 4-to-3 victory over McKinley Tech.

3 2-to-2 edge in the singles made the difference in favor of the Purple. Tech won the opening match, Furniss tripping Sheehan by 6—3, 6—4, but Gonzaga took the next two matches. In the fourth Tech's Kientz was hard pressed for a 6—4, 6—8, 8—6 triumph over Peabody, evening matters.

It was Curley's 6—1, 6—2 victory over Nelson in the last singles which won.

Complete Results

Gonzaga, 4; Tech, 3.

Singles—Furniss (T.) defeated Sheehan, 6—3, 6—4; Ervin (G.) defeated Cadem, 6—3, 7—5; Genovese (G.) defeated Rowe, 6—3, 6—1; Kientz (T.) defeated Peabody, 6—4, 6—8, 8—6; Curley (G.) defeated Nelson, 6—1, 6—2.

Mrs. Annie Bogley Is Dead; Four Children Survive

Mrs. Annie Rebecca Fletcher Bogley, 75, member of an old Washington family and widow of John William Bogley, former Georgetown Merchant and banker, died here yesterday.

Mrs. Bogley's body was found in the Potomac River near Key Bridge, at 7:50 p. m. At 4:30 p. m. she left the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Leila M. Duling, with whom she lived at 325 High Street, Friendship Heights, Md., saying she was going for a walk. She had been in ill health. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Mrs. Bogley was a member of the Dumbarton Methodist Church. She is survived by four children, Mrs. Duling, S. Walter Bogley, Mrs. Esther L. Jones and R. Aubrey Bogley, all of Washington, or nearby; a brother, Peyton B. Fletcher, of Washington, and three sisters, Mrs. Julia Woodward, Mrs. Maude Collins and Mrs. Lizzie Hartz.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Fiedler, Widow of 86

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Jouvenal Fiedler, 86, widow of Madison Fiedler, will be at 3 p. m. today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Luther H. Adair, 502 Edgewood Street Northeast, where she died Monday after a lingering illness. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Fiedler, a daughter of Jacques Jouvenal, well-known Washington sculptor, and Mrs. Maria H. Jouvenal, had lived here for more than 80 years. She was born in New York City.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Marie M. Robinson, Mrs. Gertrude M. Solomon and Mrs. Clara L. Adair; three sons, Milton A., Jouvenal M. and Lionel R. Fiedler; three sisters, Mrs. Clara Steinle, Mrs. Wilhelmina Grohmann and Mrs. Caroline J. Boswell, and three grandchildren.

Thumbs Up

Roosevelt Jovial Despite War News

President Roosevelt indicated yesterday that he was not downhearted over recent British reverses.

A reporter asked whether he had any comment on the "gloomy" war news. He replied in the negative and then asked whether he looked gloomy. On the contrary, he looked more jovial than he has in a long time.

Dr. I. Q. to Address Advertising Club

James McClain, better known as Dr. I. Q., the mental banker, who made his first appearance in Washington at the Capitol Theater Monday night, will address the Advertising Club of Washington at a luncheon meeting today at 12:30 at the Raleigh Hotel.

Allen C. Anthony, announcer who has been with the Dr. I. Q. program for its two and a half years, will also participate.

D. C. Friends Hear Of Kent's Hunger Strike in Prison

Tyler G. Kent, 30-year-old former Washingtonian, who is serving a seven-year sentence in England on espionage charges, went on a hunger strike six weeks ago in protest against "persecution" by the British, a close friend of the family reported here yesterday.

His hunger strike, reported by one news agency at the time but never confirmed, has been verified in personal messages to Washington acquaintances, according to the informant.

Going without food for 14 days, it was said, Kent suffered a nervous breakdown and as a consequence has been removed from a prison "somewhere in England" to the Isle of Wight, where he is allowed some freedom and fresh air.

Kent, a clerk at the United States Embassy in London before his arrest a year ago, is the son of Mrs. Annie Hendren Patrick Kent, of 2112 Wyoming Avenue Northwest, and the late William Patton Kent, who for many years was in the United States consular service.

2 Men Convicted Of Having Bomb

Philadelphia, April 15 (AP).—An attorney and a salesman were convicted late today of felonious possession of a dynamite bomb found last June 24 in the Philadelphia Workers' School during the Republican national convention.

They were Attorney Adolph Heller, 30, director of the school, who testified the school offered courses in Communism, and Bernard Rush, 26-year-old student at the school.

Gen. Getty, 86, Veteran Of Three Wars, Is Dead

San Francisco, April 15 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Robert Nelson Getty, 86, veteran of three wars, died today.

Gen. Getty, a native of Hamilton, N. Y., was graduated from West Point in 1878; fought in the last of the Indian campaigns, the Spanish-American War and in the World War. His father was Gen. George W. ("Gentle Bob") Getty, of Civil War fame.

Insurance Leader Feted on Anniversary

Earle W. Sapp, C. L. U., was guest of honor at a dinner at the University Club last night in observance of his tenth anniversary as general agent in Washington of the New England Life Insurance Co.

His associates in the Washington office gave the party, marking his appointment April 15, 1931. Among those present were Charles F. Collins, of Boston, home office agency secretary; William B. Wagner, Harrisburg, Pa., general agent, and Linwood Butterworth, Richmond, Va., general agent.

But, Of Course

Hopkins, a Democrat, Will Receive Pay

Harry L. Hopkins will receive pay as supervisor of the lend-lease program. He's a Democrat, President Roosevelt explained to his press conference yesterday, and so he can't be a dollar-a-year man.

William S. Knudsen recently reported to him that all the dollar-a-

WJSV and the Columbia Broadcasting System are to have the honor of presenting the last literary work of America's great author, Sherwood Anderson.

When death came to the famed writer of "Winesburg, Ohio," "Tar," "Poor White" and "The Triumph of the Egg" on March 8, Anderson was polishing final draft of the play which was to be his contribution to the Free Company series over CBS, counter-attcaking subversive propaganda in the United States.

Because it was not quite finished, although in its last draft, the Free Company decided at that time not to present it on the air.

But so many requests to hear the last words of the noted American stylist have come pouring in that it has been decided to take the risk. A distinguished group of playdoctors, headed by Boyd himself, and including the noted playwrights Maxwell Anderson, Stephen Vincent Benet, Marc Connelly, Paul Green and Robert Sherwood, are to see that Anderson's meanings are presented as he would have liked to hear them presented.

The play is called "Above Suspicion" and contrasts the American way of living with the coercion and terror of life in the dictator-ridden countries.

It's to be heard over WJSV on Sunday, May 4.

1¼ Cents a Mile Rail Fare Planned For Men in Uniform

The railroads will shortly establish low round-trip fares for the uniformed personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, announced last night that a fare of 1¼ cents a mile for round-trip travel in coaches between all points in the United States will go into effect about May 1. The rate will be available to any member of the military forces traveling in uniform on furlough and at his own expense.

Personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard may purchase special tickets upon presentation of an official furlough-fare certificate. The certificates may be obtained from commanding officers at all military posts.

Newspaper Editors to Open 2-Day Meeting Here Tomorrow

Confronted with many controversial issues rising out of the national defense program, the American Society of Newspaper Editors will open its two-day meeting at the Willard Hotel tomorrow morning.

Secretary of State Hull, British Ambassador Halifax and Sidney Hillman, associate director of OPM, are among public leaders scheduled to address the newspapermen. Some of the talks will be off the record.

Registration will begin this afternoon at the Willard. The board of directors, five places on which will be filled at this convention, will hold a meeting tonight.

Opening event tomorrow is a forum discussion on "What a Good City Goyernment Deserves from the Papers," beginning at 10 a. m., and led by Mayor James Garfield Stewart, of Cincinnati.

Next, in order, the editors will hear from Ralph Coghlan, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, on that city's antismoke campaign; Mont Curtis, Buffalo Evening News, "Campaigns for Buffalo;" John W LaRue, Cincinnati Enquirer, "Crusading With Pictures;" Nelson P Poynter, St. Petersburg Times, "Bond Issues vs. Sex Appeal," and Oxie Reichler, Yonkers Herald-Statesman, "How to Teach Good Government on the Front Page."

At a luncheon meeting, Dr. Vergil Reed, director of the Census, will speak on "What the Newspapers Should Know About the 1940 Census."

A panel discussion on "Editorial Influence Today" is scheduled for 2 p. m., led by Dr. Peter H. Odegard, of Amherst College, author of "The American Public Mind."

Members of the panel will include Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade; Stephen C. Noland, editor of the Indianapolis News; Hamilton Owens, general manager of the Baltimore Evening Sun; Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, and, tentatively, Geoffrey Parsons, New York Herald Tribune.

First off-the-record session will be at 4 p. m. tomorrow, when Secretary Hull is expected to speak.

Ambassador Halifax, Col. William J. Donovan, Presidential Assistant L. Hopkins will speak at an off-the-Lauchlan Currie and possibly Harry record banquet on Friday night.

New members will be introduced at a breakfast at 8:30 a. m. Friday, at which Roy A. Roberts, managing editor, Kansas City Star, will preside. At this time Arch Ward, sports editor, Chicago Tribune, will talk on "Honesty in the Sports Pages," and Lloyd Lewis, sports and drama editor, Chicago Daily News, will talk on "Good Writing, Sports and Elsewhere."

At a 10 a. m. meeting there will be the following talks: J. Brooks Atkinson, drama critic, New York Times, "A Quick Look at the Alleged Drama and Film Columns;" Ralph L. Peters, roto editor, Detroit News, "No More Dutch Windmills;" Virgil Pinkley, European manager, United Press, "War's Revolution of News Coverage;" Dean Carl W. Ackerman, graduate school of journalism, Columbia University, "Keeping the American News Lines Open," and Paul F. Lazarsfield, radio research department, Columbia University, "Radio—Help or Hindrance?"

At a luncheon session there will be a discussion of "Defense and the Press," by Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, jr., in charge of Army public relations, and Commander H. R. Thurber, in charge of Navy public relations.

At a 2 p. m. session, which probably will be off the record, there will be talks by Hillman, who will speak on "Defense, Labor and the Press," and by Lowell Mellett, director of the Office of Government Reports, who will talk on "The American Newspapers and National Defense." An R. A. F. veteran also may speak.

Tarver Resigns as Assistant Attorney

William S. Tarver, 35, resigned yesterday as Assistant District attorney to join the law firm of Ansell, Ansell and Marshall.

Born in Augusta, Ga., Tarver moved here when a child and was graduated at Western High School in 1923. He led his class at Georgetown University in 1927, receiving the Bachelor of Science degree cum laude. He was awarded a gold medal in philosophy.

Tarver studied law at Georgetown and at Southeastern University, where he was graduated in 1937, being admitted to the bar that year.

From 1927 to 1938 Tarver was a reporter for The Evening Star, leaving the paper when appointed a prosecutor by District Attorney David A. Pine, now a justice of the District Court.

While a prosecutor, Tarver appeared in ten cases before the United States Court of Appeals here and won all of them.

The senior member of Tarver's new firm is Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, who was Judge Advocate General of the Army in the World War.
